Council Sets Site For Meeting

The Evening Branch of National Council of Jewish Women will hold its March meeting on Wednesday, March 7 at 8:15 p.m. at the Bexley Library.

The program--Panel on Preschools--will feature representatives from three preschools in the Columbus area. Mrs. Susan Fogeley will talk about the Montessori Academy; Mr. Louis Griffin will discuss the Play and Learn Preschool; and Ms. Barbara Weinberg will represent the Jewish Center preschool. Spring Fashions Highlight UJFC March 12 Luncheon

Spring fashions and spring flowers will set the tone for the luncheon and fashion show on Monday, March 12 planned by the Campaign Cabinet of the Women's Division of the United Jewish Fund and Council.

The gala afternoon will take place at the Downtown Sheraton Motor Inn and will celebrate both the conclusion of the annual drive for funds and the 25th birthday of the State of Israel. A gift of $25 or more to the campaign entitles the donor to attend.

The UJFC is a voluntary association of major elements and groups within the Jewish community. It provides for central budgeting and planning as well as fund raising.

Both local agencies and overseas needs benefit from the drive. This year the emphasis is on extending aid to Russian Jews who wish to emigrate to Israel and on helping to support health, education and welfare services in Israel.

Mrs. Bernard Feitlinger, chairman of the afternoon, has planned a wine tasting hour and luncheon preceding the highlight of the afternoon, a showing of Anne Klein fashions.

Known as one of America's leading designers, Anne Klein not only creates casual clothes for day and evening but accessories as well. With her husband and partner, "Chip" Rubenstein, she consults and designs in various fields of fashion and industry. This highly successful team has generously donated a $300 outfit to be awarded to one of the ladies present.

Assisting Mrs. Feitlinger are: Mrs. Millard Cummins, invitations; Mrs. George Levine, luncheon; Mrs. Gordon Schiffman and Mrs. Stanley Katz, decorations; Mrs. Melvin Schottenstein and Mrs. Dave Green, physical arrangements; Mrs. Alvin Schottenstein and Mrs. Sidney Blatt, hostesses; Mrs. Herman Lieverman, reservations; Mrs. Milton Leeman, telephone; Mrs. Martin Hackman, mailing; Mrs. Jack Schachter, yearbook; Mrs. Lawrence Feitlinger, door prizes; Mrs. William Friedman, liaison with Young Matron division and Mrs. Fred Luper and Mrs. Maynard Kaplan, publicity.

Mrs. Ben Goodman is the campaign chairman of the Women's Division and Mrs. Ed Ellman is her co-chairman.

BOND ISSUE PLANS BEGIN

Board Approves School Additions, Improvements

BY THOMAS CONNERY
SPECIAL STAFF WRITER

Preliminary Plans for additions and improvements for Alpine and Devonshire Elementary Schools was approved by the Columbus Board of Education at its March 6 meeting.

These are the first architectural drawings for projects resulting from passage of last November's bond issue.

The drawings were prepared according to specifications developed by planning committees consisting of school personnel, parents, community representatives and architects.

Supt. John Ellis emphasized that this is only the first stage in the process.

"This is the architect's interpretation of what the committees said they want," Ellis said.

Using the preliminary drawings, architects will now begin drafting the detailed working drawings that will be used when the projects are put up for bids.

According to Howard Merriman, executive director of development, the completed plans will be ready within two to four months.

ELLIS SAID THE DRAWINGS were designed so that additions at the two schools would contain the types of educational programs designated in the planning committees' educational specifications.

David Jones, school architect, said that the purpose of the projects is to eliminate severe overcrowding at the two schools and to provide modern learning centers.

The drawings for Alpine call for a $315,000 addition about 13,000 square feet in size. It would be located along the east side of the school and would provide nine new classrooms and a library-learning center which would be about the size of two standard elementary school classrooms.

Included in the Alpine project is a site improvement that would provide more off-street parking, improved traffic flow and expanded play area at the school.

The addition for the Devonshire would cost $205,000, would be about 8,000 square feet in size, and would be located along the east side of the school. It would contain four new classrooms and a library-learning center.

THE DEVONSHIRE PLANS also call for installation of an expanded parking area at the school.

Jones said that the drawings for both projects provide flexibility to meet future needs of the schools. Included in the additions would be removable partitions and folding walls to separate classrooms so that the instructional areas can be changed in size with little time and effort.

Merriman said that 14 other projects have been submitted by planning committees and are being reviewed by the development office and division of instruction.

The board also authorized the use of $100,000 in building fund money for the purchase of 11.8 acres of land at Sunbury and Agler Roads for the expansion of Mifflin Jr.-Sr. High School.

Board members agreed to sponsor a pre-employment services program for 81 handicapped adults.

THE PROGRAM SERVICES those who are educable mentally retarded, deaf, hearing handicapped, speech impaired, visually handicapped, and crippled, with employment related aid.

Services include job descriptions, listing of employers and policies, means of transportation, decision making skills, developing employment plans, establishing education and training goals, guidance and counseling, job placement and follow up.

Eighty-five per cent of the funds for the program will come from federal and state sources, with 15 per cent coming from local sources, for a total of $10,860.14.

Ellis said the program will "provide badly needed services for human beings."

IN OTHER ACTION, the board:

--Approved the appointment of Mrs. Elaine Humphrey as a mental health clinician.

She will be assigned to Fairfax School to help develop a comprehensive plan for the management of emotionally handicapped children served by the school, and will provide therapy for the families of youngsters enrolled at Fairfax.

--Heard comments from Dr. Ellis concerning recent teacher appointments. He said that 200 of the system's 600 teachers are black, and that 24 per cent of recent appointments have been black.

--Recognized the high ratings received by five Columbus high school orchestras in the Ohio Music Education Association's state orchestra competition on Feb. 17. Awards were presented to the orchestra directors of North, West, Whetstone, Brookhaven and Northland High Schools.

Work-Study Program Expanded For Seniors

A new door has been opened to high school seniors taking part in the school system's work-study program. The students are being permitted to enroll in four courses at the Trades and Industry Center, operated by the Columbus schools at 278 E. Spring St.

The work-study program, conducted by the Department of Special Education,provides handicapped high school students with a combination of classroom education and practical on-the-job experience to improve their chances for future employment.

Until recently, students taking part in the program were placed in jobs to gain work experience, Now, however, seniors in the program will also be eligible for training at the T & I Center.

The seniors are being permitted to enroll in courses in seamstress and upholstery, building maintenance, construction and cooperative training. The classes meet daily for 16 to 24 weeks, depending on the course.

The daytime courses were previously open only to handicapped adults, but they were expanded to seniors in the work-study program through the efforts of Thomas Snyder, adult vocational education supervisor, and Mrs. Hilda Bess, former work-study coordinator who is now supervisor of special education.

Tom Bakes, a special education consultant, heading the work-study program, said the new move "is designed to improve the preparation of students for jobs in which they show a special interest."

Bakes noted that although seniors taking part in the courses attend classes daily at the T & I Center, they are still considered members of their high school class and are kept informed of class activities by their work-study coordinators.

The students meet with their coordinators once a week to review progress and receive additional aid in learning to cope with a work-a-day world, Bakes said.

The pilot project is to continue to next September when an evaluation will determine whether it will become a regular part of the work-study program.

Eastmoor Graduate Is 'Man With ESP'

The Eastmoor High School graduate has now advanced from magic and escape tricks to extra-sensory perception and hypnosis.

KELMAR, WHO is now a student at the Columbus College of Art and Design, has spent the past 11 years working with various traveling shows, performing for women's clubs, parties and practicing his art.

"After reading the book on Houdini, I became fascinated with magic and escapes and so I started trying to do some."

One of his more exciting escapes involved hanging upside down by his feet while wearing a straight jacket.

Kelmar said it was while learning to do the excape tricks that he began doing a type of self-hypnosis and from this he began hypnotizing others.

"When I use this in my act I usually have to call up several people to make sure I get one who can be hypnotized."

ONE THING led to another, according to Kelmar, who said he next became interested in ESP.

It was while working with the Jay Michele Show in Cleveland one summer that Kelmar began his study and practice of ESP.

"This man was a mentalist and I guess he was a big influence on me."

KELMAR BELIEVES everyone has ESP powers but that they must be developed. "I'm sure almost everyone can remember the phone ringing and knowing in advance who is calling or some other similar experience."

These powers must be constantly strenghtened, Kelmar explained, saying that he practices with the ESP cards of some other type of ESP experiment for at least an hour a day.

"I recently did my act with a spook show that performed at area theatres. This was mainly for the money, but I did get some good experience."

Kelmar said he's studying his art and believes in his talent. "I don't relate it to anything religious or supernatural."

THOUGH HE never performed as an actor, Kelmar said he was very active in drama while in high school.

"I was stage manager for many of the shows. I think this was a big help to me now that I've put together my own act. I'm demonstrating a skill but after all I am a showman."

Kelmar said he has done some study of the occult and witchcraft. "When you're in to ESP and Hypnosis, people just seem to expect you to know about witchcraft."

HE SAID HE hasn't gotten very involved, but said as a religion, witchcraft has to be respected.

"I do read tarot cards--though I've never read my own. I don't rely completely on the cards, but rather the feelings I get from the person. Most people who want a reading have some sort of problem they're concerned with and so it's usually pretty easy to sense something."

He said he trusted his feelings, but added, "I wouldn't base my whole life on someone elses interpretation. I'm glad to talk with someone and try and tell them what I see or feel, but I don't advise them."

KELMAR SAID he would like to perform as his profession but said he isn't sure it's financially feasible. "I'm studying advertising art and promotion and maybe I will be able to combine all of this."

Yorktown Teacher Heads Summer Tour

Mrs. Lona J. Loy, a teacher at Yorktown Junior High School, has been appointed teacher-counselor for Scholastic International's 1973 summer study-travel program for high school students.

She is now getting together a group of students whom she will escort for six weeks next summer.

The group will study Foods, Fashions and Furnishings at Rome, Paris, Copenhagen and London, where they will be based for 42 days. They will also tour Florence, Milan, Paris and Dijon.

Mrs. Loy explains that her goal and that of Scholastic International is to help students understand and respect people with customs and values different from your own; make friends among them; learn to speak another language; gain new maturity and self-reliance by living and learning abroad; and become a more constructive member of the larger family of man.

Scholastic Magazines, Inc., the parent company of Scholastic International, has served the educational world for more than 50 years.

It published 32 classroom periodicals that reach more than 20 million readers and cover every major curriculum area from language arts, social studies and science, to home economics.

Mrs. Loy states that students are fully covered by insurance and Scholastic International has carefully abided by the travel guidelines issued by the U.S. Department of Health, Education anf Welfare.

Madison School Board Okays Appropriations

The members of the Madison Local School Board Monday night approved the appropriations for the 1973 school year and approved a new plan for housing sixth and seventh grade students.

The appropriations for 1973 total $5,038,902.05.

THE BOARD also agreed that for the first time next year, the sixth grade students will attend class at the middle school.

Eighth grade students will attend the middle school in the morning and the sixth graders in the afternoon.

Superintendent Phil Williams explained that due to overcrowding in the elementary schools the sixth graders were being moved to one building, freeing more elementary classroom space.

THIS WILL then mean that the seventh grade students will be attending classes at the high school, which will also be on double sessions next year.

The 10-12 grades will attend in the morning and the seventh and ninth in the afternoons.

Exact time schedules haven't been set yet until the bus routes are worked out, Williams said.

UNDER THIS arrangement the students at the middle school and the seventh graders at the high school would not have lunch at school.

Williams said the reason for not putting the eighth graders at the high school was a lack of necessary laboratory space. "We've studied this carefully and we feel this will be the best way to house the students."

This type of schedule will continue, Williams said, for at least two years if the upcoming bond issue fails in May.

ALSO APPROVED by the board were four curriculum changes. The high school will now offer a third year of Latin, bookkeeping II for a full year, one semester of foods and clothing and one semester of family finance.

CAMOMILE TEA A HOME BLONDING REMEDY

. It will undoubtedly yellow your fading hair but it dese other things too. Home remedies are not always the best remedies. It's a better idea to drink your camomile tea and not put it on your hair. It puts a coating on your hair that makes it impossible to get a permanent and it won't take a set very well. Not even hard-to-hold hair-sprays are much good in holding a set in place. Also the yellowness of a camomile rinse reflects a kind of jaundiced look to the complexion.

Masquers Schedule Production

The satirical fantasy "The Wayward Saint" will be staged by Capital University's Masquers on Friday and Saturday (March 16 and 17) in .Mees Hall Auditorium.. Curtain time both evenings is 7:30 p.m.

The plot centers on Cannon Daniel McCovey (Neil Russell) who has been reprimanded by the Catholic church for acts which have led people to call him a saint.

He is sent to a nearby parish where he encounters Nicholas de Balbus (Gary Rhinesmith) who attempts to steal McCovey's soul and who tries to corrupt him and his friends by playing on their vanity.

The Masquers production is produced and directed by Prof. Allene Montgomery of Capital's department of sppech. Student director is Karen Stitzlein.

General admission tickets are $1.50 for adults and $.75 for children and will be available at the door.

Pool Patter By Peg Pierce

Torpedoes – The Columbus Jewish Center Speed Team hit the road to the Canton Jewish Center for a swim meet on Sunday, March 4th. The twenty nine members met at the Center at 10:15 a.m. and climbed into six cars driven by parents of the swimmers. The convoy of cars arrived at the Canton Center at 1 p.m.

The swimmers warmed up and swam a nearly perfect meet of 1 and three quarters hours. Canton out scored us but the fact that Columbus had only one disqualification on a turn was evidence that the swimmers are more conscious of their performance. Our main problem is that we have no boys in the nine and ten year old events. Coach Ralph Shibley is seeking swimmers for the next swim meets on Sunday, April 8th at Mansfield, Ohio and Sunday, May 20th at the Cleveland Jewish Center.

Rick Stein, Mike Paessun, Karen Saas, and Chris Wirth were appointed Co-captains for the boys and girls teams. The captains will assist in setting up the events and provide leadership while the team in on the road.

Many thanks to the following parents who spent their whole day to drive the team to and from Canton: Mr. & Mrs. Albert Dantzer, Mr. Phil Long, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Martin, Mr. & Mrs. Pietro Vivoli and Mr. James Williams.

Honorable Mention goes to the 11-12 year old girls 200 yard free style relay team: Missy Long, Ruth Miller, Alexis Robinson, and Nancy McFadden, their time was 2:25.3. The final score was Canton, 141-Columbus, 113.

"Ms" (Ladies') Health Club Oops—Carolyn Katz dropped something–2½ pounds and 4 inches in less than three weeks. Congratulations, Carolyn. Mr. Katz is a lucky guy!

All the gals at the Club are working hard to "shape up" for bikini weather or is it for the guys (husbands) who look at the bikinis?

We are setting up individual exercise programs for the girls and would like to give you the personal attention you need. Also available are group exercise and a Yoga class on Friday Mornings, 9:30-11:00 for Health Club members.

Navy Band To Perform At Area High Schools

Tidal Wave, the U.S. Naval Academy's newest rock band is coming to Columbus March 15, 16 and 17.

They will be performing at South High School, Northland High School, East High School and Marion-Franklin High School.

All the members of Tidal Wave are active duty sailors although, while on tour, they do not wear Navy uniforms but select their own attires and do much of their own musical arranging.

"The band's performing attire is just another sign of how the Navy has changed and modernized itself", said the band's co-leaders Musician Second Dick Glass and Musician First Larry Shirk.

They both noted that sailors are now making twice the salary that recruits used to make and receive such extras as medical and dental care, 30 days paid vacation every year, housing, food and automatic pay raises

Tidal Wave is a rock band with an emphasis on jazz. It features three trumpets, trombone, organ, lead guitar, Fender bass and drums. Their repertoire is drawn from contemporary sources such as Blood, Sweat and Tears, Buddy Miles, Sly Stone and Dreams.

The Navy's involvement in the rock sound was initiated by Lieutenant Commander Ned Muffley, leader of Naval Academy bands. The momentum is carried by Glass and Shirk.

"My job couldn't be better", stated one of the musical sailors. "The training was free, there is plenty of responsibility, travel and a lot of new friends along the way." "Not only that", added another musician, "but it's a real 'kick' to end your working day with a round of applause."

Mike and Marilou

COLOR me Christmas. That was the theme of Mike Stafford's personal gift to a few select male friends after he took that short walk down the aisle last Saturday and left the land of bachelorhood forever behind him.

The wedding of he and Marilou Fahrbach was beautiful.

The reception was loud and clear and things can only get better for our chief photographer and sports coordinator and his wife.

He has awards and trophies to show for his efforts including a top national spot.

THE GREATEST award, however, that has over come his way (next to Marilou) is in the person of many friends who bade him farewell (I never saw so many handsome single men and lovely single women in one place in all my life) to the swinging singles.

Mike's bride, Marilou, is lovely. She's Mike's gal and he's her guy - that's the kind of romance it has been and will always be.

Mike and Marilou were a busy couple Saturday. They were the typical young couple going from friend to friend with the love in their hearts bursting out, like June, all over.

WE WERE thinking this weekend how many people just kept going on like nothing happened at a funny, if that's the word, incident that happened at the reception.

The rocking and rolling band was swinging out on all decibels and would you believe that it was strong enough to rock and roll all the cake plates from the table in the room? Well, believe me, it really did!

We wish them the most happiness it is possible to wish people.

HERE'S TO you, Mike and Marilou, make each day be one Christmas after another-and for your personal information, Mike, up, up and away-know what I mean?

Miss Lucylle Welch

She Serves With Honor

Franklin County is fortunate to have fine universities in its midst.

We are even more fortunate, however, to have many dedicated persons uphold these ins titutions' traditions by continuing to serve the university and the community through service to others.

Such a person is Miss Lucylle Welch.

MISS WELCH was honored last week by the Otterbein Women's Club as its "Woman of the Year".

No one, to my recollection, is more deserving of that honor.

Miss Welch is a 1913 Otterbein graduate and is a charter member of the Women's Club that was founded in 1921.

She has faithfully been active in the club's Thrift Shop toiling in its vineyards, so to speak, every Wednesday, so that the less fortunate might have the opportunity to purchase clothing and other items such as small appliances and houseware (dishes, curtains, bed-sheets, etc.) for a fraction of their cost.

These items are all donated and the club members wash them, shine them up and do whatever is necessary to make them saleable.

"Looking Backward-Looking Forward" was the topic of her talk to the club at her awards dinner.

As we look backward we can remember many women who have served in like capacities helping others. We look forward with the hope that many more will follow in her footsteps.

Bless you, Lucylle, your contributions have reflected the good that so many of you have brought to others.

Probably Not

Is There A Better Way To Be Rich?

By Arlene J. Kimble

..I GREW UP in a big white double on South Princeton Avenue, within walking distance of Dana Avenue Elementary and Starling Junior High School.

It was a nice place to grow up. There were loads of kids to play with and millions of things to do. There was no TV then, just radio, so we learned at an early age to use our imaginations.

..SUMMERS ON the west side were charming. The smell of fresh cut grass, mingled with the many beautiful flowers the women cared for, gave a special sparkle and grace to my childhood home.

There was the ice man with his huge hook, lugging ice into Grandma's house on the corner, while we youngsters pilfered small pieces of ice to cool us in the summers heat.

The old trash man with his horse drawn wagon shouting into the early morning breeze so little ears could hear and rush down to the alley to sell bundles of papers and old rags for a penny a pound. We were at war with Hitler and Japan.

THERE WERE trees to climb, bikes all about the neighborhood that most kids were willing lend in case of a flat tire or other such catastrophes. There was sidewalk skating and a child couldn't have found a smoother rink surface than State Street at that time.

Summer nights were hot. These were the special nights when our mattresses were brought downstairs, and my brother and I were allowed to sleep by an open doorway.

In the winter, when the bitter cold came, the old coal furnace in the basement worked vigorously in our defense. Our home was always snug and warm after hours spent building forts out of heavy snow and then conquering our enemy with mighty snowball battles.

..ON SUNDAY afternoons there were the matinees at the Avondale and Dixie theatres. Twenty-five cents got you in and bought you a big box of popcorn to enjoy. Those were the days when all movies were for general audiences. Mothers didn't have to check the paper to see what you might be seeing.

On the way home there was Finleys Drugs store at West Park and Broad or "Doc" Arnolds at Brehl and Broad for a cherry coke for a nickel or a hot fudge sundae for fifteen cents if you were really loaded.

I went to work at Mt. Carmel Hospital in 1947. I was thirteen. It soon became my second home. I was a tray girl, among many. Two girls worked in each kitchen. We set up trays, saw to it they were delivered, picked up, dishes done and the kitchens were left spick and span each evening by 6 p.m.

SISTER LEO Xavier hired me four times and fired me three. I was learning what it took to get along in life. Sister was a marvelous teacher.

I was raised in a protestant home, but most of the girls I worked with were Catholic. On Sunday morning we arrived at the hospital at 6 a.m., rain or shine, for our split shift through the day. At 8 a.m. there was mass in the chapel. I always went. It was beautiful! I didn't understand all of it, but I knew God was there. I could feel his presence. Once mass ended I ran as fast as I could to the First Pilgrim Church on Cypress Avenue for Sunday School.

In later years, during conversations with friends, I discovered I lived in what was called "the bottoms". A poorer section of town; by whose standards I'm not sure. But believe me, if we were poor I loved it!

I HAVE nothing but fond memories of my west side home. Fond Memories. Is there a better way to be rich?

It's Wildlife Week

A YOUNG wood duck popping out of it's nesting box is as much a part of Spring as the annual celebration of National Wildlife Week, March 18-24. Soon he will grow to become one of our most spectacular waterfowl.

Photographed by Jack Dermid, this poster photo highlights the Wildlife Week theme, "Discover Wildlife–It's Too Good To Miss", this year's spring reminder from the National Willife Fderation.

Matching Grants Available

American Revolution Will Have Commemorating Funds

MATCHING grants in amounts up to $5,000 each are available to aid Ohio communities, organizations, and individuals in funding projects commemorating the bicentennial of the American Revolution, according to Robert Cedile, chairman of the Ohio American Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commision (OARBAC).

A total of $40,000 for such grants will be made available to OARBAC by the national American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

IN ORDER to be considered for a grant, an applicant must develop a program in one of the Bicentennial theme areas: Horizons '76, which calls for an improvement in the quality of American life by 1976; Festival USA, which covers programs aimed at increasing travel and tourism in Ohio; or Heritage '76, an attempt to increase the public consciousness of American history.

Sample projects which might be considered include new city parks, nature preserves, archaeological digs, historic restorations, museum exhibits, hiking or biking trails, publications, arts programs, and municipal beautification programs.

THE GRANTS must be matched by the applicant in an equal sum from non-federal sources. In order to be considered, the applicant must submit a description of his project with a complete cost breakdown and a notarized statement ot the effect that he has sufficient funds on hand with which to match the grant.

Submit the application to Tom C. Crouch, Administrator, Ohio Ajerican Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commission, Ohio Historical Society, Columbus, Ohio 43211 on or before Monday, March 26. Applications received after this date cannot be considered this year.

OARBAC will award the federal grants at a meeting in late March. Funds will be available in the Spring.

VD Hotline Available

THE COLUMBUS Advertising Federation and a youth group of a local health service agency are spearheading a p roject to combat Veneral Disease among teenagers of Franklin County.

Venereal Disease, according to Health Department statistics, has exceeded epidemic proportions among youth 14 to 17 years of age.

IN AN EFFORT to curb the incidence of VD, second only to the common cold, a Telephone Hotline has become operational.

"Since a major factor in a campaign of this nature is to get the word out, the Columbus Advertising Federation, was asked for its support in coordinating the promotion part of the program and we gladly accepted," said Sharon DeBord, Ad Federation Vice President and project initiator.

"The whole idea of the Hotline is to provide teenagers with someone their age to talk to in confidence," she continued.

The teenagers answering the phone have been specially trained by the Columbus Health Department to answer general questions and give information as to where medical help can be obtained.

Ward Adams, Ad Federation Project Chairman, noted that a complete advertising and public relations campaign has been put together with the cooperation of newspapers, radio and television stations, and many businesses and organizations throughout the community.

The VD Hotline (224-6944) will be operational Monday and Tuesday evenings from 7 to 11 p.m.

Shamrocks For Dystrophy

Saturday, March 17 is "Shamrocks for Dystrophy Day."

The traditional Irish shamrock emblem has three leaves because St. Patrick used the tiny trifolioate plant to explain the Trinity to heathen priests on the hill of Tara.

The green "Shamrocks for Dystrophy" tags being distributed St. Patrick's Day also have three leaves. They symbolize the three key areas in which Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America works to defeat dystrophy and related disorders — research, patient and community services, and public health education.

"Shamrocks for Dystrophy" tags will be on sale Saturday, March 17 in Franklin County. They ask you to extend a helping hand to kids with dystrophy and give a little green.

Flag At Half Staff To Oppose Abortions

To the Editor:

The St. Cecilia Parish Council, Columbus, at the suggestion of its Pastor, Rev. Joseph Buzek, voted unanimously to continue flying the school flag at half staff for thirty days following the official mourning period for the late President Lyndon Johnson.

Therefore, from Feb. 22 through March 23 the flag at half staff will serve as a display of sympathy for all lives terminated through the recent Supreme Court ruling on abortions, and especially for those lives so expeditiously and horrendously ended in our neighboring communities.

We cannot in Christian conscience agree with this decision nor withhold our protest that those seven men have indeed taken it upon themselves to legislate death sentences on innumerable innocent and indefensible human beings.

That these seven men: Brennan, Blackmun, Burger, Douglas, Marshall, Powell and Stewart be called honorable in regards to this infamous ruling, is completely contrary to those of us who believe that God-given life is a precious gift and that we have both the right and duty to protect that life.

Mrs. Charlene Casey
Secretary
St. Cecilia Parish Council

Easter Seal Help Will Be Appreciated

To the Editor:

I wish I had a dozen fingers and a dozen bodies to enable me to personalize my letters and releases to you and to let me also deliver them in person and talk to you.

Alas...there is only one of me to do the job of publicizing the Easter Seal campaign for crippled children.

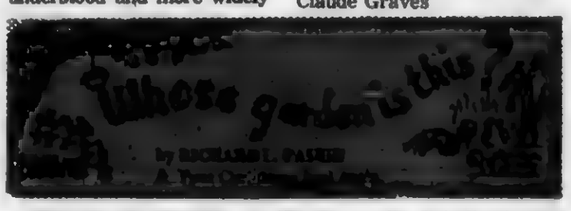
I honestly believe that our campaign is one of the most worthwhile campaigns for 90 percent of the money collected stays at home to give direct services to handicapped children. I hope that you will agree with me and will thus assist me in telling the public about our need for funds.

We thank you, over and over again, for your wonderful support in the past and eagerly look forward to future assistance from your newspaper.

Sincerely yours,

Jean Bieber
Director of Public Relations

Vocational Week Was Effective



To the Editor:

Thank you for your interest and participation in National Vocational Week, which occurred February 11-17.

It is because of people such as yourself that vocational education - its purpose and function - is becoming better understood and more widely accepted as a relevant part of our educational process.

I enjoyed talking with you, even though it was brief, and I am looking forward to working with you in the future. Please feel free to contact me in the future if you need further information.

Sincerely,
Claude Graves

TWELVE MILES west of Portsmouth, Ohio begins a massive wilderness of native Ohio hardwoods and conifers that stretch over 56,000 acres. Most of the area has remained primitive and few access roads enter the rich woodlands. This is Ohio's biggest claim to original virtue.

Turkey Run wends its way through rocky glens and shadowed deeps. Here it was that some modern American bent on proving the worth of pesticides, killed hundreds of thousands of fish by dumping a couple gallons of bug-killer in a beautiful lake. Understanding a person like that is beyond my ken.

IN THIS ideal bioto, the State of Ohio has built Shawnee State Lodge, a hostelry that rivals those of any setting in America. Constructed of towering timbers and stone, this 4.8 million dollar lodge awaits your visit.

Fifty guest rooms will place you in total comfort with all outdoors just outside your windows. With gourmet dining on the premises, snack bars, gift shops and pools everywhere, the original flavor of the surrounding hills has been preserved.

I MENTION this because the environment has suffered a minimum of disturbance during the construction and now during occupancy. The very feeling folks seek in the outdoors, the intangible something that fills us with nostalgia and "takes us back" in our lives, is still very much in evidence.

The original inhabitants, the Shawnee Indians, are depicted in two massive murals in the lodge lounge. The land was purchased by Ohio in 1922 and made into the Theodore Roosevelt Game Preserve. In 1949, the preserve and Roosevelt Lake were incorporated into the Shawnee Forest Preserve.

DURING the early 1940's, here is where the first whitetail deer returned to Ohio after over fifty years of absence. The first legal hunting (bucks only0) was in the Roosevelt lands in 1946. Slowly, the deer spread back over Ohio until, with careful game management, the herd is estimated today at more than the pre-white man era.

Although the whitetail deer is generally considered a "forest game animal", in reality, it prefers the farmlands and border browse of timbered country. Seldom found deep in the tall timber, the whitetails seem to remember when their natural enemies the wolf and bear lay in wait behind the towering oaks.

All these natural attributes are waiting just outside the comfortable cabins and lodgerooms for the weekend adventurers who want to show their offspring what Ohio was once like.

In early 1972, only 4,000 of the nation's 400,000 municipal police officers were women. Only a third of the 1,120 law enforcement agencies surveyed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police in 1968 had any full-time sworn women officers.

Pre-Registration Now Under Way

A pre-registration program for children starting school next year is now underway in all 127 Columbus elementary schools, according to C. L. Dumaree, deputy superintendent of schools.

Dumaree urged the parents of children entering kindergarten next year or those who will start first grade and have not been enrolled in kindergarten to contact their nearest elementary school for an appointment to pre-register the children.

Youngsters must be five years old by next September 30 to enter kindergarten, and children starting first grade must be six years old by that date, Dumaree noted, adding that the pre-registration is not necessary for children now enrolled in pre-kindergarten programs in the Columbus schools.

The pre-registration appointments take about 20 minutes and are conducted by the school nurse, Dumaree said, adding that the program is aimed at completing necessary school forms, checking the youngsters for dental or medical problems that might need attention and helping the children and their parents become better acquainted with the school.

The deputy superintendent said that if parents have them, they should take their children's birth certificate and record of immunizations with them when they pre-register their youngsters.

Under state law, children starting school are required to have immunizations against polio, diptheria, whooping cough, tetanus, rubeola (ten-day measles) and rubella (three-day measles).

Dumaree said the pre-registration program will remain open until the start of school next year, but advised parents to pre-register their children as soon as possible in order that necessary arrangements can be made to insure each youngster is prepared for his first day of school well in advance.

PTA Meets March 20

Sherwood Junior High PTA will meet Tuesday, March 20 at 8 p.m.

The program will be "Awareness Night" and a team from Teen Challenge will attend to present a program on drug use and abuse.

Jeanne Bray of the Columbus Police Department will also be present to give a demonstration to mothers and daughters on self-defense.

The Mixed Choir from the vocal music department will also be present to entertain.

Lilting Music Grecian Elegance Combined Make Success

By Betty Brown

Red-checked table-cloths, authentic Grecian foods and festive greek people, were what it was all about at the First Annual Greek American Festival presented by the Greek American Community, March 10 and 11.

The evening began as does any casual foreign evening with the slow lilt of easy music and extra fine food. Oozo, the liqueur of the greeks could be seen, bottle after bottle, along with one of the most delicious pastries in our country today, baklava. Honey nuts and butter, a mouth-watering luxury is a desert to be admired by all.

The "Agora" or marketplace displayed authentic Greek souvenirs, vases, statues and rugs. Also, there was a room, decorated to look much like the inside of a Greek village home.

Costumes were gay and bright, the atmosphere foreign and beloved. On into the night the public flowed in and danced to the sounds of Evonakia and Mike Kakias and his Continentals.

All proceeds went for the benefit of the church.

"In analyzing which country throughout history has contributed so much to the culture and refined dignity in the arts, I would have to give the Greek people a star. There originality and genuine spunk were there, snatched up by all and thrown back out, as a shimmering glint of Spring.

Swing Into Spring

RICK SPRINGFIELD—recording star, singer, composer.

WHAT BETTER WAY TO SWING INTO SPRING than with a bright new recording artist from Capitol Records. Rick Springfield, a young singer-composer from Australia, who is now beginning to make it big in the States, came out with his first album—"Beginnings" and his first single "Speak to the sky"—which prompted his name to be listed in tradepapers "as one of 1972's Best New Vocalists."

LANE BRYANT salutes Rick Springfield by declaring March "Rick Springfield Month," and will be displaying his handsome profile on photos and albums–plus playing his records in their Chubby Shop, all month long. Just for the record–there's also loads of fun and surprises–free albums and fashion shows.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

BREAKING THROUGH to the top of the fashion hit parade this Spring is the well-scrubbed Clean Look for Teens. Jeans, though still among the top ten, especially when worn with the newest looking tops, are being challenged for number one position by well-coordinated pants outfits. Even dresses are decidedly gaining in fashion status, both short and long.

LITTLE GIRLS have the best of two fashion worlds right now—an exciting grown-up kind of fashion, plus the little girl look. One grown-up way to dress is the ensemble—ensembles that have a sportswear feeling so that girls can wear them to school or for special occasions. The dress with its own coat adds fashion mileage—the coat playing a dual role in such styles as the trench, the smock, the shirtcoat. Sweater topped dresses are the "in" ensembles for little girls just as for grown-ups. The most "in" sweater is the short sleeve cardigan over the shirtdress. Little girls are well-suited in skirts, dresses, and pants, with their own jackets—short, cropped and blouson, or shirted.

TO STRETCH a point, little girls are waist-watching—elasticized and tunnel-waist pants, tops and dresses. It's a cinch for Mother cause she doesn't have to worry about misplaced belts.

AROUND TOWN

TWO'S COMPANY, and three's a crowd. Two's Company is the new act at Lincoln Lodge. With them, three do not make a crowd. Opening night, which was a Monday, they had at least fifty times three in the lounge.

Two's Company is a duo made up of Joanne Birks on Acoustic guitar and Michelle Marguis plays electric guitar. Now, right off, this may not sound very exciting to you. But, wait until you hear them in person, and I know you will change your mind. I did not get to Lincoln Lodge until late. And, when I walked in, many of the customers were telling me how good these two girls entertained. The audience was certainly enthralled.

After listening to them for awhile, I was, too, not because they are two charming female entertainers. I, like most everyone else in the place simply enjoyed their vocal and instrumental work. They certainly are a team. It would be difficult for me to say which is the best, or which is most important to the act. It is strictly a team effort, which results in some mighty fine musical treats. Both of the girls have wonderful voices. Their tonal qualities keeps you hanging on for more. Not only do they provide solid accompaniment for themselves, but the combination of the electric and acoustic guitars make for some interesting sounds.

ADD ALL of this, to loads of special material that produces an abundance of chuckles, and you end up with an act that is fun from the word go. They keep things rolling at a fast pace. I can honestly tell you that there is never a dull moment while these two gals are dishing out the entertainment.

Both Joanne and Michelle are young and attractive, which is a big help. Joanne, before forming a lounge act, has had much experience on the Broadway stage. She was in the original cast of the "Sound of Music". Perhaps, many of you saw her in New York.

IF NOT, then make sure you give a listen to Joanne and Michelle at Lincoln Lodge. These two girls definitely make Two's Company an exciting, entertaining duo. The crowds will be large and happy because of the company they keep in the persons of Joanne Birk and Michelle Marquis. These two girls will keep you company and well entertained nightly at the Lincoln Lodge Motel. See them, you won't be sorry.

MARCO POLO'S Lounge is named after the famous explorer. Owner, Mark Adams apparently has also become an explorer, at least in the entertainment field. This week and next, Mark has booked a group, Five Ring Circus. They are just that.

This quintet is one of the most unusual acts, regardless of numbers, two, three, four etc., that I have ever seen in show biz. They are so different, so unusual and so way out, that after listening to them for two hours, and enjoying it all, I still can't figure out that if they are a good or bad outfit.

Take my word for it, go see Five Ring Circus, because I'll wager you have never seen anything like them before. I haven't, and I've seen and heard hundreds of groups as a columnist. This quintet does do one thing, they hold your attention every minute that they are on stage. That's more than many of the groups can do.

WITH A NAME of Five Ring Circus, the impression one might receive is that it is a comedy act. Not so. At least it is not meant to be such. However, watch them, and you may get other ideas. A circus act, they are not, even though the act may tend to be a little on the freakish side. I say that in a complimentary way.

The fivesome consists of Al Marinucci who handles the vocal chores rather well. He certainly has a style of his own. Next, is Brien Conkler, the keyboard man. Brien plays electric organ and electric piano. Often, both at the same time. Brien is the real star attraction of the show. You have to see him in person, to understand what I mean.

What this bunch of circus people lack in instrumental abilities, they more than make up for in vocal work. I believe that you will flip over many of their vocal renditions. The harmony work is fantastic.

ALL IN ALL, I'll guarantee you, that Five Ring Circus will be one of the most unusual, fascinating lounge acts to hit Columbus in many a moon. Just for the fun of it, stop in at Marco Polo's some night. It's an experience you will remember for a long time.

IN THE PAST I have told you about the truely entertaining trio at the Marriott Inn. Without a doubt, this group is one of the finest for playing pretty, pretty music. Duke sounds like an exact reproduction of Nat King Cole.

I have also told you about the very delicious food at the Marriott Inn. Their dinners, as well as their lunches, are out of this world. It is one of the finest spots Around Town for dining.

Now, let me tell you about something else at the Marriott Inn, their Sunday Dinner. This is not something new for the place. The Marriott has been serving Sunday dinner for well over a year. It's just that I have never made it to the oasis of good food before.

SO, A couple of Sundays ago, I decided to see what I was missing. Mangaer Arthur Allis has been telling me for a long time about the informal Sunday dining.

Well, he certainly was not kidding. Before I go any further, I'll tell you this right now, dear readers, I'll be back again and again.

FIRST of all, no matter what you order from the menu, which is attached to a wine bottle, you get all the soup and salad you want. The soup served the day I was there was Italian Chicken Soup. It is served at a cast iron pot at your table. It's all you can eat. Your waittress will place as many cast iron pots of soup on your table as you can eat.

Next comes the salad. This is a build your own project. The huge salad bar contains many goodies for your salad. After heaping plenty of lettuce in my bowl, I then proceeded to take some bacon bits, celery, onions, egg, green peppers, carrotts, crutons, along with my choice of the five dressings. Of course, I took my favorite Marriott special, cream pepper dressing. This dressing is so darn delicious, I wish they would bottle it as a soft drink. I could consume a whole bottle.

BY THE time it came for the entree, I was practically stuffed. However, I really didn't have any difficulty in disposing of all my Chef's Steak Brochette. This is served on a screwer consisting of tender, succulent steak, hamand [illegible] peppers. The flavor is an absolute memorial experience. My dining partner ordered roast turkey and dressing, which included mashed potatoes and carrots.

Believe it or not, I couldn't, we finished off our meal with a large strawberry shortcake. Needless to say, we left the Marriott Inn pleasantly overly stuffed. And, for those of you who enjoy a cocktail or two before dinner, The Marriott Inn has a Sunday liquor license.

So, put food food, and plenty of it, your favorite

ACT II

By BETTY DRAGONETTE

There are a lot of exciting events coming up in the theater world in Columbus. Topping the list is the World Premiere of "Buzzards Bay", a new play by award-winning Lewis Colca. ACT President Bill Tumblin is directing assisted by Marion Hartlye. They have a fine cast, but more about that next week, after I have seen it.

I have a sneaking suspicion the author will be in attendance and definitely everyone who is anyone in theater around town will be seeing it, so join the crowd, call 345-3558 during the day or 345-7385 evenings for reservations.

The Players Club Golden Jubliee Birthday Party is Friday, March 23.

That's fifty years of serving Columbus with the finest non-professional theater available. For this momentous occasion their theatrical offering is Thoreton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" and in the Hello Dolly role they have Gladys Little Thomas. You can see it March 23-31 by calling 224-3971 for reservations.

Meanwhile, downstairs in the experimental theater, Angelo Dragonette announces his cast for "The Great God Brown", which will run April 13-28. Rainor Haeger plays Dion, while John Berg captures the title role. Joyce Long is cast as Margaret and Karen Lorenze will be Sible.

Tryouts: Gallery Players, 1125 South College Avenue, March 18-19 for "The Gingerbread Lady".

Village Little Theatre March 18 at 2 p.m. and March 19 at 8 p.m. for "Waiting For Godot".

Weathervane Playhouse - Bob Stegmiller will hold trouts for his entire summer season March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the 2nd Presbyterian Church at the corner of 2nd and Church St.s in Newark and again March 25 at 2 p.m. at Welsh Hills Players, 3 Wilwood Avenue, Newark.

Season includes "L'il Abner", "Carmen", "Dracula", "Carousel", "Of Mice And Men", "Tom Sawyer", Impossible Years" and "West Side Story".

Village Little Theatre, 1320 Cambridge Blvd. is doing "Blithe Spirit" March 15-17 at 8:30 p.m. Bob Weesner is directing and his cast includes Judd Lord, Marion Hartley and Jenice Jordan.

Something different for the singles. Cambridge Club in the First Community Church, at the above address Sunday evenings. Discussions at 7, dancing at 8. Try it.

Huntington Expands Bank Sites

Huntington National Bank will expand its round-the-clock Handy-Bank facilities to 11 locations starting March 5, according to an announcement by Arthur D. Herrmann, president.

Handy-Bank automatic tellers have ben installed in the following Huntington offices: Capital Square, Northland, Worthington, North Arlington, Westerville, Maple Canyon, Westland, Eastland, Brice-Livingston and the Hoover Road office in Grove City.

Labor Notes

Only two states, New York and Rhode Island, permit striking workers to draw unemployment compensation benefits.

Kash Kard System Available Locally

A new "inflation fighter", according to its originator, is now available in the Columbus area.

It's called "Kash Kard" and its originator is Charles Kemner, a University of Florida graduate who sells "Kash Kards" for $10 a year.

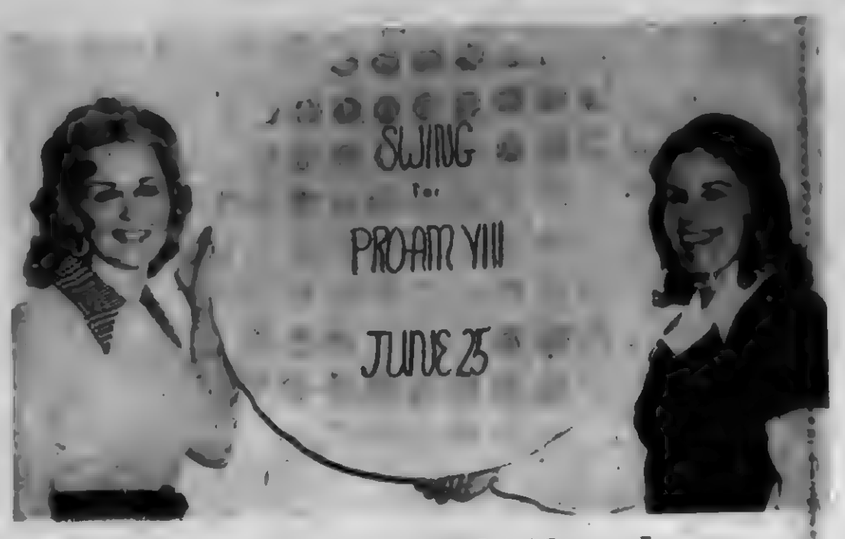
Card holdeers, Kemner pointed out, are entitled to discounts at hundreds of participating Columbus merchants.

Included are retail hardware, women's clothing, theatre, furniture, shoe outlet, pharmacies, dry cleaners and service stations of major oil companies, he indicated.

Kash Kard discounts, according to Kemner, who is the firm's sales manager, range from half off on tires to 25 percent off on diamonds to five percent off on meats.

Under the system Kemner has devised all a participating merchant has to do is give discounts to Kash Kard members who purchase for cash.

Kemner also publishes a directory listing all available discounts which he distributes to card holders.



Kemner said members get a money-back guarantee if they don't save the $10 price of card in their purchases during the first 90 days as a Kash Kard member.

Music, Variety Show Set For Grandview

Flippo the Clown with bluegrass, country and contemporary music performers, are what the Grandview Heights Country Music Association will present in the Music World Variety Show March 18 at Grandview Heights High School.

The show, with performers of all ages, will feature Doc Lemon, the "Midnight Cowboy" from WMNI, as the master of ceremonies.

Psaltery, playing folk and contemporary music, will appear with Dick Wolford and the Ramblin Rangers, Bill Carter, the singing chef, and Mike O'Harra, an outstanding drummer who has been blind from birth and several other acts.

Pro-Am VIII Ahead

CO-CHAIRMAN of the Women's Division of Pro-Am VIII this year are Mrs. William Bartley, left, and Mrs. Joseph Beerbower. Be Certain You Care For The Birds

Birds can be of great value to the home owner whether he lives in the city or the country. But, to fully enjoy their benefits, a little time must be taken to care for these colorful creatures.

A bird bath, a feeder and some work to plant shrubs and trees attractive to birds will assure you'll have plenty of birds to enjoy.

If you are interested in creating habitat, feeders, bird houses, bird study, references and birds of Ohio, Publication 37 is available from the Department of Natural Resources, Publications Center, 1500 Dublin Road, Ohio 43215.

Can Fish See Colors

Do fish see and react to different colors? That's a mighty important question to ask yourself when you're trying to figure out which of those different colored lures to plunk down a couple of bucks for.

It's my opinion that a fish does see different colors. With simple tests and observations it's obvious that fish can distringuish light from dark, and knowing that fact you can become a better fisherman and save a buck or two on the number of lures you might by.

If a friend tells me that fish are hiting a certain color lure, all I want to know is it light or dark. As an example I've had luck fishing light colored lures on bright days and dark colored lures in dark or cloudy days.

You might ask what do you use at night. Just what you're thinking. Dark colored lures. Just remember. Light when its light and dark when it's dark.

Eary Pike Fishing

Here is a tip from the Division of Wildlife. Anglers who fish Indian lake are encouraged to try their luck at catching Northern Pike during the early spring. Past test nettings have indicated a continued increase in the northern pike population. In recent years fair to good numbers of this species have been netted at lengths of more than 20' inches. Fishing the shallow areas of the lake with large minnows as bait should be very productive. Lucy's pond, and Bear Wallow are expected to be most productive.

Mad River Fishing

Paul Reuter, state game protector residing in Champaign County, recently advised that good trout fishing is taking place on the Mad River. Many of the Rainbow Trout being caught are ranging between 12 and 14 inches with several measuring up to 20 inches.(Jim Houser of Russells Point, Ohio recently landed a 19 inch, 3¼ pound rainbow on an artificial lure.)

The portion of the Mad River flowing between U.S Rt. 33, east of Belle fountaine and State Rt. 29, Northeast of Urbana is considered the most productive. The recommended baits include nitecrawlers, salmon eggs and cheese.

OLD RECIPE FOR FISH

Want to cook those fish you caught? If you cook them right away, they'll taste a lot better. Here's my quick easy recipe for cooking fish at home or while your camping outdoors. First filet your fish by removing the bones and skin. Cut your filets in two to three inch squares.

Next prepare a simple batter by using prepackaged pancake flower mixing in a little beer or water till you have a thick batter.

Dip your filets in the batter then lay them in a skillet of hot bacon greese or cooking oil. Brown on both sides.

Here's a rule to remember when cooking and kind of fish. Don't overcook, this tends to make fish soggy and fall apart.

Allow about six to eight minutes total cooking time. If you have a deep fryer use it instead of pan frying. This makes them taste even better.

It may sound a little odd to use beer and pancake flower for fish batter, but it's an old German receipe, been used for years, quick, easy and best of all it sure is delicious. Next week I'll tell you about a method I call "Fishing Around the Clock" that helps me locate and catch more fish.

Hunter Safety Courses Available

While conducting the awards phase of a Hunter Safety Course for the 7th and 8th grades at East Jackson Elementary School in Pike Country, State Game Protector Ralph Minter noticed two boys huddled together in one corner of the classrooom. Thinking that they had found a discrepancy in the test score, Minter asked, "What's the trouble, boys?" He received a rewarding surprise when they looked up with big smiles. They had come to school armed with needle and thread and were busily stitching their arm patches on their jacket sleeve.

Nearly every hunting accident can be avoided through a little knowledge, care, and preparation. Proper gun handling in the home, in the field, and to and from the hunting field is the objective of the hunter safety course. The fundamentals of safety with the rifle, shotgun, and hand gun will give the beginner a solid knowledge of firearms and the novice a chance to improve his knowledge and skill in the various sport s of hunting and competition.

Upon successful completion of the course, an Ohio Safe Hunter patch along with an identification card is awarded. This card is mandatory to purchase a hunting license in many states, and also makes the holder eligible for Ohio's Youth Hunt that precedes the regular Upland Game Season.

Interested persons are advised to contact their local Game Protector or Wildlife District Office as to further details and schedules.

Waterfowl Migration Under Way In Area

Game Management personnel of the Division of Wildlife, District Two headquarters, advise duck hunters and nature lovers that the spring waterfowl migration is underway. Canada geese, mallards, black ducks, ringnecks, scaup, redheads and canvas backs have been sighted on local waters.

Duck hunters especially should take advantage of the spring migration to brush up on waterfowl identification. The birds are less wary in the spring allowing close observation. In their nuptial, or breeding plumage, they look exactly like the illustrations in the field guides.

Migrating waterfowl will soon be a common sight on local reservoirs, ponds and borrow pits. Now is the time to prepare for next year's waterfowl season. A little field work this spring can result in a more enjoyable hunting season next fall.

KRAFTY KRAFT

IT WAS ALL CAGEY for Carl Kraft as he used finesse to get around this Big Walnut defender for a clear shot at the basket in the Lions win.

BRAMLAGE BULLDOZES

BEXLEY'S Tom Bramlage drove hard the full length of the game against Big Walnut last week that took Bexley to the District finals and an eventual win against Buckeye Valley. Bramlage is starting a basketward drive here that ended in a two-pointer. (Photos by Dan Unkefer.)

Columbus, Steubenville Are Game Sites

South, Bexley, Ready Seek Cage Titles

BEXLEY'S dandy Lions, Bishop Ready's well-rounded Silver Knights Columbus South's city league champions breezed their way into State Regional basketball playoffs last weekend with steady play the key to their wins.

Columbus East, the second place city league team, fell to Newark's tall and talented five Saturday and were ousted from tourney play.

THE Williams' boys, South's Brian and Mt. Vernon's Ted, were the big guns for their respective teams. Mt. Vernon's Ted won the scoring battle, 34-22, but Brian's Bulldogs won the war.

Quick baskets by South at crucial times gave them the lead at the quarter posts and they were really never in danger.

BISHOP Ready's defending Class AA state titlists were demons on offense and defense and routed Teays Valley, 101-77. It was too much height, too much firepower and too much all-around play that spelled doom for Teays Valley. The Silver Knights poured it on from the start and never stopped.

THE LIONS led, then trailed, by small margins but were on top when it counted most, at the end.

Class AAA
At State Fairgrounds

Friday, March 16, 5 p.m. - Columbus South vs Miami Trace and 8 p.m., Newark vs Findlay.

Saturday, March 17, 8 p.m., winners of 5 and 8 p.m. games play with winner to state finals.

Class AA
At Steubenville

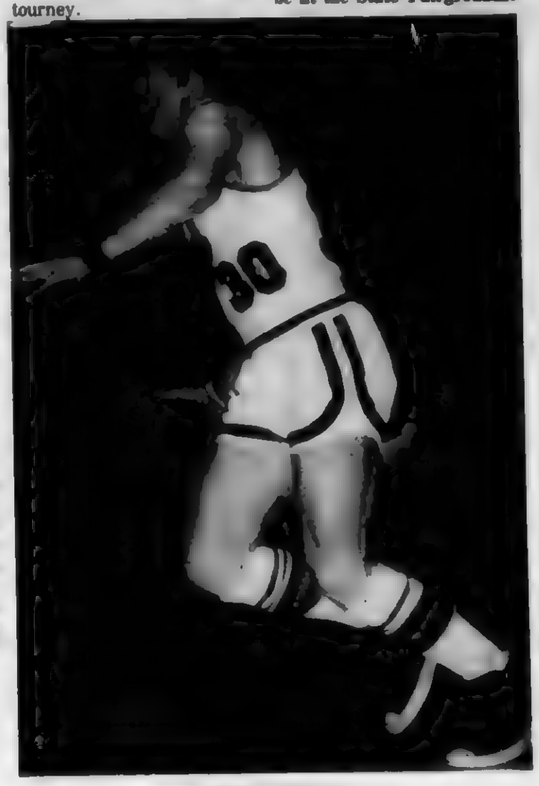
Friday, March 16, 5 p.m., Bishop Ready vs Wellsville and 8 p.m., Bexley vs Steubenville Catholic.

Saturday, March 17, 8 p.m., winners of 5 and 8 p.m. games play with winner going to state finals.

THE NETWORK: This is Bexley's first ever trip to the regionals and the Lions of Gene Millard might have come of age at just the right time to make a real run for the state title.

In Tom Bramlage and Carl Kraft, Bexley has the two big men necessary to stay in contention for any title. Mark Abramson, Jay Gray and Mike Mayo complete the fivesome that could bring the title Bexley's way.

Bishop Ready has wizard's at every post. Chuck Seipel, Jim Jones, Bob Cumberlander, Don Gardner and Charles Taylor should be ready to defend the Silver Knights' state Class AA title with the possibility existing that Ready and Bexley could clash Saturday to see who makes it to the state from the Steubenville Regional.



Columbus South should make a good run at the title as long as Brian Williams and company can continue their steady play.

It should be a dandy tourney.

Spectator Cameras To Be There

The Spectator cameras will be at the Regional basketball games at Steubenville and Columbus this weekend.

Sports co-ordinator Michael P. Stafford will be at Steubenville and others will be at the State Fairgrounds.

GOING GRIFFIN

SHAWN GRIFFIN provided Bexley with a lot of speed as the Lions outraced Big Walnut on their way to a District final showdown against Buckeye Valley. Griffin has been oneof the mainstays of the Lion attack.

At Worthington Saturday

beverage and expert service, such as Shirley Reames gave us, and brothers and sisters you have a winning combination. That's true for their informal Sunday dining, as well as the other six days and nights in the week.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Danny's Mannhole certainly got off to a flying start last week. Fronted by the well known Danny Mann, who also fronts the quartet playing there, Danny's Mannhole is rapidly becoming the fun spot to go on the east side of town. Because of conflicting schedules last week, I did not get to revew the group, Danny Mann and the Counter Revolution. However, with people like Ralph Craven at the organ, Ronnie Booth playing drums, Bobby Search with the horns, and Danny Mann singing up a storm, both you and I know it has to be good. This is a bunch of old pros, who have a big following Around Town. More next week about these fellows and Danny's Mannhole ... As always,the three Ramada Inns continue with top entertainment. Ramada North has held over the highly entertaining Snyder and Law. These are four young fellows loaded with musical and comedy talent. Ramada Inn South has kept the Sandi Scott Show. Sandy is a cutre little gal, who dies a lot of good singing. She is backed by three swinging musicians. At Ramada East, Two Plus One is still pleasing the crowds. Take your pick, you won't go wrong at any of the Ramada Inns. At Ramada Inn East, there is four days or nights of buffets, when you can eat all you want, for a verylittle price. Check the advertisement on this page, for the line up. It is allgreat dining.... Things keeps happening at the famous Vegasegas Club. Never a dull moment here. A band called Surprize provides plenty of fine music for way out listening and dancing. Action, and plenty of it, abounds at the Vegas Club. One thing I like about the posce, there is always lots of good looking gals around... For the best cheese cake in Columbus, try Charbert's on E. 12th Ave. They are world famous for their cheese cake, and rightly so. It is delicious ... Last, but not least, Foster and Ferrell who opened last week at Olentangy inn are just as good as ever. All of their old friends are stopping in and being well entertained.

RHS Contest Band Will Perform In Competition

By Mrs. Irene Guth

Competitive events for 66 entries 38 bands and 27 choruses at the Senior High District Band and Chorus Contest are scheduled Saturday, March 17.

Among these entries is the Reynoldsburg High School Contest Band to be directed by Daniel Nawrocki in the Hastings Junior High School auditorium at 2:30.

School enrollment determines the classification for the music competitive purposes. It is determined as of September 30 of each school year by using the total school enrollment of grades 10 through 12, inclusive.

Students registered in a full time Vocational School in a separate building are not included in the convention enrollment figure.

Since Reynoldsburg High School's enrollment total fell between 751-1200, it's Contest Band will be playing in the A-2 classification.

In any order that they prefer, all bands must perform one required song and two selected compositions - one of which may be a march or chorale.

All three compositions will be jjudged. Each band must furnish one complete score for evey adjudicatior with the measures numbered.

The RHS Band has chosen "The Bride-Elect", a march, for its warm-up number. This is an authentic original composition written by John Philip Sousa with a special drum arrangements by August Jelmecke, drum virtuoso with the Sousa Band.

Following this, they will perform the required song "Overture for Symphonic Band" lasting approximately six minutes.

It is an inspiring, firsthand compostion which opens with an idyllic movement becoming agitated, returning to a quiet section. The brasses announce an excviting Allegro movement, typifying the modern restless life to be followed by a philosophic Andante in which a flute solo is leading into the Allegro, with resounding Brasses and complete band in an exciting finale.

It was written by Bin Kaneda, a well-known conductor-composer in Japan.

After the production of his opera-ballet called "Mlada" which was based on a subject taken from Slavonic mythology, Nicholas Rimsky-Korsakov arranged a suite of five numbers from its music.

To conclued its presentation, Reynoldsburg band will play the last number from this suite entitled "Procession of Nobles" arranged by Erik W. G. Leidzen.

There is but one movement throughout best described as a brilliant polonaise tempo.

The work, while originally scored for the orchestra, is admirably suited to the idiom of the military band, employing the fanfare and pomp of the brasses.

The introductory eleven measures are for brasses alone, establishing the rhythn and announcing the motive. The woodwinds enter and are featured followed by the timpani.

A Coda development closes the song. The time of performance is approximately 4 1-3 minutes.

Each organization will perform the three compositions consecutively without interuption. Bands will be allowed 25 minutes time limit.

They will be timed from the minute the director of first player steps on the playing stage. If the organization takes too much time setting up or tuning, it will be stopped by the room chairman or adjudicatiors at the end of its allotted time regardless of whether or not it has finished its performance.

The maximum number of players for band in OMEA competitions shall be no more than 90 members diruing the playing of any one selection.

Sight-reading is required of all bands in District. It shall be administered following the playing of the prepared compositions.

It will be held in a different room with one adjudicator. The sight-reading rating is included as one part of the composite rating.

The director is allowed two minutes to discuss the music with the band after two minutes of studying the score.

The Five-Rating Plan will be used. Only a composite rating will be listed by request of the state committee and will be posted in an area near the office.

All 1 and 2 ratings shall receive a certificate. In thisd District competition, all groups receiving 1, will obtain an application for State Competition, level.

Eastland DE Opens The Lock

Yearbook Advertising Sales Has Key Technique

THE EASTLAND Joint Vocational Center Distributive Education (DE) class tackled a many-sided project the past several months.

It became an entry in the Creative Marketing competition at the state level of the Distributive Education contests.

Its uniqueness lies in the fact that the project involves the school's yearbook.

MOST projects in the Creative Marketing area competition have dwelt with more general marketing projects more in line with local business or community surveys.

Background

THE HISTORY of this Creative Marketing Project had its beginning three years ago. The Distributive Education Class of the Eastland Vocational Center was given the responsibility to sell advertising for its yearbook, the EMANON.

Students in the D.E. Class spent over 400 hours trying to sell advertisements. They sold $400 which averaged to only $1 per hour.

THIS showed a definite need for some type of special technique to be developed so less time would be spent and more money received. The advertising sales chairman asked the publisher for help in developing advertising sales. Little response was given to the students or the advisors.

The following year the Distributive Education Class devised a sales manual that contained various examples of ad layouts. Also, a "visual concept" advertisement was created to add a new idea to an old problem.

STUDENTS used this manual, plus a persuading sales pitch. Results were much better. Only 120 hours were spent and $1,450 worth of ads were sold. This averaged out to over $12.00 an hour.

This year the class wanted to find an even better method to use. This is when this project and survey came into being. A national survey of high schools was thought the best method to gain the information they needed about yearbook advertising.

Scope Of Study

The approach taken in gathering the statistics was carefully thought out to provide the best results.

A SIMPLE random sampling technique was used. There are 27,138 high schools in the United States. This statistic was found in Patterson's American Education, 1972.

Each high school, private, parochial, and public, had an equal chance to be selected.

A SURVEY was mailed to each yearbook advisor in the school selected with a stamped return envelope. Two hundred and fifty-five surveys were sent to reach the sample size.

They received 131 surveys which is a 51.4 percent return. This is only three short of our sample goal.

They include a sample page of Patterson's American Education, 1972.

A map illistrating the states of the United States with the number of responses from each state was also included.

Purposes

It was the purpose of the study to determine if the sales techniques used would have any effect on the total dollars sold by yearbook advertising sales. They wanted to discover if special training was given these salesmen, determine the use of prospect lists, and study the various sales features offered.

It was their desire that the results would help make the yearbook salesman better informed of sales needs. If he sells more, the yearbook will be better for the students, plus the publisher will sell more yearbooks.

Construction Of The Survey

The Distributive Education Class conducted its survey by mail December 20, 1972. This survey was to determine yearbook advertising sales techniques in high schools throughout the United States.

The final date for surveys to be returned was January 15, 1973. The sample size needed was 134.

Also considered were which groups of business purchases the most advertising, total amount of yearbook advertising sold last year, any special sales tools used, and was a prospect list developed.

SURVEY questions were developed by a special committee of five D.E. students. This form was pretested on fifteen teachers. Teachers are the ones appointed as yearbook advisors.

The Eastland Creative Marketing project was awarded a third place in the State Distributive Education competition last weekend.

EASTLAND'S Distributive Education (DECA) class took third place honors at the Ohio DECA State competition last weekend in the Creative Marketing category. Their project outlined a sales survey method for selling advertising in the school's yearbook. Carlynn Binkley, left, was the project chairman and Jan Dupler, right, was the representative to the state conference on leadership. That's the trophy they won with the bright Eastland DE banner in the background.

INTEGRATION ISSUE AGAIN

Board Splits On Busing Proposal

BY THOMAS B. CONNERY
SPECIAL STAFF WRITER

At the March 13 study session the board was presented with a busing proposal by a 13-member committee made up of teachers, principals and administrators.

The recommendations of the committee call for a three-phase plan which would provide transportation for students to programs or courses not offered in their home schools. To accomodate students taking part in the program, the school system's transportation capacity would have to be expanded over a two-year period, according to the committee.

Phase one involves an information program that would inform students and parents of the opportunities available under the new transportation program. In order for pupils to participate by September, this phase would have to begin immediately.

Phase two would begin in September 1973, and involves the actual transportation of students to the course or program of their choice. The committee recommended that six 66-passenger buses be purchased to implement phase two.

Under phase three, which would occur during the 1974-75 school year, bus service would be expanded to provide transportation to the first of the four developemntal learning centers and the career-vocational facilities to be constructed under the school building program. For the implementation of phase three the commiittee recommended the purchase of an additional 25 66-passenger buses.

According to F. T. Rudy, assistant superintendant of business affairs, who was chairman of the committee, the cost of the program would be about $502,000 a year. That includes the purchase of the buses, as well as the employment of additional staff to operate the three-phase plan.

The committee estimated that 3,700 students would be transportated under the program.

Students would be bused on a school-to-school basis, which means they would remain in their neighborhood school, but would be bused to other schools that have specific course or program.

The proposal stated that transportation would be provided "to the nearest school which would have improved ethnic balance resulting from the transfer and which would have classroom space for the student."

If schools could not provide transportation, private transportation would be allowed. In such cases parents would be reimbursed about $45.58 per pupil per year.

Supt. John Ellis stressed the voluntary nature of the plan.

Ellis said, "No one will be forced to participate against his wishes."

The committee based its recommendations on the board's July 18, 1972 policy statement on integration.

According to the statement, the schools are to provide students "the opportunity of integrated educational experiences." However, the statement says that "Such a goal does not imply the mandatory of forced transportation of students to achieve a racial balance in any or all schools."

The statement directs the Superintendent to develop proposals to implement the policy, and says "The first priority of the superintendent shall be the development of a plan to provide the transportation necessary to give all students access to vocational and career facilities and all special programs or courses offered by the Columbus Public Schools."

White board members wanted to eliminate the committee recommendation that would include the busing of voluntary transfer students in the program.

The voluntary transfer program has been in effect for several years, and permits a student to transfer from one school to another if the transfer improves racial balance at both schools.

White board members contend that by allowing voluntary transfer students to participate in the program the board would be permitting busing only to improve racial balance.

White members said that the purpose of the transportation program should be to make additional courses and programs of study available to students, with improved racial mix a probable outcome of the voluntary busing.

Black members disagreed and said that in order to carry out the July 18 policy statement the program should not be limited to students in special courses.

If the program is limited in such a way, Dr. Watson Walker, black board member, said that "we would be doing the same thing we've been doing for years."

White board member Paul Langdon pointed out that the policy statement calls for "integrated education through special programs and not through transportation."

Board member Virginia Prentice said that she would be able to accept the committee's recommendations if the voluntary transfer students are eliminated, and if use of the term "quality integrated education" is removed from the plan.

"I don't buy the idea that quality education means integrated education," Mrs. Prentice said.

However, Dr. Walker and Dr. David Hamlar said that they would not vote for the committee's plan if voluntary students were eliminated. Marie Castleman did not attend the meeting.

It is now up to Supt. Ellis to draw up a proposal based on the committee's recommendations and the board's discussion, and present it to the board for action.

AT OHIO DOMINICAN

New Degree Offered In Education Course

Ohio Dominican College today announced the inauguration of an Associate in Arts Degree (A.A.) in Early Childhood Education. Courses leading to the new degree will begin next Fall Semester and are open to both this year's high school graduates as well as older students.

Ohio Dominican is the first fully-accredited liberal arts college in Franklin County to offer an A.A. Degree. The Ohio Board of Regents has recently approved the Ohio Dominican College plan for awarding Associate Degrees in Arts and in Science.

Sister Isabel M. Charles, vice president and academic dean of the liberal arts college at 1216 Sunbury Rd., said: "Ohio Dominican's new Associate in Arts Degree in Early Childhood Education will offer a two-year program for those wishing to be better-qualified to assist in day care centers, pre-schools or kindergartens as well as in other positions which involve pre-school children.

"Additionally, credits accrued to achieve the A.A. Degree at Ohio Dominican College are applicable toward a Bachelor's Degree should the student desire to complete four years of college," she explained.

"Although this is our first Associate program, additional programs within our various divisions of study are now under consideration and will likely be added in the near future."

Potential candidates for the new Associate in Arts Degree must normally meet requirements for admission as a fulltime student at Ohio Dominican College.

Older students will be considered for admission on a special basis.

To receive the A.A. Degree a student will be required to complete 16 courses. Of these a minimum of six will be in the liberal arts, and a minimum of eight in the major concentration.

For further information about the new Associate Degree program at Ohio Dominican, those interested may contact the Admissions office at ODC, 1216 Sunbury Rd., Columbus. Phone: (614) 253-2741.

Pool Patter By Peg Pierce

The Columbus Jewish Center is proud to announce that the Franklin County program for the mentally retarded will once again be swimming at the Center indoor pool. The program will be held on Friday morning from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

An American Red Cross water safety instructor from the Alum Crest School, Ms. Marty Anderson, will be assisted by Mr. Steven Andrews also from the school and physical education teacher.

MR. WHORLEY HOGG has offered to volunteer his time to this worthwhile effort.

The school will transport the children to the Center by bus in two separate units of ten children each.

The Jewish Center members and members of the entire community are invited to extend their lives to join in supporting these boys and girls in the water. A person does not need to be an expert swimmer to lend a hand. All that is really important is your time and interest. The desired results for this type program requires a one to one relationship in the water.

The Senior Life Saving Class is now well under way. Thus far they have covered Elementary Rescues, Approaches, and Carries. Those persons enrolled in the course are: Robert Banchefsky, Carol Beitz, Barbara Campbell, Richard Gauronski, Lisa Harris, Letitia Hoffman, Jack McKelvey, Larry Bogante, Ms. Paula DeNijs, Ms. Ruth Harris and Phil Quinn.

State Tax Assistance Available

Governor John J. Gilligan said this week that Ohio's statewide taxpayer assistance program is proving very successful in aiding taxpayers who are completing their first personal income tax return.

Governor Gilligan said each week, since the program was instituted early in January, thousands of Ohioans have contacted agents of the Ohio Department of Taxation for assistance either in person or by phone.

The governor said agents of the Department of Taxation will be at various locations in all of Ohio's 88 counties on designated dates up to the April 16 filing deadline to provide taxpayer information.

Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar said taxpayers who have not received or have misplaced their Ohio personal income tax return (Form IT - 1040) can obtain additonal forms by writing the Ohio Department of Taxation, P.O. Box 2679, Columbus, Ohio 43216.

Kosydar said forms are also available at the department's district offices Columbus, or from agents participating in the taxpayer information program.

Help Change The World!

Through Literacy Evangelization

God's Word in man's language is a MUST if people are to know God's love for them in His Son Jesus Christ, and if they are to live God-pleasing lives.

But 800 million adults and teenagers are unable to read God's Word. 2500 ethnic groups are totally or almost totally illiterate. Most of these people have never even heard of Christ

The goal of the ALL NATIONS LITERACY MOVEMENT is to make disciples for Christ in all nations (every ethnic group) through literacy evangelization.

You can have a share in this vital and urgent task!

Absenteeism

PEOPLE who should have been there were conspicuous by their absence at two functions we attended last weekend.

One, in our role as Reynoldsburg Spectator editor, we attended was in recognition of Reynoldsburg teaching and non-teaching school personnel for tenure of service and dedication to the students.

The second was the fifth annual Franklin Heights High School cheerleading contest where 50 high school cheerleading squads competed in the season-ender for most of them.

WE THOUGHT more residents should have attended the teachers recognition program that was publicized thoroughly as open to the public with a dessert smorgasbord (free) to follow the presentations. Our unofficial count of residents at this function who were not either school or PTA connected only came to five.

This was a proud moment in the school personnel's lives and more residents should have been in attendance.

THE CHEERLEADING clinic would have been bolstered in enthusiasm more if some of the athletes for whom these squads have been cheering at football and basketball games would have taken time to return the favor. Columbus West and West Jefferson did have a few athletes among the rooting sections and we're sure some of the others did - but not anywhere near in proportion to the way the cheerleaders have supported the athletes.

Franklin Heights High School counselor Phil Momburg conducted an excellent contest. We'll go one step farther and say it was superior to any of its kind we've ever seen, read or heard about. He and his capable, loyal and dedicated staff deserve a warm round of applause for the enthusiasm they projected to the contestants.

HOW PROUD other parents or star athletes could have been to watch their daughter or girl friend or school supporter perform and compete for honors for her school.

Mrs. Adams and I were proud that our daughter competed and I made it a point to "assign" myself to this activity to be sure we wouldn't disappoint our daughter although we would have gone anyway.

UNFORTUNATELY, not too many girls who lost had the comforting shoulder of a parent to lean on - and many who won did not have the opportunity to share this happy moment with a parent.

It made us realize that too often we have done the same but now realize how important it is to share the wins and losses together so that as the Girl Scouts told us last month "Friendship doubles the joy - divides the grief."

Speed Kills. . Kills . . Kills . .

THERE'S conversation coming up in the Ohio legislature that could lead to a higher accident and fatality rate on the area's highways and byways.

It's a bill that would propose to raise the truck speed on Ohio highways from the present 55 miles per hour to 60 miles per hour.

NOW IN case you ask "What harm could another five miles per hour do, all trucks go faster than that anyway?" we suggest you make a personal contact with anyone who has in any way, shape or form, been involved in programs that have as the theme "SPEED KILLS."

Since we only heard the taped comment on a radio program last week and it could have been taken out of context (we hope) we won't name the individual involved whose comment indicated that it would be alright. This official should know better. All the other officials interviewed did not like the possibility of raising the speed limit.

SPEED KILLS, SPEED KILLS, SPEED KILLS.

Scales Of Justice Need Rebalancing

THE SCALES of justice will never topple provided those who mete out punishment are close enough to the crime to make a wise and sound decision.

Something seems to be amiss in the way sentences are being meted out when one person convicted on a, for example, drug charge, can have his charges dismissed or reduced (from felony to misdemeanor) while another in a similar case can be stashed away for a long period of time.

WITHOUT commenting on any circumstances of any cases because of our lack of information about any specific cases it still seems that some offenders are getting off too lightly, especially in cases involving to the greater extent-drug law violations.

It has resulted in the government coming up with a program of recommendations that would inflict harsher penalities on those who violate our Federal narcotic laws.

THIS SHOULD not be the responsibility of the Federal government. The responsibility lies within our own local systems.

When police put much time into this phase of law enforcement (much more than they probably should due to small staffs) and their efforts result in a slap on the wrist to the offender in one case and a stiff penalty in a similar case then they should be concerned even more about the problem or else throw up their hands in disgust at the judicial system.

WHEN PORTIA said, "The quality of mercy is not strained; it droppeth as the gentle rain from Heaven upon the place beneath" we don't think she was aware of a problem such as ours on drug violations.

"Drugs" have been dropping as "gentle rain" and the places beneath are the graves that dot our cemeteries where the tombstone should read "Died-Drug Abuse".

The efforts put forth by our police departments must bear more fruit than others re-issuing more pollution into the bloodstream of the individual and mainstream of the community.

Justice has been known to move sure and swift in other areas of crime - why not drugs?

It's The United Way

NOT EVERYONE will use their Easter Seals as a picture frame but cute Mary Nein, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nein, 1321 Shanley Dr., suggests that persons should use the bright blue seals on letters and packages. The seals, mailed out this month by the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children, represent help to local handicapped youngsters like Mary. Contributions may be mailed to: Easter Seals, Post Office Box 7166, Columbus, Ohio 43205. (Easter Seal photo.)

It's Easter Seal Time ; The Time For Giving

THE EASTER Seal Society is committed to help the disabled in this community and others across the nation. Its program provides services bearing upon the health, welfare, education and recreation of crippled children.

Put another way, the fundamental purpose of this voluntary health agency serving the handicapped is to help salvage the lives of those who may not walk or stand, speak or hear, as well as you do, but still are capable of someday taking a place in society as responsible and productive citizens.

SOMETIMES it requires no more than the strengthening of weakened muscles to make possible a fuller life. Other cases often require some form of long-term therapy provided by competent and trained staff. Through its nationwide network of facilities and programs, Easter Seals helps hundreds of thousands of handicapped persons annually. The Easter Seal Society serving this area, known as the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children, conducts programs designed to meet the rehabilitation needs of the community.

To help an individual triumph over a handicap takes encouragement, understanding, and operating funds. Each of us in this community has a share of the responsibility. The 1973 Easter Seal campaign is now underway. The fund-raising effort in this community is being conducted by your friends and neighbors in a door-to-door event, called the Easter Seal Parade March 30, 31, and April 1. We commend their activities and urge your full support.

It's WCVO FM Radio

The Christian Voices Ring Loud And Clear

By Carol J. Kehlmeier

THE SOUND of telephones ringing and typewriters clicking are heard along with the happy chattering of many volunteer workers.

This is WCVO FM radio, "Christian Voice of Central Ohio," Columbus-Gahanna. (104.9 m.c. FM)

Seven years have passed since the small group of Christians applied to the FCC for the frequency to broadcast the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the one and a half million residents of central Ohio. Their request had been challenged by others wanting the frequency. There were hearings and debates. Prayer and hard work won and today the Gospel is being sent over the air waves of central Ohio.

THE OVER $4,000 worth of equipment in the control room is leased to the station by a Christian man for $1 per year. The twenty-five year old transmitter was given to WCVO and overhauled.

It works well sendingout the Good News to many lonely and sorrowing people. The transmitter is known as Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, as its predecessors were some 2000 years ago.

The five acres of land owned by WCVO was donated, as was most of the labor and much of the materials. Today the paper work, telephone answering and leg work is done by Christian volunteers.

WCVO is non-profit, non-commercial, non-affiliated, interdenominational, interracial and non-governmental. The station is financed and supported by offerings, pledges, tithes, continuing church contributions, annual and life memberships, endowments and foundations.

The time allowed on commercial radio for advertising is 14-16 minutes per hour. On WCVO this time is used to send the Good News. The purpose of the station is to present the Gospel of Jesus Christ with simplicity, clarity and imagination.

THE APOSTLES' Creed is accepted by these Christians and their motto is "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15)

WCVO's trustees and officers consist of people from all walks of life. They are of all denominations from all over central Ohio and their purpose is to inspire the already Christians and to reach the non-Christians.

THE STATION signs on at 6:30 a.m. Bible studies are purchased on tape from all denominations. All kinds of music is played along with familiar religious songs. The subtle commercials for Christ are sandwiched between the programming.

At night the station is well-lighted and can be seen clearly from the dark country road. Atop the transmitter's tower is a twenty-foot cross, well lighted and can be seen for miles around. The cross was purchased with donations and it is a light in dark places to many passers by.

WHEN talking with the dedicated men and women at WCVO they tell of wonderful experiences since the station began operating.

People call and ask for help. "I'm an alcoholic. Can you help me?" "There is nothing left to live for." "My child is on drugs. What can I do?"

Tom Thompson, a dark-haired young man with a huge gold cross around his neck tells of a young girl who saw the lighted cross and stopped. She had been burdened with her younger brothers and sisters since the death of her alcoholic mother a few years before.

"It was strange, because she was looking for a road north of here, she saw the cross and stopped to ask directions. She was not only lost physically but spiritually. A very confused young lady. But there is hope." He nodded to a large filing cabinet. "She left her bottle of booze here. I don't know what to do with it." He smiled. "The Holy Spirit is working."

BOBBIE Patterson, a wife and mother has been in on WCVO since it's early beginnings. Her husband, Pat Patterson, is president of the board. She is filled with wonderful stories of people calling for help and receiving it.

"A young black woman called. She was in spiritual pain, needing guidance. Some callers don't know how to pray. Isn't that sad? But we're here to help them. This young woman was turned over to someone who knew her problem.

This is how we work person to person. People are tired of being numbers, they want their names back." She smiled and her dark eyes shone with joy. "I see wonderful things ahead.

THE HOLY SPIRIT is guiding us all the way." She gestured to the furniture in the room. "This furniture is saturated with prayer. We can't go wrong. It's great to be alive and we have to get this across to people. God is loving and forgiving."

THESE hard working Christians at WCVO know that Christ is the answer in today's world. They are trying to reach every man, woman and child with the love of Christ. Along with the cross atop the tower, these men and women are a light in dark places.

Navy Recruiting Got An Assist

To the Editor:

I wanted to take this opportunity to personally thank you for sharing with the Columbus community the remarks delivered to the Navy League during my recent visit. I am grateful for your time and efforts and fine coverage of this event.

Our success in creating a true All Volunteer Force in a zero draft environment will be directly dependent upon our ability to get the Navy's story across to our youth. Any services The Spectator can provide to tell the public the opportunities available to young men and women in the Navy, will contribute greatly to this goal.

Lt. Commander J.W. Shelton, Commanding Officer, Recruiting District Columbus, is my local representative. Please contact him for any material needs you might have.

Thank you for your continued assistance to the Navy and the interest shown in my visit.

Sincere best regards,
Emmett H. Tidd
Rear Admiral
U.S. Navy

Comments About Equal Rights

To the Editor:

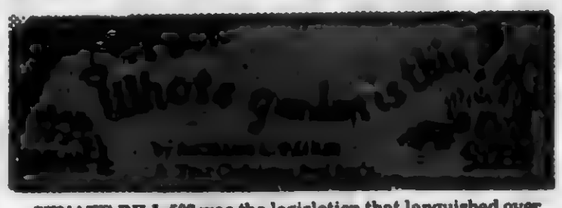
Because we now have the Equal Opportunity Act of 1972 which gives all women the opportunity to a job for which they can qualify, and because it has been upheld by the courts - we do not need the so-called Equal Rights Amendment.

On the other hand the so-called E.R.A. would strike down all laws now protecting women's rights for being uniquely women, such as their support and that of their children, Social Security benefits, pension and retirement benefits, and even the right of their children to their father's name.

What rights do we value?

Sincerely,
Jeanne Conte

Women's Guild Was Pleased By Coverage



To the Editor:

The extensive coverage given the lecture series held recently at St. Alban's Eviscopal Church, Bexley, is greatly appreciated by the Women's Guild, sponsors of the series.

We are grateful for the summation of the talks given by our four fine speakers.

I am sorry I did not meet your reporter at any of the lectures or learn her name, (Lynn Williams) but please convey our thanks to her also.

Yours Very truly,
(Mrs. Brooks P. Julian)
Lecture Chairman

SENATE BILL 563 was the legislation that languished over a year at the State House but died the last day of the 109th General Assembly for lack of a final vote.

It calls for the outlawing of marketing stuff made from endangered species of wildlife. It would mean the demise of whaleskin wallets, leopard coats, etc.

During 1968, 3,168 cheetah hides were imported into the United States, almost all going to the furriers in New York City for later distribution to fur salons across the country.

IT TAKES 4-5 skins to make one coat for my lady. If furriers and the public are left to their own selfish ways, the cheetah as a subspecies is dead. Only 400 cats are remaining racing around but there in the veldt, trying to avoid poison baits, traps and poachers.

With the help of Senator Clara Weisenborn of Dayton, the endangered species bill has been rewritten and again offered to the Ohio Legislature. It had its first hearing on February 13th before the Senate Agriculture-Conservation-Environment Committee.

New Senators on the committee who had not previously heard the bill were Gene Slagel of Galion and Thomas Van Meter of Ashland. Their questions were well taken and helped clarify the intent of the bill. Several amendments await the second hearing. There is much talk about reducing the penalties, they now stand at a minimum of five hundred dollars and not more than ten thousand dollars.

IN ORDER to become law, a bill must be heard twice by an appropriate committee of the Senate, voted upon by the entire Senate, assigned a committee in the House, heard twice by that committee, approved and placed on the docket and voted upon on the floor of the House of Representatives. It was the last action that remained to be done last December, after all other requirements were met.

The new endangered species bill, S.B. 35, was the very first bill to be heard by the Senate Committee. It will need all possible breaks if it is to become law by the expected summer recess of the Ohio Legislature. In order to make thoughtless Ohioans stop buying pieces of endangered species, everyone must do what they can.

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: Write a friendly letter to Senator Harry Armstrong, the State House, Columbus, 43215, and another to the Honorable Troy Lee James, Chairman, House Environment Committee. Ask these lawmakers to do all in their power to make sure Senate Bill 35 becomes law this spring. Threatened critters all over the world will appreciate your concern.

BE CAUTIOUS

In today's traffic, cautions the Columbus Auto Club-AAA, danger can strike from any direction--and that includes the rear. The frequency of rear-end collisions on slippery roads is a strong reminder that a driver should make more effective use of the rear-view mirror. This means, of course, that it's essential to keep the rear window completely free of frost, ice or snow.

Career Choices For Women

The Staccato Unit of the Women's Association of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra will meet at 8:30 p.m. March 26, at the home of Mrs. Wayne Gammage, 5656 Indian Mound Ct.

Dr. Sam Osipow will speak on the subject "Career Choices for Women".

Mrs. Michael Shapiro

Mrs. Michael Shapiro To Be Honored

Mrs. Michael Shapiro, past International President of B'nai B;rith Women, will be the honored guest of Columbus B'nai B'rith Women March 29 and 30.

A Presidents' Tea, with invitations extended to presidents of womens organizations throughout Columbus, will be held Friday, March 30, 1 p.m. at The Governor's Mansion. The purpose is to allow presidents to meet and honor Mrs. Shapiro.

B'nai B'rith Women's paid-up membership dinner will be held Thursday, March 29, 6:30 p.m. at Stoney Creek Country Club and Mrs. Shapiro will be the keynote speaker. She will be coming to Columbus directly from Israel and a trip to the B'nai B'rith Women's Children's Home.

A culminating event for a city-wide coordinated membership campaign, coordinated between local, district and national B'nai B'rith Women, it is the first time a woman of this stature in BBW has been to Columbus. There have been only 41 of these membership campaigns during a 7 year period throughout the United States, and this is the first time for such an endeavor in Columbus. It is because of the magnitude of this campaign that we have been honored to have Mrs. Shapiro come here.

The dinner will be honoring 25 year members of B'nai B'rith Women, those women who have brought 5-9 new members to the organization, and a special award, Club "10" will be given to anyone who has swelled the ranks by the addition of 10 or more new members.

B'nai B'rith Women has made a commitment--to be involved. Throughout Columbus their name has become synonymous with community service as they are involved DAILY with on-going projects such as Teach-a-Tot, Tell Me a Story, Mt. Carmel East, B'nai B'rith Youth Organization, Hillel, the Anti-Defamation League Doll Lady program, Amblyopia and Operation Stork.

Any President of any organization who wants to attend the tea, please contact Mrs. Milton J. Leeman, 3171 E. Broad, or call 231-8656.

A Whirl Of Pleats

MORTY SUSSMAN, for the Mollie Parnis Boutique Collection, designed this long red and white print crepe de Chine dinner dress.

SWINGING, SOFT AND SEXY IS THE SPRING FASHION MESSAGE. During the New York Fashion Showings, the models were having the time of their lives as they pranced on stage, turned and spun in a big circle of pleats. Everywhere you looked there was a pretty dress, abloom with soft colors and fabrics...brimmed hats, shorter hair, sandals and platform shoes. From all indications it's going to be a great Spring.

THE RETURN of the "pretty" dress is the big Spring story. The shirtdress springs up again and again in soft crepe de chine, jerseys, silks. The shape is softer with fuller sleeves, blouson tops, pleated skirts...the drawstring-waist shirtdress makes the sportive news.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

Tennis goes to town in crisp sparkling white dresses with classic stripe effects...it's a theme to sing right through summer, with a ragtime '20s beat. The sleeveless dress covers up with its own jacket, either matching in a suit effect or contrasting with bright pattern.

Watch for the comeback of the glamour dress...soft, bare and short...in halter or bare slip shapes, floaty fabrics like chiffon, heavenly pastels or navy. Keep your eye on the short blouson dress with full sleeves...often off-the-shoulder.

FOR LONG EVENING the emphasis is on femininity...Caftans in body-conscious jersey or chiffon...sophisticated ruffles on innocent pale organza...sexy long sweater dresses...halter dresses and spaghetti straps and slip shapes, as bare as we dare...the only evening pants on the scene are palazzo extravaganzas which look like a bouffant skirt.

THE SPRING '73 woman wants to look like a woman...liberated but loveable.. and designers have finally gotten the message!

TIPS on CLEANING

Mary says

Q. How can I clean up tracked in grease or oil?
A. Apply Solvoil. Place a soft cloth over the spot and use pressure by pounding with the back of a brush to absorb the oil or grease. Next, shampoo with Fiber Fresh, always working toward the center of the spot to avoid spreading it. Brush up the pile. Vacuum. For all your cleaning problems, call

..Midge Wallace, receptionist, and Pete Carney, are reviewing some current listings on a TV monitor. Pictures or movies are made on videotape. This is just like the instant replay on TV. In a short time you can visit many bo9mes without leaving ther comfort of your chair.

Park conveniently at the door when you visit the Carney's. You will soon discover that a real estate deal need not be complicated when you work with an experienced and reliable broker. So ... welcome to the Carneys. Or call 276-8216 for an appointment.

..Pete Carney has been in the real estate business since 1957, and has had his own business since 1966. He keeps in touch with the community and is active in the Masons, Moose and Eagles lodges and is a member of the Kiwanis. His firm is a member of the Columbus Board of Realtors, West Area Realty Association and subscribes to the Multiple Listing Service.

THE PROCESS of selling or buying a home has always been a time consuming ordeal for a lot of people. This has been mainly due to the inconvenience of showing property.

VLS, short for Video Listing Service, now makes this whole process of home buying much simpler. Now you shop for a home by TV.

THE CARNEYS, at 3546 Sullivant, are experiencing the advantages of VLS Real Estate Marketing. A trip to their office is all a prospective buyer has to do to determine what homes are right for their needs. Here are five good reasons.

1. It makes a home available for viewing inside and out by more prospects.
2. It eliminates showing a home at "inconvenient times."
3. It pre-screens prospects so that when a broker brings a prospect to a home for a first-hand showing, you know it is a serious buyer.
4. The videotape is available for a prospect's viewing in Carney's office virtually 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
5. It is available at no additional cost to either seller or buyer.

VLS is just one example why the CARNEY'S are established Real Estate brokers. Their 1972 sales volume of $2 million in home, farm and commercial real estate is evidence of the scope of their business.

AROUND TOWN

SINCE Diamond Jim's opened last fall they have come on like gangbusters. Booking top show groups in the country has certainly paid off for them. The excellent policy has produced crowds that darn near fill the place every night. Also, Diamond Jim's has become a popular afternoon and early evening cocktail season. You always run into someone you know.

NOW THAT the management has got things rolling in fine shape, Diamond Jim's has gone into another area. The Hoof and Horn Steak House is now opened. It is located in the part of the building that faces Beacon Hill Rd. One may enter directly from the lounge or through its classy entrance on Beacon Hill.

Once inside, you'll be surprised at what your eyes see. It is one of the cutest, nicest dining spots in Columbus. Occupying about one-third of the entire building, The Hoof and Horn seats about seventy for lunch and dinner.

IT IS decorated in French Contemporary motif. The color scheme is all green and blue. One end of the room has a raised terrace. It is very appealing and relaxing. The atmosphere is a beautiful blend of formal and informal. The Hoof and Horn is pretty, from the word go, but it is not stiff.

In the evening you dine by candlelight. And, what dining. Steve Bell, who has been the consultant, has arranged for all beef to be raise special for Diamond Jim's Hoof and Horn Steak House. All steaks are graded prime. The five local area farms are raising the beef with plenty of loving, tender, care. It should be the best you and I ever put in our mouths.

Besides steaks, there are lots of other goodies. There is a large salad bar, containing over ten seperate items. You build your own, selecting one of several homemade dressings.

TAKE MY word for it, Diamond Jim's Hoof and Horn Steak House is taking off like a skyrocket. I do suggest reservations. But, most of all, I suggest for the best steak in Columbus, you visit the Hoof and Horn. Prices will amaze you. There is not a steak on the menu that costs over five dollars. See you at the Hoof and Horn.

FALL INTO Danny's Manhole some evening and you will find a manhole totally unlike any other Around Town. The manhole I am referring to is Danny Mann's, located at 3408 E. Main, just before you enter Whitehall. For those of you who missed my story on this new swinging place, let me repeat and tell you that Danny's Mannhole is the former Pickles Lounge.

There, the resemblance stops. Danny has completely redecorated the club, including beautiful new red carpeting, and the whole works. It is a lovely intimate, cozy spot. Yet, it is not a small room. The new furniture, new bandstand and lighting has given the place plenty of class.

Also, making the Mannhole so enjoyable is the entertainment. The group is called Danny Mann and the Counter Revolution. Yep, just like always, Danny is singing up a storm. In fact, in my opinion, Danny's voice is like a good wine, the older it gets, the better it is. Danny comes on with a rich, deep voice that has a lot of wonderful sounds. Of course, Danny is an old pro. This you can tell by giving a listen to the way he handles both the ballads and up tunes. What a strong, dynamic attack he employs in his vocal stylings. The same can be said with the workout he gives the drums. His treatment of, "Caravan", is fantastic. Danny certainly rides the sticks, for all their worth.

Danny is backed very well with Ralph Craven, who does an outstanding job. Also turning in a fine performance is Horn man, Bobby Search. What tones this man gets from the trumpet. When Danny is not playing drums, Ronnie Booth takes over the sticks and brushes, doing a solid job.

I'LL guarantee you a come time at Danny's Mannhole. You will love the atmosphere, the decor and the entertainment. It is music that appeals to us older folks.

In the daytime, you also have a good time. With Kathi, a real show stopper, behind the bar, you can't go wrong. This tall, leggy red haired beauty is loaded with personality. Day or night, just lift the cover, and fall into Danny's Mannhole, there's none other like it in town.

FOR SOME time now, I have been telling you about the entertainment at the Ramada Inn South. Most always, they have the best in the business. This is true this week, with London and Lynn, a great group. However, this article is not about the entertainment. I want to introduce you to the new manager and the excellent food that is now being served at Ramada Inn South.

Jeff Luft is the new general manager. However, he is not new to the Ramada Inns. Jeff came to Ramada South from the Ramada Inn in Perrysburg, Ohio. Before joining Ramada Inns, Jeff worked with some of the largest restaurant and motels in the country serving as a consultant.

A native of Columbus, Jeff attended Missouri Military Academy and Otterbein College. His two favorite pastimes are snowmobiling and OSU football.

Jeff Luft is an exceptional man in this business. He is one of the youngest general managers in the industry. He feels that Ramada Inn has excellent food, service and entertainment. Amen, Jeff. He plans to make some minor improvements. But, most of all he wants to let the people of Columbus know what is really happening at Ramada Inn South.

So, in order to help Jeff achieve his goal, and tell you about some of the things he has done, let me tell you about the Friday night Roast Prime Rib of Beef Buffet.

BEFORE I go into detail and list everything that is on the table, just let me say this, it was the finest roast prime rib of beef that I have tasted in a long time. Also, everything on the table was fit for royalty. I find it very difficult to choose any one item I liked best. Everything was delicious, from beginning to end. There is a lot in between, that's for sure. Here are some of the tasty morsels.

First you build your own salad with bacon bits, lots of other additives and a choice of four dressings, including homemade pepper roquefort. Out of this world. Then there is Waldorf salad, Angel Fluff and Heavenly salads, chicken liver pate, that was really a taste treat, whole head of salmon dressed very decorative, fresh watermelon basket filled with melon balls, peaches and assorted fruits.

THERE WAS also marinated herring in creme, and an elaborate relish tray, fresh cut sauted asparagus tips and roulodes of ham polynessian. Boy, was this good. Last, but not least, The Prime Rib of Roast Beef. It is carved to your choosing, and served with own natural juices.

There was a lot more on the buffet table. But, space does not allow for a complete listing. Stop in some Friday night, it is an experience you will talk about for a long time. While at Ramada Inn South, say hello to Jeff Luft, he will be glad to meet you. Also, give London and Lynn a listen to. They are as good as the Prime Rib.

Fish Around The Clock

Here's a special way to cast artificial lures or live bait by what I call number casting. It will help you catch and locate those hiding schools of fish. Walk quietly to the shore and picture the face of a clock out on the water.

Cast your lure out towards the imaginary number nine position. Retrieve slowly, then cast out to the number (10) position, then to 11, 12 and on around the clock.

Start again by casting over the same numbers beginning back at the number 9 position. If you haven't had a strike by now, move on down or up stream and start casting again around the clock.

If you get a strike at number 10 or whatever number you find your school of fish. Concentrate your casting towards this number. This method sounds like work but it catches fish and helps to find those hiding schools of fish.

You know there's no real secret in catching fish. Experienced anglers all tell you the same thing. "Keep working your lures and keep them in the water". I've never caught a fish with my pole out of the water. Fishing is fun, but it's also work, very enjoyable work.

Downtown Columbus

A good place to fish two minutes from Broad and High if you know where the hot hole is. Hot water flows into the Olentangy where it meets the Scioto River from a nearby factory.

Bill Wentzel owner of R & R Bait Store at Whittier and Front St. tells me he has customers who fish the hot hole all year because it never freezes. Reggi Wallace recently checked in a 4 lb. largemouth bass he landed fishing with a nitecrawler in the hot hole.

Mad River

Saturday March 10, Bill Streisel of Columbus while fishing with his nine year old daughter, Patty, watched as she landed a beautiful rainbow trout using a nitecrawler on a spin casting outfit. It measured 20 inches and weighed 3½ lbs. Congratulations Patty!

Mad River is clear, normal and excellent trout fishing continues with anglers having more success on the rainbows than the goldens. Preferred baits for the rainbows include salmon eggs, nitecrawlers, small spiners and cheese. The golden trout are being taken almost exclusively on artificials.

Circleville Canal Trout Stock

The Division of Wildlife recently stocked the Circleville Canal with rainbow and golden trout. Stocking of trout in past years at this area has been highly successful with local anglers catching the trout well into the summer months. Springs augment the canal waters which allow for the prolonged survival of the trout.

Tom Weldon, State game protector residing in Pickaway County, will be periodically checking the area to record angler harvest and general success of the stocking. Local anglers are reminded the daily bag and possession limit on trout is 10 and that a 1973 fishing license is required.

Buckeye Lake - Normal at 60 degrees F. Anglers are taking largemouth bass on artificials and crappies on minnows. The Cranberry Marsh Marina reports 100 bass harvested so far this spring. The largemouth ranged from 2 to 5 pounds in size and most were taken on spinners in the shallow, vegetated areas of the lake. George Coleman of Reynoldsburg caught a 5 pound 3 ounce bass and Gary Seeley of Thornville landed a 5 pounder. Outlook - Good.

Hoover Reservoir and Tailwater Area - Normal. Anglers are making good catches of crappies and a few walleyes and largemouth bass in the seservoir on minnows and artificials. One local fisherman recently landed a 3 pound largemouth above the dam. The tailwater area is producing good catches of walleyes on artificial plugs with a recent catch including one at 20 inches weighing 5 pounds. Outlook - Good.

Indian Lake - Normal at 51 degrees F. Good catches of channel catfish, crappies, largemouth bass and northern pike are being reported. The catfish are being taken on nightcrawlers and cut shad, bass and pike on artificials and crappies on minnows and artificials. Suggested areas of the lake include Long Island, Old Indian Lake and Black Hawk. Garth Tallman and Ed Alltop, local anglers from Russells Point, recently landed two northern pike measuring 23 and 27 inches. Outlook - Excellent

South, Bishop Ready Seek Cage Titles Again

Columbus South (AAA) and Bishop Ready (AA) remain in contention for state basketball crowns after some slam-bang cage action last weekend in regional gamrs.

South tripped Miani Trace, 53-42, in the semi-finals Friday then took the measure of a good Newark team, 55-42, in a sterling second half display that outnetted Newark, 31-18.

South goes up apainst Akron Central-Hower Thursday, March 22, in the 5:30 p.m. clash.

In the 9:30 tilt Thursday, Cincinnati Elder meets Elyria, big winners last Saturday over 1972 titlist Cleveland East Tech.

The winners play at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, March 24 for the state AAA crown.

All Class A,AA and AAA games will be played at St. John's arena on the Ohio State campus.

Bishop Ready plays Bellefontaine Friday at 9:30 p.m. That game is prededed at 7:30 by the Elyria Catholic-Delphos St. John game.

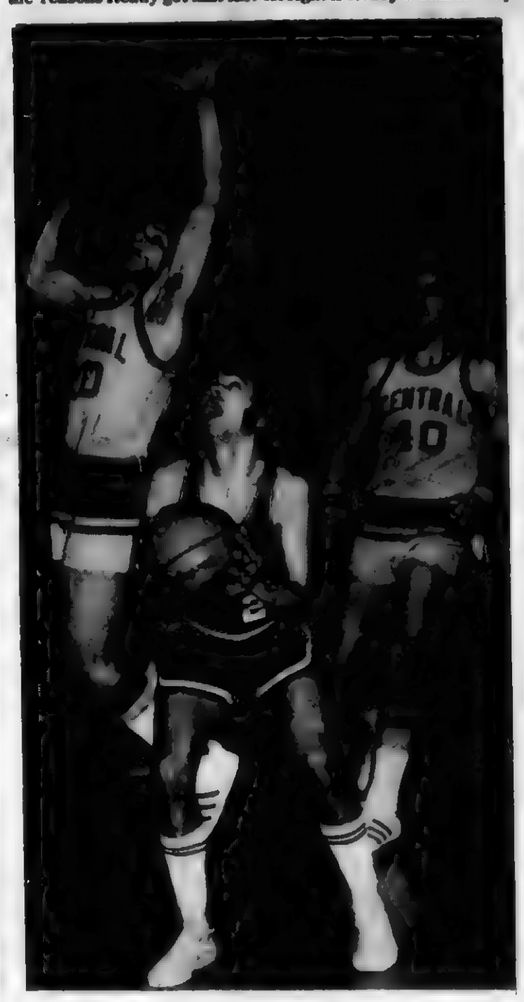
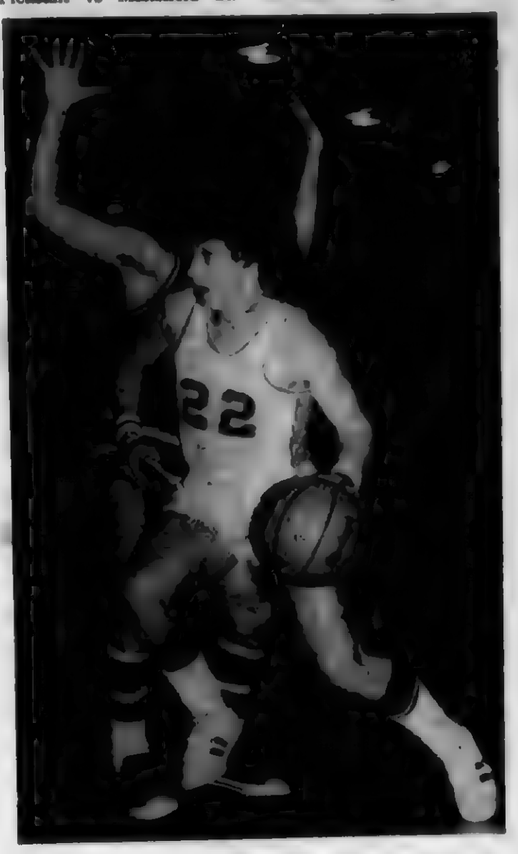
Those winners play at 3 p.m. Saturday, March 24 for the state title. Marion Pleasant (24-0) and Indian Valley South (25-0) are the only undefeated teams left in the state tourney.



WHERE IS EVERYBODY?
JAY GRAY, Bexley guard, was ready to pass the ball off from this tight situation but found the handle hard to let go of. He finally managed to outmaneuver the Steuby defender.

WALKER WEDGED
BISHOP READY'S Tom Walker was almost wedged between these Wellsville players before he broke loose to continue with possession of the ball.

ONE OF THE JONES BOYS
THERE were plenty of fireballs in Ready's double win last weekend that earned them a trip to the state finals in hopes of repeating their 1972 title win. Jimmy Jones, with ball, was one of the reasons Ready got that far. At right is Ready's Charles Taylor.



ON THE MARK
HERE'S a two-pointer by Bexley's Marc Abramson getting ready on its journey as two Steuby defenders make for the basket area. (All Bexley photos by Dan Unkefer.)

Gas is precious, pure energy.
Use it wisely.

Because natural gas has always been so inexpensive, there has never been a great urge to conserve it.
Until now.
Right now, there's just not enough natural gas to supply all the new demands for the cleanest-burning fuel.
Of course, as a gas customer, you don't have to worry about getting the gas you need for the appliances now in your home . . . or their replacements
But the shortage of natural gas, indeed, the shortage of all clean-burning fuels, is becoming a grave threat to our community's economic growth.
More clean-burning gas is desperately needed.
Not only to stimulate economic growth and provide more jobs, but simply to maintain current requirements.
A healthy economy needs natural gas.
And a healthy environment needs natural gas.
Use gas wisely in your home and business.
It's too valuable to waste.
And the gas you save, together with the new gas Columbia is working hard to develop, can help ease the gas shortage.
Write to Columbia Gas for the free booklet: "30 Ways to Save."

Karate Matches To Help Heart Fund

The first Heart Fund Open Karate Championship matches will be held March 31 and April 1 at the Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum in Columbus. Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the Central Ohio Heart Chapter.

Joe Hays, an instructor with the American Karate Association and one of the organizers of the tournament, said elimination matches will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 31.

The finals begin at 10 a.m. Sunday, April 1. Hays said the tournament would also include demonstrations of the techniques of self defense by some of the country's most renowned master instructors.

The unusual Heart Fund event was the idea of Mike Hixon, who is a first teacher with the karate federation, according to Hays. Hixon holds a fifth-degree black belt in karate.

By charging a $3 admission for the two-day tournament, Hixon and Hays hope to raise $12,000 for the Heart Fund. For ticket information, contact your local Heart Branch.

Charles Duo have just opened at the Anchor Inn. The Anchor Inn is under new ownership, and really going great. So is the Keith-Charles Duo. They are old favorites in Columbus, and are as good as ever. Wait until you see the two cocktail waitresses at the Anchor Inn. Both are from Norway, Inger and Turid. They can serve me anytime....Another favorite, Bill and Glenn are entertaining at the Satoa Lounge. They are one of the finest duos in the business. The best in music, vocals and their comedy have been known to cause many a repture... Remember Ruthie Roberts, that sexy gal singer who has worked a couple of spots Around Town? She, along with organist Jim Russell, guitarist Chuck Terri and drummer Ruben Young are currently appearing at The Sawmill Creek Hotel. I've heard them, and they are really entertaining. Even though Sawmill Creek Hotel is great place, with fine food, this outfit is well worth the two hour drive. They are now known as Terry and Her Pirates. A great group, that's for sure...If you are looking for an intimate place, and I do mean intimate and cosy, then Luke's Lounge is what the doctor ordered. Located on the Reynoldsburg - Baltimore Rd., just south of I-70, near Pickerington, Luke's Lounge serves excellent steaks. Or, just stop in for cocktail. It makes a beautiful place to escape from all the hub bub, and just relax. I love it ... This week at Marco Polo's Lounge is the Eddie Ray Company. The guy sings up a storm. This has to be a must on your entertainment agenda. More on them next week....The other evening I dined at the Dobbs. Not only did I have an enjoyable meal, that was delicious, but I had one of the most pleasant times I can remember. And, dining by myself, too. It is just an interesting restaurant, especially if you like planes, like I do. There is a lot to see while dining. The service is superb. I'll give you a complete story on Dobbs Hous's food next week. Meanwhile, don't wait, plan on dining there soon. It is great.

By BETTY DRAGSETH

Braving freezing wind, slippery roads and blinding snow, we started out on our journey down Route 161 from Worthington to Newark last Saturday night. We traveled through what must have been The Twilight Zone for an hour and a half - not knowing if we were on the right side of the road, or on it at all for that matter - and were still fourteen miles from our destination.

Even though I'm almost half Irish and my escort claims at least a touch of the olde sod (it being St. Patrick's Day and all), we di did not trust our Irish luck to get us safely the remainder of the way. We prayed hard, turned around at a lighted intersection and came home, missing the invited audience performance of the World Premiere of "Buzzards Bay". A more appropo title on this stormy night might have been "Blizzards Bay".

I later heard we were more fortunate than Ohio Arts Council chief Don Streibig. He ended up off the road. I will try again tonight to make that normally pleasant trip to Newark.

Director Bill Tumblin tells me, from all indications, the show will probably be held over an extra week. Providing, of course, they have full houses this week. The numbers to call for reservations are 345-3558 during the day or 345-7385 evenings.

Good news for those of you who have been fortunate enough to see Orlin and Irene Corey's Everyman Players when they were in town the last few times. They are coming back April 17 for a performanceof Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" at Mershon Auditorium.

Their big thing is unusual make-up and costuming. Unusual is a gross understatement. It is more like revlutionary. If you have never seen one of their productions, keep this date open. I have seen three of the six plays in their repertoire and eagerly look forward to this one. More about the particulars later.

The Discovery Series of the Junior Theatre of the Arts offers, as it's spring presentation, a musical version of Mark Twain's "The Adventures Of Tom Sawyer". This production of the National Theater Company of New York can be seen at the Ohio Theatre April 7 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A good outlet for your offsprings' pent up Spring Fever, this show should be exciting to the child in all of us. A nominal ticket charge, as usual, can be expected. With food prices the way they are, it's cheaper to entertain them than to feed them!

County History Published

The first comprehensive history of the founding of Franklin County, Ohio has been re-published in a limited edition by the Linden Heights Kiwanis Club. A few copies remain of the 3,000 hardback, 450-page histories as originally written by William T. Martin, Columbus Mayor in 1824.

Starting with the very first Indian kidnaps in the late 1700's, right up to 1858, when the history was written, the growth and settlers of every township, church and association are documented. The construction of the State Capitol, Ohio Pen and the first roads and canals are all covered.

Each printed page and each of the original woodcuts have been painstakingly photographed and the re-published edition is exactly like the first copies.

The remainder of the edition is for sale by the Linden Heights Kiwanis Club, those interested in a numbered copy may send a check to the club at 2860 Minerva Lake Road, Columbus, Ohio 43229. The price is $7.80, including state sales tax and shipping. Make checks payable to Linden Heights Kiwanis Club.

The re-print was numbered and limited to 3,000 copies. No more will be printed.

It's A New NAVY
Choice Duty Available For Former Navymen

It's a fact! Navy vets, men and women, can now select their duty before they re-enlist.

A new program called PRISE, for prior service, offers men and women who served in the Navy's more critical ratings benefits never before afforded them.

For a Navy vet who qualifies, and is willing to re-enlist for four or five years, the Navy will guarantee duty in the type of ship or other command desired and in the geographical area of the vets choice.

For the man or woman who desires shore duty immediately after re-enlisting, the program requires a six year enlistment. But the vet again can select the geographical location for this duty.

For more information on PRISE, see your local Navyman at:

Plans Ready For School Construction

Preliminary architectural drawings for two more addition and remodeling projects contained in the first phase of the Columbus school construction program were presented for approval to the Board of Education.

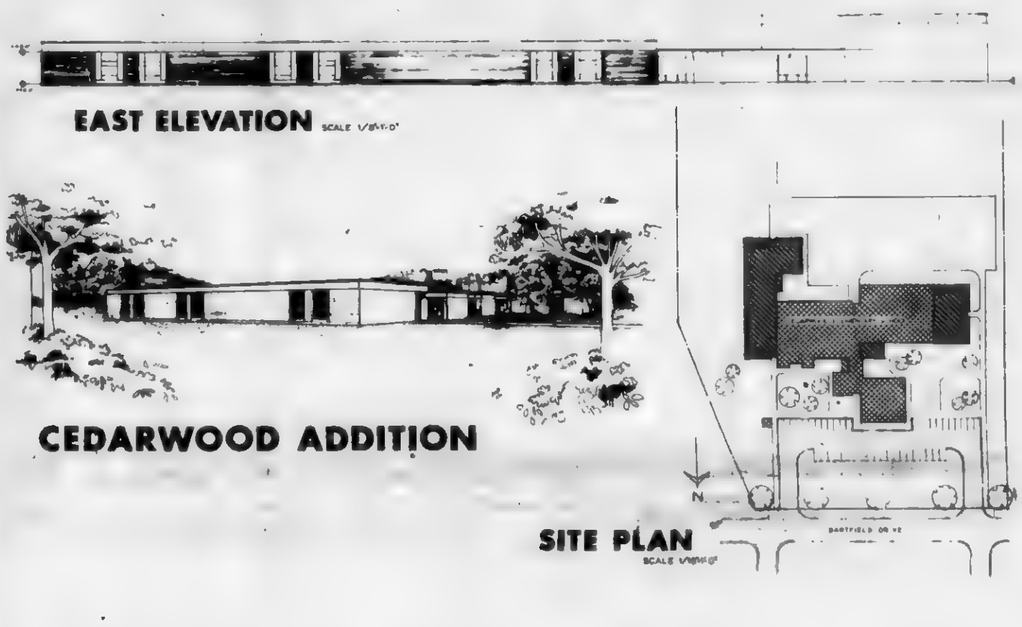
The drawings are for projects totaling $330,000 at Cedarwood Elementary School and $280,000 at Sullivant Elementary to provide additional classroom space, modern library-learning centers and other improvements.

DUE TO LACK of space, 10 classrooms of youngsters are currently transported from Cedarwood and four from Sullivant to attend classes in other nearby schools.

At Cedarwood, plans call for construction of additions to the east and west ends of the present building to give the school about 13,000 square feet of additional floor space. Additions to both ends of the building are necessary due to the size and shape of the Cedarwood site, according to David Jones, school architect.

The additions would house 10 to 12 new classrooms, depending on bids received for the project, and would allow for converting two present classrooms into a library-learning center.

AN EXPANDED parking lot and play area, additional storage space and other improvements are included in the Cedarwood project.



The project planned for Sullivant Elementary includes construction of an 11,000 square foot addition along the east side of the school, expansion of the parking lot and play area.

The new addition would house two classrooms, full-sized multi-purpose room, library-learning center, storage areas and a teachers' lounge. The school's present multi-purpose room would be converted into two classrooms.

THE DRAWINGS presented to the Board of Education Tuesday were approved by the Board's Building Committee March 12. The drawings were based on ecducational specifications for the two projects planned by committees of school personnel, architects, parents and community representatives.

If approved by the Board, the preliminary plans for the projects will be used by architects in preparing the detailed drawings used when the projects are put up for bids. Two to four months are required to complete the second set of drawings.

The projects presented to the Board Tuesday will bring to four the number of addition and remodeling projects for which preliminary drawings have been completed. Drawings for projects at Alpine and Devonshire Elementary Schools were approved by the Board March 6.

Rewards Offered For Information On Pushers

BY KATHY DEVANEY AND LYNN WILLIAMS

First of two parts on the TIP program and drug related information.

WANTED! Pushers. Rewards offered.

This idea remniscent of the Old West may prove to be an effective weapon in the increasing battle against drug abuse. The program called Turn In a Pusher (TIP) was begun the first of this year through the efforts of Ben Ogier, a member of the Northwest Kiwanis Club.

The program is now being sponsored by service clubs such as the Kiwanis , Lions Clubs, Sertoma, Exchange Club, National Sojurners, Mercator, Civitan and Ambassador Club. Collectively these groups are attempting to raise $100,000 which will be used by the police as rewards for information.

Basically the TIP program attempts to induce individuals who have knowledge of someone who deals in dangerous drugs and narcotics to turn this individual into a law enforcement officer in return for a reward," Chief of Police Earl Burden esplained.

The program is based on anonymity and gives the private citizen a method of helping without incurring possible danger by being personnally involved.

Captain Frank A. Peterfy of the Narcotics Division said, "A person with information about a pusher may call a special number. They will be given a code number for identifying purposes.

"The police take the information, make out a complaint and then proceed with an investigation."

Peterfy said the investigators have seven days to act on the complaint.

"If a conviction results or there is a large drug seizure, the tipster will receive a reward up to $1,000," Peterfy said.

The number to call is 463-4660. If the individual prefers he may send the information by letter to TIP care of the Mayor's office.

If the information is by letter, the sender makes up a code number of six or more digits and writes this number on both upper corners of the letter. One corner is torn off by the sender and retained as his identification number.

The rewards will not be paid until a conviction in court.

Peterfy said so far the program has resulted in 30 complaints, two of which proved to be good ones. "We received one call in February as a result of TIP and we recovered two pounds of hash worth $12,000." The informant was given $100.

TIP money provides funds to pay for information as well as to assist in making drug buys. It could also be used to pay the expenses of a non-police undercover investigator, Peterfy said.

"So far we have received some crank calls and we expect as the number of calls continues to increase up to 85 percent could prove to be this type. But if we get 15 percent that are legitimate then that's 15 percent more than we had before." he said.

Some of the names turned in are done so as a joke or for spite. Peterfy was questioned about the possible harm done these innocent people through a police investigation.

"Our investigators are very discreet. Although a record is kept of all names the information is vailable only to those in this department. A notation is made if nothing is found. If the name does not appear again in connection with drugs after a certain period of time the files are destroyed."

Peterfy was not specific on what that certain length of time would be.

The TIP program operates not only in Columbus but in Franklin and adjacent counties. Payments are limited though to Central Ohio.

"If we should get information about a problem outside this area we turn that information over to local police."

The Central Ohio program is based on a national TIP program which started in Tampa, Fla. four years ago. That program proved so successful other cities formed similar operations, he said.

The Justice Department last year began a "Heroin Hotline" Peterfy said there were drawbacks to a program carried out on a national scale. "By the time the information was processed and related back to a city it was often too late."

There is also a state program similar to TIP a run by the attorney generals office, but they don't pay rewards, Peterfy said.

In 1961 there were 44 narcotics arrests; 1962–77 arrests; 1963–40; 1964–60; 1965–68; 1966–88; 1967–133; 1968–241; 1969–352; 1970–690; and 1971–840.

(Next week the subjects of symptoms, punishments, and a special Narcotics Analysis Anonymous Program will be considered.)

License Disposal

Chief of Police, Earl Burden, today reminded local owners of motor vehicles that it is their responsibility to make proper disposition of their 1972 license plates.

During the period of March 15th through April 14th when both the 1972 and 1973 license plates may be used, carelessly discarded plates may be found and used unlawfully by other persons, the Chief warned.

Traffic Report Shows Dangerous School Hours

Between 3:30 and 4 p.m. on Friday afternoon in April could be a dangerous time for Columbus elementary school children, according to a study by Howard Wilson, the school system's director of safety education.

Conducted with the aid from the Columbus Division of Traffic Engineering, the study was made of 541 traffic accidents that children attending Columbus elementary schools were involved in during the six school years from September, 1966, to June, 1972.

THE ACCIDENTS, WHICH included nine fatalities, were those in whcih the youngsters involved were cited by police as being at fault, Wilson said.

He pointed out that the study covered accidents tudents were involved in at any hour of the day or night, o any day of the week throughout the school year and not just those that ocurred while they were on teir way to and from school.

The study revealed that more of the accidents occured between 3:30 and 4 p.m. than during any other half hour period of the day. More of the accidents took place on a Friday than on any other day of the week and more in April than in any other month of the school year, the study also showed.

ANOTHER MAJOR finding that Wilson termed "highly significant" was that over half the accidents occurring during the six-year period took place in a heavily populated four square mile area southeast of the city's immediate downtown.

The area is bounded by Clifton avenue on the north , Mithoff Street on the south, Jaeger Street on the west and Berkeley Road on the east and is less than three percent of the city's total area.

Only 16 of the school system's 127 elementary schools are located in the area, which includes many narrow streets and alleys and blind intersections, Wilson noted.

THE SAFETY EDUCATION director pointed to another finding of the study that showed the largest number of accidents resulting from a single cause was 211 due to the failure of children to use crosswalks. Traffic law violations by youngsters riding bicycles were responsible for another 133 accidents.

Twenty-six elementaries, including some of those in the four square mile high-accident area, were listed in the study as schools whose students were involved in more than an average number of traffic mishaps. Students in those schools acounted for 279 of the 541 accidents covered in the study, Wilson said.

The study, the first of its kind by the school system, is being sent to elenentary school principals, Wilson said, so they can see where the students in their schools fit into the overall picture.

HE PLANS TO urge principals to put extra emphasis on school safety programs in April, the month shown by the study to be the most dangerous of the school year, and hopes to refine the statistics used in the study to "pinpoint more accurately what we can do to improve the accident picture."

The statistics contained in the study were kept as part of the school system's Green Pennant Safety Program, which was started in 1966.

The Preston Davis Award is presented by Citizens Research at it's annual meeting.

The award is given to recognize and honor an individual who has made an outstanding civic contribution to the Columbus community.

Past recipients of the award are: Harrison M. Sayre (1968); J. Ralph Riley (1969); Robert K. Levy (1971); and Arvin J. Alexander (1972).

Nominations of possible award recipients will be accepted by Citizens Research to April 15, for this year's award.

All persons and organizations wishing to make a nomination should do so in writing.

Include the name and a concise but complete explanation of why the nominee should receive the award.

Identification of the sponsor should be included.

Nominations should be sent to: Preston Davis Award Committee, Citizens Research, Inc., 21 East State Street, Columbus, Ohio, 43215.

The standards for selection are flexible, but three criteria are suggested by the Award Committee:

Creativity: The basis for the award could be the implementation of an original idea that improved the community.

Long-Term Participation: Continuity in community activities and organization will be considered but will not be the dominating factor.

Leadership: Forceful and creditable community leadership in any field of civic betterment will be heavily weighed.

Questions About COTA Answered By Experts

The Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) through the "Transit Crisis Committee" has issued a series of questions and answers concerning the facts of the .8 mill levy that will be on the May 8 ballot.

The 41-question and answer series will start this week and continue through April 18 in order to inform the voters of the issue.

(First Of A Series)

What is COTA?

COTA is an acronym. The letters stand for the Central Ohio Transit Authority. The authority was created in conformance with a 1971 law passed by the state legislature. The authority has the responsibility for providing public transportation to the Central Ohio area region.

Who runs COTA?

COTA policies are established by a 13 member Board of Trustees. These are people from all walks of life. They have included qualified leaders of business, labor, industrial, legal and religious interests. They are not paid for their service nor are they allowed to profit in any other way from their service on the COTA board.

How do these people get on the COTA board?

In several ways. Eleven are appointed by the mayors of the cities in Franklin County and approved by the city council of cities in Franklin County. Two are appointed by the county commissioners. They represent all political subdivisions in the county. But none of them are politicians in a professional sense. They are just citizens.

What is the COTA board doing in proposing a property tax levy?

This community is in the middle of a transit crisis. If nothing is done to prevent it, the Columbus Transit Company will go out of business on June 30. If that happens many, many people in the community who depend on public transportation, and who rely on those who use it, will be in deep trouble. COTA is seeking approval of a property tax levy to enable it to buy the Columbus Transit Company, end the transit crisis and improve existing service. The property tax is the only source of funds made available to COTA through Ohio Law.

What kind of a tax is it and how much will it cost me?

The COTA levy is a property tax. It is for eight tenths of one mill. It will run for three years. In this area, property is usually appraised for tax purposes at 40 percent of its true market value. It will cost the average property owner about $6.40 per year or about two cents per day. It will appear on the May 8 primary ballot.

COTA doesn't like a property tax, either. But under the terms set by the state legislature the only way COTA can raise money to operate the transit system is through a property tax. COTA has pledged that during the next three years it will work to develop alternative sources of revenue for public transportation both from state and federal sources. But as of right now a property tax is the only alternative open to COTA.

Why can't revenue sharing funds be used?

Revenue sharing funds will not be used to keep the busses running, but, according to Columbus' Mayor Tom Moody, Council President M. E. Portman and other members of Council have gone on record stating that such a use of revenue sharing funds would not be wise. If revenue sharing funds were used in this way neither the city nor any other agency could qualify for the $4.5 million Federal grant that is a vital part of the COTA program.

Who is eligible to vote on the COTA levy?

Any registered voter in Franklin County is eligible to vote on the levy. A few voters in part of Licking County that is in Reynoldsburg and those living in the part of Delaware County in Westerville also will be eligible.

Alcohol No. 1 Drug Problem According To Psychiatrist

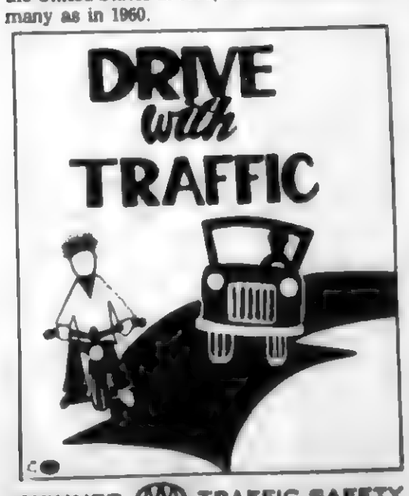
ALCOHOL remains the nation's number one drug problem, according to a psychiatrist who heads the Veterans Administration's alcohol and drug dependency treatment in Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. Richard O. Heilman said alcoholics outnumber all other drug dependent people by 20 to one. Among the young, alcohol is still the most commonly used drug by a ratio of at least two to one, he pointed out.

THIS RATIO will not be significantly altered until our society radically modifies its drinking attitudes and practices, Dr. Heilman told a group attending a three-day seminar at the Minneapolis VA Hospital.

Describing alcohol as a "powerful mind drug," Dr. Heilman said that anyone who responds positively to the question, "Is your drinking ever different from what you would like it to be?" probably is an alcoholic.

He said other clues are gulping drinks, drinking alone, preoccupation with being able to drink the next time, increased tolerance for alcohol, use of alcohol as a medicine, blackouts when there is difficulty recalling some of the events of the previous evening, and efforts to protect the supply of alcohol.



DR. HEILMAN is a faculty member of the University of Minnesota's School of Public Health and Department of Psychiatry and is a psychiatric consultant to Hazelden, a treatment center at Center City, Minn.

He formerly was director of the alcohol and drug program at Willmar State Hospital.

Bike Riders Increase; Dangers Are Multiplied

"IF YOU think you're seeing a lot more bikes on the road these days, it's not just your imagination," stated J. David Ryan, General Manager of the Columbus Auto Club-AAA.

"Eight and a half million bikes were sold in the United States in 1971, more than twice as many as in 1960.

WINNER, AAA TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST

Everybody–not just kids–is getting on the bicycle bandwagon: health enthusiasts, ecologists, and commuters, as well as people who just enjoy bike riding."

"This poster points out the one thing that bicycle fans, young and old, must be mindful of.

THE BOY is sharing the road with a car; except where there are special facilities like bicycle paths, bicycles must share the roadway with motor vehicles.

So, to make sure that you are not one of the increasing numbers of cyclist casualties, bone up on traffic rules before you go on the open road.

Remember to drive on the right, signal for all turns and stops, watch out for the drivers' blindspots, and keep yourself visible, especially at night.

Ryan encouraged the use of areas and bikeways in the area especially suited for bicycle recreation.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

State Representative Makes Statement On Equal Rights

To the Editor:

I SHARE with proponents of the "Equal Rights Amendment" a deep committment to equal opportunity and equal treatment for women.

However, the question before us is not "Shall women receive equal opportunity and treatment?"; but rather, "In what manner may equal opportunity and treatment for women best be assured?"

In other words, the debate is over a choice of means, not over ends. Because statutory means as well as the ERA are available to us to assure the desired equality.

PROPONENTS point to the simple language of the proposed amendment to the U. S. Constitution – "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex" – as evidence of the simplest solution. But, simplistic answers do not always yield meaningful results.

Constitutional amendments customarily state broad guidelines or directions for Congressional and State action. Statutes, on the other hand, address themselves in detail to specific concerns.

POLICIES to be implemented by either constitutional or statutory means may not be drawn out of thin air; they are dependent upon precise language. Here is perhaps the amendment's chief weakness – it is too simple to be precise, and too vague to clearly define its aims and purposes.

The amendment's ambiguity is of concern not only to lawyers, as evidenced by comments of the prominent newspaper editor who concluded that: "Well, we're all for the ladies, but even so, before we write some new words into the Constitution, it'd be nice to know what they really do mean."

I am unable to agree with those who argue "never mind the uncertainty of the amendment's effect, it's the symbol that counts." I take it they mean by this that adoption of the amendment will serve as an important symbol that the nation has made a committment to justice for women under law.

BUT THE value of a symbol usually lies in the fact that it is just that: a symbolic manifestation of a cause – not meant to be taken literally and analyzed precisely for its exact implications. We are not presented with a symbol – we have before us a proposed amendment to our fundamental law, binding for all times on our Federal and State governments.

As a result, we cannot afford to deal with symbols, but must instead carefully inquire into the actual changes society will experience should the amendment be ratified.

IT appears that it is possible to construe the language of the amendment in only one of two ways. Either it means that any statutory classification based on sex must be justified by some compelling reason, or it means that there may be no statutory classification based on sex. The latter interpretation, calling for doctrinaire equality, seems to be the one preferred by most proponent witnesses who appeared before our committee.

Ultimate adoption of this interpretation by the courts would result in mischief and downright absurdities. Women would have to be drafted for military service and combat duty equally with men, and state insurance commissioners would have to invalidate lower life insurance premiums for women even though they are based on women's greater life expectancy.

And, if the United States Department of Labor's proposed occupational safety and health standards, promulgated on July 12, 1972, are harbingers of things to come, separate restroom facilities for the sexes could no longer be required by state law.

ANOTHER way to state the problem is that this is not a "Women's Rights" amendment as commonly believed by the public, but instead deals with "Equal Rights". As such, it demands that men and women be treated "equally", i.e., as though there were no differences between them.

It would, therefore, impose a single standard of sameness on the position of the sexes in areas regulated by law, such as domestic relations, occupational safety and health, public school activities, social security, and military service.

Had the amendment instead been phrased in terms of "Women's Rights", then the amendment could be said only to seek elimination of discrimination against women, without the necessity of always treating men and women the same by eliminating statutory privileges now enjoyed by women.

FOR example, Congress has traditionally opted not to draft women into the military service. A "Women's Rights" measure designed at eliminating discrimination against women, would permit Congress to continue to exempt women from the draft, but would require equal treatment of women enlistees.

The "Equal Rights" amendment, however, removes Congressional discretion, requiring that women be drafted the same as men.

I believe that in light of the results that must follow, the distinction between the two approaches is real and is important; not theoretical as argued by proponents.

IF THE manner in which the amendment will be applied is in doubt, how about the human activities to which it will apply? Again, confusion carries the day.

While many seem to believe that this is a women's rights measure that will bring about equal opportunity and treatment for women in business, professional, marital, and political relationships, the amendment by its own terms has no application to these private affairs unless equal treatment is denied by a law or by a public agency.

It does not mandate equal pay for equal work, nor does it require private lenders to extend credit to women.

And, even in instances where equal treatment is denied women by statutes or public agencies, the amendment raises questions of who properly should be responsible for righting wrongs.

PROPONENT witnesses acknowledged repeatedly that this General Assembly has over the years done a much better job of eliminating discriminatory laws than has the Federal Congress. Yet, the amendment vests in the Federal Congress sole responsibility for enforcement!

Isn't it a bit baffling to contemplate the ability of Congress to muster a two-thirds vote to submit this amendment, but at the same time its inability to muster a simple majority to repeal discriminatory federal laws?

UNTIL passage by Congress last year, the amendment provided that "Congress and the several States shall have power, within their respective jurisdictions, to enforce this article by appropriate legislation." By amending the States out of the proposal, and excluding them from the enforcement function, the Congress asks us to surrender a very major portion of our authority.

I am convinced that we would be ill-advised – indeed, foolish to abdicate our authority and responsibility to assure Ohio women equal opportunity and treatment, to a legislative body with so poor a track record in this area. We can do it better.

I conclude that the superior route to assuring equal opportunity and treatment for Ohio women is through legislation directed to specific evils, rather than through a broadly directed and vaguely worded constitutional amendment.

LEGISLATION will prove more effective because it can attack specific problems in a detailed manner, because it can deal with areas of human activity not touched by the proposed constitutional amendment, and because it can be selective in retaining statutory privileges based on the very real differences of the sexes, at the same time it is repealing disciminatory statutes.

Congress and this General Assembly already possess sufficient power to alleviate discrimination now suffered by American women. The ERA would add little, if anything, to this power. We have only to exercise our responsibility to our constituents in order to see the end to discrimination based on sex.

I FOR ONE, intend to continue sponsoring and supporting legislation designed to assure Ohio women equal opportunity and equal treatment.

Is Anyone Listening?

By Carol J. Kehlmeier

THE OLD houses stood weather beaten and faded, their paint peeling away and bare wood showing through. The pavement cracked and crumbled from old age-not anger! Poor blacks and poor whites lived side by side. Men went out looking for work, women took in washings and ironings. Children were taught responsibility.

Children played barefoot in the streets. Putting a penny on the trolley track and retrieving it after it had been wounded was excitement.

ACROSS the street from the Italian bakery, filling the air with wonderful aromas, was the Roman Catholic Church where mass was said in Italian. Italians from all over the city came to worship here. They supported this poor parish so it might serve these people.

A few blocks away the First Baptist Church stood strong, touched by compassion for it's surroundings. Methodists, Lutherans and Presbyterians-loved their God and had concern for His people. If someone needed, they were cared for by these Christians. A basket of groceries, a bucket of coal and a word of love from a sympathetic pastor would see the needy through until brighter days.

TODAY the old houses have been cleared away. High rise apartments stretch above the city. People are crowded into the buildings on top of each other like animals in cages. Fear of each other has replaced concern.

The pavement has been repaired, the trolley tracks removed. Children no longer play barefoot in the streets, but sit in front of a television, listening as the mechanical monster tells them they must HAVE. Some youngsters go out and take.

BRICKS ARE thrown through windows in anger, human beings are attacked-there is no harmony. Need for human compassion crys out, but no one is listening.

Yesterday's poor had faces and were called by name. They had hopes and dreams of bright tomorrows. Yesterday's poor found comfort in their neighbors concern.

TODAY'S poor have no faces. They are called by number on a government check at the close of each month. The under-privileged are lost in high rise apartments behind locked doors. Despair has devoured their hopes and dreams.

"Who is my neighbor?" Ask the poor of today.

Hail To Cage Winners!

THE SHOUTING hasn't quite died down in the Bishop Ready, Bexley and Columbus South areas and rightly so.

Bexley advanced its farthest in history by getting to the regional semi-finals in Steubenville the week before.

It once again proved a point that area basketball ranks with the best in the state.

Absenteeism Hits Mark

To the Editor:

Dear Mr. Adams:

In regard to your editorial of March 21 on "Absenteeism", I thought it was a really wonderful article.

I had just been telling my 14 year old nephew that day about the same thing.

My mother, who had a family of 10 children, was never absent from anthing we children were in. This meant a great deal to all of us children.

My father came when he was not working.

I am always disappointed at church if the children's parents are not there when their children are in anything.

To me it is a wonderful thing to see a whole family coming to church on Sunday.

In my mind this "Absenteeism" has a lot of effect on the family as a whole, and maybe this is one of the causes of so much of the bringing the marriages to an end.

I do not have any children of my own, but I have tried to be a part of my friend's children's lives, and my own brother's and sister's children's and grandchildren's lives.

Keep up the good work you are doing with this great newspaper. I enjoy reading it every week.

Thanks again,

Mrs. Edythe Cornell Griffith

This Energetic Nation

BUCKMINSTER Fuller, inventor and principal advocate of "doing more with less", brings our modern day rat race into very clear focus. He states, "At any one time in North America, there are 2 million autos idling at red lights.

At an average of 100 horsepower each, that's equivilent to 200,000,000 horses jumping up and down all the time, going nowhere."

Think about it. Add to the picture, space in each car for five people that aren't there, plus the fact that a car is really merely a machine to convert scarce energy in the form of gasoline, into death in the form of air pollution.

NOW THAT you have an indication of how silly our systems of moving bodies and goods around might be considered, add the fact that the Nation's most influential power structures are determined to preserve this cartoon existence. Contractors, the makers of their supplies and machinery and the massive governmental boondoggles are all determined to blacktop the rest of the world.

Add the control inherent in the world's biggest corporations. Six outof the top eight as listed in Fortune Magazine are directly dependent of auto traffic being maintained. They are: in the order of their might - General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Ford, Mobil Oil, Chrysler and Texaco.

SPRINKLE heavily with the clout added by such groups as the American Auto Association, all auto insurance-writing companies, and of course, the steel makers who supply the raw product for auto-making.

Meanwhile, back in the kitchen, Bucky Fuller points out that while the water wheel was 90 per cent efficient, the standard piston engine is barely 15 per cent efficient. What we really have is an early means to the poorhouse and graveyard that works on a design now over 150 years old.

CAR MAKERS, petroleum companies and all the other named promoters of the 400-horse pollution machine, are doing what comes natural in denying new forms of transit the necessary research funds through their purchased surrogates in Washington D.C. and every state capitol.

These excellent businessmen know that once new systems are created, they will never again have it so good. One of the great ways to maintain the gasping status quo is to make sure property taxes are the only possible way to fund mass transit. In this day of high prices and a conservative swing, five levies will fail to every one success. Funding must be more innovative. Two cents added to gasoline, the use of lottery proceeds, added taxes for second and third cars in a household, as much as they would hurt, we must break the monster known as the highway trust.

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: Involve your United States Congressman in a meaningful conversation about federal funding of mass transit. Tell him you want some of the gasoline tax to be towards immediate funding of metro people-movers.

Speaking of Beauty

By MARY ANN

GOOD PEOPLE ALWAYS FIND EACH OTHER!

..Yes, they do! Of course we all go through experiences with a lot of kooks, too, before we settle down to a comfortable list of the people we want in our lives, but in time the right people find each other somehow. It was the psychologist, Joyce Brothers, who said that a woman's hairdresser is often an important part of her life'? If that's true then it's important for you to find the perfect hairdresser for you, isn't it.

..all we ask is that you put off your final decision until you've been to see us at least once.

Give Your Bathroom A New Look

It can be easy and inexpensive to give the bathroom a new look without replacing all the plumbing fixtures.

For example, a camper's knapsack can be hung on the wall and used to store surplus medicine chest supplies, sponges, soap or bathroom tissue. The birc cage makes an excellent container for a hanging plant. Wicker chests add extra storage space for towels and bathroom supplies. Damp fact towels and hand laundry dry nicely on a rack constructed from a child's wooden building toy. Different colored soaps can add splash to bathroom decor when displayed in wire vegetable baskets. Now ladies, it is possible for the new homeowner and apartment dweller to exercise an inexpensive and fun new concept in bathroom decor!

Sophisti-Coats . . . Always On The Go!

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

SOME PEOPLE SING IN THE RAIN ... others cry when it rains...or walk in the rain. But designers in New York make clothes for the rain, and they make money too...especially when they're creative designers like Max Adler.

MAX ADLER designs coats for Count Romi...the most popular selling all-weather coats in the country. In his Spring collection he gives chic women all the elements to play the fashion game and come up a winner every time. In fact, Count Romi "Sophisti-Coats" cater to a woman's many moods with enough fashion dash to take her smartly everywhere...day and evening.

THE SPORTIVE woman can go about-town or country in a casual well-bred coat. The lines are simple, plain and easy to wear, with soft tie belt. Shirtcoats skim the body gently, and tent coats flow freely from a narrow shoulder line.

AT NIGHT a woman can be as sexy as she chooses in a swishy silk column coat..a perfect cover-up for the new bare halter dress or clingy jersey. Cleverly she can add a turban or scarf to project elegance, softness and sweetness.

COUNT ROMI fabrics are irresistible...there's a soft, silky day-into-night imported French Poudrelaque, Qiana, silky poplins, imported gabardine, cottons and canvas in featherweights, for summer and travel. Patterns are basic, clean and crisp...geometrics, circles, squares, checks and jacquards, and a marvelous water-color print. Solid colors range from clear reds, navy and yellow to neutrals like sand beige and foamy white...along with a host of pastels.

DETAILS CAN'T be overlooked in this season of wearable, well-designed coats...subtleties such as dolman and ragland sleeves, shirred yokes, and round collars done in a reverse print...a bit of piping to outline a body shape, or a shiny button to add sparkle.

Best of all, Count Romi all-weather coats are protected with DuPont Zepel finish to repel rain, spots and wrinkles. Isn't that nice to know?

Qiana Twill is used for this charming coat, with unusual detail in pockets and buttons and tab sleeves.

Gallery Players Plan 'The Price'

One of the most wrenching situations of life--the selling of old furnture, heirlooms, and knick-knackw out of one's choldhood home--is at the center of the widely-acclaimed drama, Arthur Miller's "The Price", which will receive it's Columbus premiere by Gallery Players at The Jewish Center, 1125 College Ave., on March 31. Subsequent performances are on April 1,4,5,7 & 8.

Two brothers, who had grown up among the now-moldering splendors of the old house, but have not spoken to each other for years, meet in the attic of the home to dispose of the furnishings. What has been stored in the attic are not only the relics of the past, but memoreis, rivalreis, decisions made, hatreds generated and guilts nututed.

"The Price" tells of their explosive confrontation, tading accusations and recriminations over which of them had been more selfish when their father was ruined in the depression. For one of them had deserted the sinking old man and had gone on to become a rich and successful surgeion. The other sacrificed all-dropped out of college and gave up a promising career to become an embittered policeman.

Now, many years later they sear each other again as they examine their own lives and the prices they paid for their earlier decisions.

Joe Hietter and Graydon Goss will appear as the two brothers, Harry Schulbert will portray an extraordinary 89 year-old furniture dealer wo comes to buy their furniture and becomes involved in their past, and Lil Strouss will play the role of the policeman's resentful wife.

"The Price" is being directed by Harold M. Eisenstein. The set, which is almost a fifth character, has been designed by Allan Gundersheimer, assisted by Al Tyroler. Heb Wasserstrom is stage managing the production and the lighting is by Cliff Hirschman.

AROUND TOWN

The Olentangy Inn, after having hit almost rock bottom in popularity, food and entertainment, is rapidly becoming the place to go to, again. It is unbelievable what has happen to the OI in the past four or five weeks.

The home office has sent a trouble shooter in to revamp the entire operation and to assist the local manager, who inherited a very bad situation, in making the Olentangy Inn Motel like it used to be several years ago. It took several years to tear down this great institution. But, it has only taken Jack Starnes and his staff a few short weeks to bring it back up. Impossible, you might say. No way.

First, one of the finest duos in the country, Foster and Ferrell is currently providing the entertainment. Secondly, there is an entire new menu, both for lunch and dinner. You now can get a beautiful full course lunch that cost around two dollars. Quality can't be beaten. In the food and beverage areas, there is an entire new staff. I had lunch there last week, and it took me several minutes to find a place to park my car.

The same is true in the evenings. The lounge is bringing back many of the old time regulars who use to frequent the spot. Of course, one of the reasons is Foster and Ferrell.

These two are favorites among the night people of Columbus. While they have not appeared in town for a couple of years, their hundreds of followers still remember them.

Both Foster and Ferrell just seem to get better as times rolls on. They have a super fast lounge act with all the elements it takes to be successful. They play all types of songs, from the oldies to the new ones, including the best in country and western, along with plenty of special humorous material.

Ted, who handles the rythym section and vocals, is singing better than ever. He has a big, full voice with excellent control. Mardell owns a voice with such tremendous toanl quality, that it can very easily sends chills up and down your back.

She is great, be it ballads or jump tunes. She has one of the most uniques sounding voices in the business. At the piano, this girl is a real whiz bang.

I am convinced that you could tour the country and not find a male or female with any more talent at the black and whites as this one. You name it and she can play it profoundly.

Not only is she master, Mardell is equally a showman. When she shifts into high gear and goes into her windmill act, her fingers fly at least three feet up and down on the keys. When she cuts loose on a jump tune, the piano does just that.

Her hands move faster than a first rate pickpocket. Then, she'll turn a round and play one of the most beautiful sounding organs you ever want to hear. When both are played at the same time, along with the wonderfull vocal blendings of hers and Ted's, you hear pretty, pretty music.

Not all of their music is in this vain. A lot of it is just plain fun type music. Add Ted's clowning, his superb drum work, along with his vocals, and you end up with a rock 'em, sock 'em duo. As I have said for many years, Foster and Ferrell are the most dynamic duo in show business.

This is one act that has to be a must on your entertainment schedule. Drop in some evening, Tuesday through Sunday at the Olentangy Inn. I know you will enjoy them, while at the same time, be amazed at the all new Olentangy Inn. It's like stepping back five years ago.

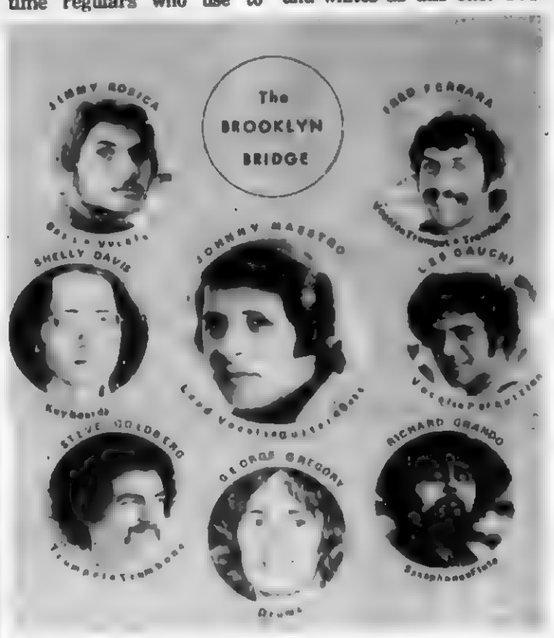
I have told you about the Dobbs House several times in the past. But, after having dinner there last week, I feel I must tell you, dear readers, about the tremendous meal, and the enjoyable experience awaited me.

Now, for a meal to be enjoyable, it must be good. But, if you are like I am, to dine by yourself, like I did, and still had a pleasurable dinner, you know the food, atmosphere and decor is more than good. It is great. This was all true at the Dobbs House at Port Columbus. To me, a fine meal must not only consist of excellent food prepared by first rate chefs, but your dining companion, the atmosphere and everything else must be equally as good. Without a dining comanion, the oter factors have to be superior to compensate for dining alone.

This was true at the Dobbs House. Service was not only attentive, but extremely friendly. Donna, the gal who serves the cocktails, is quite cordial with all of her guests. And, Maxine, besides being highly efficent, was also warm and sincere in desiring to make my visit pleasant.

As I have said many times before, Dobbs House at the airport, has entertainment like no one else in the city. You have a full view of the airfield. If you are an aviation bug, like me, there are plenty of activities to keep your mind occupied while dining. There is no opportunity to become bored while dining alone.

Of course the food does help make everything happy. After you go through the salad bar and build your own affair, and all the relishes, spiced beats, and a host of other salads, comes the entree. In my case, I ordered the fourteen ounce T-Bone Steak. WOW! OUT OF this world. All meats are grilled right before your eyes. This steak was so tender I could cut it with my fork. No tenderizing, just top quality meats. It was so juicy and succulent, that it practically melted in my mouth.



As always, I feel that the Dobbs House at Port Columbus is one of the finest places to dine in Columbus. The food, servie and atmosphere is excellent. Take my advice, and plan a meal there soon. I am not sure, but I feel many people may think because Dobbs House is located at an airport it is not very good, or it might be too expensive. Not true at all my friends. They have a special children's menu, so take the family out some evening for a very unique, enjoyable dining experience.

Now, let me tell you about a brand new dining place in town, The Red Lobster, on Hamilton Road. This is a

It is a family type restaurant, with low prices for all seafood dinners. I get the impression it is patterned after the many steakhouse operations, where you can get a rather good steak dinner at a reasonable price.

The Red Lobster is not an economy seafood restaurant. In fact, not opinion, they are more expensive than the finest seafood house in our city. For example, at the Red Lobster, you get a one half jumbo size Florida Lobster, with choice of potato, and cole slaw. While at the well known seafood restaurant, for about a dollar-sixty more you get a whole Maine lobster, a beautiful Greek salad, choice of potato, relish tray, clam chowder, and hot bread, plus much nicer decor and far better service.

The half of Flordia Lobster I was served at the Red Lobster was so tough that it litteraly bent the lobster fork. In my opinion the meal certainly was not worth the price. I prefer to pay a little more, and receive better quality as well as all the extra goodies.

So , dear readers, as always, I try to keep you informed as to what's going on Around Town, telling you about the best in entertainment and food. Now, the next time you go out for a lobster dinner, you know into which bay to head the old boat.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Spring is here, the circus is in town, and the Mariott Inn Motel is starting its annual spring fashion shows next week. The weekly fashion shows begin at 1 p.m. each Thursday, in the Showboat Landing Restaurant. Real, live gorgeous models will show the latest in fashions from area stores. Club groups are invited to come and promote their charity functions. The Marriott Inn welcomes both men and women to' their weekly fashions hows. I went several times last year and had a ball... Stringtown Road has been held over again at the all new Ohio Stater Inn Motel. This is a fabulous group. Lovers of contemporary music, should not miss them....The famous Jones Brothers, (Aren't all Jones boys famous?) are holding down the fort this weekend at the Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg. You can catch their vocal and instrumental stylings this Friday and Saturday from 9 p.m.-2 a.m. From the spots they have performed in t, they must be pretty good. I'll check them out with you this weekend ... This is the final week for Two Plus One at Ramada Inn East. There is a new gal singer in the group, whe is the One, and after listening to her at rehersal the other day, I think this gal is tops. I didn't write her name down, so I can't print it.

But, I will tell you this, you and I will hear a lot more from her. She has a fine voice plus a good personality .... Meanwhile at Lincoln Lodge, Two's Company is closing out their engagement this Saturday. These two talented gals have loads of special songs that produces plenty of chuckles from the audience. Stop out this week, and hear this entertaining duo. They are different ... Eddie Ray continues to knock them dead at Marco Polo's Lounge. This guy really sings up a storm... Until next week, get Around Town and have some fun. There is plenty of entertainment, with something for everyone. See you Around Town.

MISS LIZA will swing by her heels and perform other daring stunts on the trapeze at the 23rd annual Aladdin Temple Shrine Circus in the Ohio State Fairgounds Coliseum April 5 through 14. The 1973 Shrine Circus will feature more than 30 acts from around the world. Shows will be at 8 o'clock every night except Sunday, and at 4 p.m. on Thursdays and Fridays and at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on both Saturdays. No Sunday show.

ACT II

By BETTY DRAGONETTE

The place is Welsh Hills Players, 3 Wilwood Avenue, Newark, Ohio. The play is "Buzzards Bay" by Lewis Colca. The director is Bill Tumblin. For reservations call 345-3558 or 345-7385.

Now, lets get into the play and see if I can convey to you my ideas on what makes it a potential hit and the author a new star on the literary horizon.

The Merritts are typical American family. Beverly Bluetooth Merritt (Blooey) "owns half of Boston and the other half is in hock to her." She lives on Buzzards Bay, just west of Hyannis Port, her ancestors came over on the Mayflower and at least two were burned at the stake as witches in Salem. She is divorced.

Jan Taylor gives Blooey the style, sweep and shrewdness needed. Her son, Kirk, got lost along with most of this youjnger generation and thinks Mon's money is horrid, except in his hands. As Kirk, Dan Boland has the tone and carriage of a spoiled brat.

He wrties bad protest plays, showing our decadent society, is engaged to marry on of Boston's richest debutants and is in love with a third rate actress named Garnett from the wrong side of the currency line.

Said actress comes on strong as a modern day "Joan of Arc", the only role she has ever played, interested in women's lib and the social revolution. All would be fine if she were true to her image. But, like a lot of today's zealots, it is all a front. She is just as greedy and more grabby than most. Joy Kieffer shows us this in a most convincing manner.

Now comes the clincher. Blooey's boyfriuend, Steve, is a middle aged author, of sorts, who has an eye for talent, of sorts, and has staked Garnett to her jobs portraying St. Joan, in return for certain favors.

Roy Harvey brings the licentious Steve to life, ready to love for fun and profit. It turns out Blooey isn't the jealous type, but her son is, and from there it gets interesting.

Each character is well defined and developed to show the many faceted personalities most of us have. The lines are crisp and new. Add Don Boyer's set and it's a winner.

Another winner is Players Club's production of "The Matchmaker", directed by Jerry Ness. It continues March 28 - 31 and if you want to see a bit of slapstick nostalgia, well acted and staged, call 224-6971 for reservations.

The gay 50th birthday party crowd Friday night lkoved it, and why not with a cast including Bob Demorest, Willy McWorter, Gladys Little Thomas, Francine Kirk, Jean Ann Weaver, Sally Talbert and Paddy Driscoll, to mention only a few.

Faculty Recital Scheduled

Violist Robert Culver, assisted by violinist Christopher Kimber and 'cellist William Conable, will open the Spring Quarter Faculty Recital Series at the Ohio State University School of Music Thursday, March 29, at 8 p.m. in Hughes Auditorium.

The program includes a Hindemith Sonata, a Beethoven Trio in G Major, and a Beethoven duo for viola and cello "with eyeglasses obligato!"

Culver, who teaches viola and the string courses in the Music Education Division at the School of Music, is also a member of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and is conductor of the Columbus Symphony Cadet Orchestra.

Kimber and Conable are new to the University faculty this year and have each been featured in the Faculty Recital Series and in solo performances with the University Symphony Orchestra.

The public is cordially invited to attend this performance. There is no admission charge.

Alumni, Concert Bands Will Play

The Ohio State University Concert Band will be joined by the Alumni Band Sunday, April 1, for a joint concert at 3 p.m. in Mershon Auditorium. Each group will perform a section of the program and the two will combine for the final work.

Former directors and assistant directors of the Concert Band include Eugene J. Weigel, Manley R. Whitcomb, John Worley, Justin Gray, Robert Titus, Forrest Stoll, William Kearns, Charles Spohn, Richard Suddendorf. Currently directing the group are Dr. Donald E. McGinnis, conductor, and Robert T. LeBlanc, associate conductor, Dr. McMcGinnis, who has directed the band since 1952, has been a member of the School of Music faculty since 1941. He also serves as chairman of the Performance Division of the school.

In addition to the alumni works to be performed, works by Bach, Haydn Wood, and Percy Grainger appear on the program.

The Concert Band Alumni Reunion Weekend will begin Friday evening, March 29, with rehearsals and social gatherings alternating through Saturday and part of Sunday, and culminating with the Sunday, 3 p.m. concert.

There is no admission charge for the performance and the public is cordially invited to attend.

TRUTH

In any form of advertising is difficult to find. The words "best," "greatest" and other similar words are common and misused. I have opened a new steak house -- and would very much like to be successful. The following facts are TRUE. I challenge friend or foe to prove otherwise.

2--Our salad bar is both fresh and select. We have 10 or more items at anytime.
3--Hot, homemade bread is served with all meals.
4--Service is prompt courteous, friendly.
5--Our complete new decor is exciting and intimate.

IN OTHER WORDS

"Try it, you'll like it."

My "Hoof and Horn" restaurant is somewhat difficult to find. We are located 1 mi., W. of Westland off W. Broad at 165 N. Murray Hill, in the middle of Lincoln Village. Call 878-7958 for reservations.

Natural Bait

What's the best all around live bait? If you said the lowly earthworm, you're right, he and his larger relative, the nite crawler are number one.

I can't think of one species of fish that won't drool over these wiggly creatures. OK, you know the bait, now what do you do with it?

Don't bunch the worm on the hook, for blue gills and sunfish it's OK to twist and wind the worm on your hook, for these little fish are bait stealers, but to attract larger game fish, bass, walleys or trout, start at the banded or heavy end of the worm.

Run the hook one to two inches down throught the end. Leave the barbn of the hook covered. This makes the worm semi-weeless, less snags, and most important the live loose wiggling action of the worm will attract larger game fish.

DON'T forget the other natural baits. A good bass bait is crayfish. They're easy to gather at night with a flash light and a dip net. Look for crayfish along the shoreline of rivers and streams. They should be kept in a pail of water or wet moss and used as soon as possible. Tops on my list for smallmouth bass in streams is the Dobson Fly Larva. Maybe you know it as the Hellgramite. Kicking up gravel and lifting rocks in riffles of streams while a companion holds a quarter inch mesh net or screen below the riffle to catch them should give you a quick dozen. Keep them in a box of cool moist leaves.

HERE' A couple of good panfish and trout baits, crickets caught by hand under boards in fields, and grasshoppers caught in fields by hand or net.

Keep them in screened boxes and use as soon as possible. One of the most used natural baits are minnows, They will take almost any species of fish and they're darn good for pan fish in the spring of the year. Just about every bait dealer has them.

Not only the nitecrawler but all live bait should be fished slow for naturla fish catching action.

Spinning Tackle

When I first started to cast for bass I would sneak in my fathers tackle box and grab a hunk of wood weighting about one ounce. He used this wood lure often plunking it in rivers and lakes, and occasionally catch a bass or two.

The other fish in the area were scared off by the big splash it made hitting the water. In those days you needed a heavy plug because most of the bait rods were too darn stiff to cast anything lighter than one half to one ounce lures. As time passed by, a small group of light tackle enthusiasts started a trend by using light weight rods and casting a lot smaller lures in the one eighth and quarter ounce size3.

Anglers who said "You can't catch big fish with those tiny lures," were soon changing their tune. I can't remember one fishing trip in the past 20 years that I haven't taken light weight spinning tackle with me. Even kids can easily learn to cast and catch fish with today's light weight rods and reels, and the small lures.

Fishing Report

Indian Lake - High and muddy at 40 degrees F. Anglers were reported taking channel catfish on nightcrawlers and cut shad, crappioes and perch on minnows and largemouth bass on artificials. Louis Wilson of McGuffy recently landed a 23 inch largemouth weighting 7 pounds 7 ounces on a spinner. Outlook - good.

Kiser Lake-High and roily at 41 degrees F. Anglers are taking good number of channel catfish ranging fromn 1 to 1½ pounds in size. Nightcrawlers and cut shad are preferred baits. Chuck Clark, Park Manager at Kiser Lake, reports a 31 inch, 13 pound, 15½ ounce channel was recently taken by Emma Meeker of Rosewood. Outlook - good.

Hargus Lake-High and roily at 40 degrees F. Anglers are taking a few crappies, bluegills and largemouth bass fishing the stumpy areas of the lake. Edwin Hammond of Chillicothe recently qualified for a Big Ohio Bass expert's certificate by landing a largemouth weighing over 6 pounds. His catch measured 23¾ inches in length and weighed 6 pounds 14 ounces. Outlook - Fair.

Circleville Canal - High and muddy at 46 degrees F. Anglers are having very good success on the rainbow and golden trout recently stocked throughout the canal area. Preferred baits include small spinners, nightcrawlers and cheese. Outlook - excellent.

Mad River-High and clear at 50 degrees F. Anglers continue to make very good catches of both rainbow and golden trout throughout the stream. Preferred baits are samon eggs, nightcrawlers, cheese and spinners.

Watercraft, Motors Must Get New Registrations

The Department of Natural Resources has announced locations throughout the state where 1973 boat and out board motor registration can be obtained.

All watercraft operating in Ohio waters must have an Ohio identification number displayed on each side of the bow of the watercraft. Registration papers must be available on board at all times when the watercraft is in use.

The watercraft registration number if different than outboard motor numbers which are issued to each owner at the time of registration with a tag bearing that number. The tag showing the outboard motor number must be on the motor in a place where it can easily be seen.

Annual fees for watercraft and outboard motor registration are: outboard hull, rowboat, canoe, barge or raft, $1; sail boat, $3; inboard with motor under 100 horsepower, $7.50; inboard with motor 1100 horsepower and above, $10; outboard motor, $3 and duplicate registration, $1. Licensing agents receive an additional 35-cent fee for each registration issued.

Boaters are reminded that 1972 registrations expired March 1, and are urged to obtain their 1973 registration early to avoid the summer rush.

Any questions concerning watercraft regulations in Ohio should be directed to the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Watercraft, 1350 Holly Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43212.

Silver Knights Were All Around When The Victory Was In Sight- Then Delphos Vanquished

Bishop Ready Wins State Cage Crown

South Loses In AA Semi-Finals

Those are names that will long be remembered in Bishop Ready High School athletic history.

Then you'll have to add the names of Principal Rev. Fr. Richard Endres and Athletic Director Glen R. Dennis.

That adds up to a lot of names but all had a hand in the winning of the title - there were no weak links in the Bishop Ready chain.

There were heroes, all around the round table in the victory celebration in the 79-66 win over Delphos St. John. There were heroes, also, in Ready's earlier win over Bellefontaine, 60-47.

It was one of the Jones Boys, however, who stole the Ready thunder along with a late game-breaking Don Gardner. But add the names of all starters and second stringers and you'll find plenty of good players.

In another battle that involved a Columbus High School, South saw its hopes for a Class AAA title go astray when Akron Central-Hower nipped Brian Williams and Co., 66-63 last Thursday.

That tilt was knotted 30-30 at halftime before Akron took the play away from the Bulldogs.

As it is now the state cage champions are:

Class A, Marion Pleasant.

Class AA, Bishop Ready.

Class AAA, Cincinnati Elder.

Last Chance

The Columbus Transit Company is going out of business June 30.

On May 8, you can help save bus service by your support of the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) levy.

What will happen when we lose this service?

This crisis will affect the entire community! Thousands of riders will have to find other means of transportation. Many may have to give up their jobs. Senior Citizens and students will be deprived of economical transportation. Hundreds of handicapped will be trapped in their limited walking areas. Downtown shopping will become a thing of the past for thousands who depend on bus service Loss of buses will have far-reaching economic effects on our entire community

May 8

COTA is the only practical solution to the transit crisis. Columbus city government will not use revenue sharing funds, other city money is already committed. Nor does Franklin County have funds to buy and operate the bus line.

COTA board members are private citizens who represent all areas of the community and serve without pay. COTA will purchase the present bus system, hire operating management, stabilize fares at 50¢, maintain Sunday and holiday service, and give Senior Citizens a 25¢ fare at off-peak hours.

With the aid of Federal funds, COTA will be able to make some route extensions, improve frequency on certain lines and add new routes to reach important job and shopping areas

Your vote for COTA can be the difference between better bus service and no bus service at all!

Yearbook Advertising Has Key Technique

PART II

(An Eastland Creative Marketing project dealt with yearbook sales and the project was awarded a third place in the State Distributive Education competition recently. This is the second part of a report on that project done by Eastland Students.)

The results and recommendations of the survey have been reported to the American Publishing Company and Herf-Jones Publishing Company.

An article for Balance Sheet, a business teachers periodical, is being prepared for possible publication.

Conclusions Of The Survey

ALL DATA being compiled and listed, we will now draw our conclusions.

The first question was a qualification question. It determines whether or not the high school surveyed published a yearbook. One hundred percent of the responses answered yes.

QUESTION two asked how yearbook staff members were selected. This question was not of direct interest to the purposes, but would indicate organization structure.

Thirty-seven point five percent were on a volunteer basis and 21.6 percent were appointed by previous staff. Only three point four percent were elected, 19.3 percent were appointed by faculty, and 18.2 percent responded other. It must be noted that the other category in this question had a write in space.

The responses received were a combination of the multiple choice. Fourteen of the sixteen responses were volunteer and appointed by faculty.

QUESTION three determined who actually paid in the total cost of publishing the yearbook. Thirty-nine point three percent answered students, 33 percent responded by advertising, and 14.4 percent answered by fund raising projects. The remainder 13.3 percent were divided about equally among aalumni and friends, school boards, and the open category, other.

THE FOURTH question has the respondents select only one choice for who provides the most cost of the coverage. Students accounted for 63 percent, advertisers for 5.3 percent, fund raising for .1 percent, school boards for .1 percent,and alumni and friends answered only .7 percent. Four point eight percent stated other.

Question five inquires who sells the advertisements for your yearbook. Seventy point nine percent stated only the yearbook staff. The response for any student who wants to, 10.2 percent responded. Only .1 percent used the Distributive Education Class and 18.1 percent stated other. There were no responses for sales class and faculty.

THE SIXTH question concerned where the advertisements were placed in the yearbook. Ninety-two percent said in a special section in the back of the yearbook. Eight percent said throughout the copy of the yearbook, and there were no responses to in the front of the yearbook.

Question number seven asks if there is any special training given to yearbook advertising salesmen. Thirty-seven point five percent said yes, while 62.5 percent said no.

Question eight dealt with the development of a prospect list for the salesman. Eighty-nine point five percent said yes, while 10.5 percent responded no.

THE NINTH question asked for the type of sales tools used when salesman confronts a prospect. One point four percent responded to special gifts, 11.8 percent said they used letters of introductions, and 2.8 percent stated prepared yearbook sales manuals. Thirty-two point four percent had their salesmen take samples of last year's ads and 44.1 percent used last year's yearbook.

Question ten dealt with special sales feature in attracting sponsors to buy advertisements. Twenty-five point two percent said yes and 74.8 percent said no.

Question eleven was interested in the type of business purchasing the most advertising in dollar amount. Retail and service establishments led the responses with 86.2 percent. Seven point eight percent said construction and manufacturing companies, 2.6 percent replied area service groups, and 3.4 percent stated other.

The final question, number twelve, asked the total dollar amount of yearbook advertising sold last year. Five point six percent replied below $200, 14.8 percent range from $200-$599, 25 percent responded between $600-$999, and 18.5 percent replied from $1,000 to $1,399. The final 36.1 percent stated that they sold over $1,400.

THE FINAL conclusion is based upon a profile of questions 7, 8, and 10. This profile showed the schools that sold the most advertising were the schools who placed the most emphasis on special sales training and developing prospect lists.

Of the schools that sold over $1,400 worth of advertising, 56.8 percent stated they did provide sales training and 95.5 percent used prospect lists.

Forty-three point two percent said they did not use special training, and only 4.5 percent did not use a prospect list. In the $1,000-$1,399 group, 42.1 percent used special training, while 57.9 percent did not.

Ninety-four point eight percent did use a prospect list, while 5.2 percent did not.

Recommendations

THIS STUDY determines the need for better training of salesmen who sell yearbook advertising for the high school.

To increase the total dollars of advertising sold would lower the cost of the yearbook to the student and would increase the number of books sold.

Prospect lists are used extensively by yearbook ad salesmen throughout the United States.

The salesman should concentrate his effort on the prospects of retail and service businesses in the area.

YEARBOOK advertising by high schools offer few sales features to attract advertisers. Only 25 percent tried to create any type of sales feature to offer the person who wanted to advertise.

Overall, our club recommends that yearbook advisors or yearbook publishers start training their yearbook advertising salesmen if they want higher advertising sales. Higher sales will allow for more money for a better yearbook.

What's A Bunny? . . . Golly , He's Big! . . . Now I Can See Him Better! . . . I Love You, Bunny.

THERE ARE king-sized stuffed bunnies in the future for area youngsters-thanks to the Spectator Newspapers and local participating merchants. Beginning Wednesday, April 11 and continuing through Saturday, April 22 Spectator readers can walk into one of the participating stores listed in the Big Bunny ad that will appear in all Spectator Newspapers, Wednesday, April 11, and register for the Big Bunny drawing. There's nothing to buy and each participating store will give away one of the large stuffed bunnies. Be sure to see the April 11 Spectator for the merchants who will participate.

MEANWHILE, one fortunate tiny tot, 22 month old Tish Wiseman, already has a duplicate on one of the Big Bunnies to be given away in the Spectator-Merchant promotion. Trisha won her Big Bunny last week at the Prairie Lincoln Elementary School Festival. That festival's Big Bunny auction was a hit with all the youngsters and Tisha was the luckiest youngster of them all. Her uncertainty about the huge bunny was done away with as she got closer and closer to the lovely pink bunny. All's well that ends well and the bunny and Tisha eventually cuddled in each other's softness. (Photo by Kathy Devaney.)

Officials Praise Careers Project

THOMAS CONNERY
SPECIAL STAFF WRITER

The Columbus schools pilot project in career education was highly praised by teachers and principals at the board of education's March 27 study session.

A progress report on the $121,000 project and its use in 11 Columbus schools was presented to the board by Fred Ricketts, director of practical education.

RICKETTS SAID the project gives students a new view of "the world of work" by blending career information into the regular school curriculum.

The project presently serves about 5,000 students in kindergarten through 10th grade in schools in the North High School area.

Schools participating are North High, Crestview and Indianola Junior Highs, and Clinton, Crestview, Medary, Michigan, Ninth, Northwood, Sixth and Weinland Park elementaries.

ACCORDING TO RICKETTS, teachers use the same methods of teaching, however, the subject matter is now related to various jobs and professions. Teachers attended workshops and training sessions to prepare for the project.

Ricketts described the project as an "exciting development," and said at the elementary level students learn about careers and develop more respect for work and the worker.

He said that in junior high students learn about careers by studying job clusters, and high school students are given experience in three careers in which they are most interested.

ACCORDING TO officials, students have taken about 500 field trips to local business, industrial and professional facilities to watch workers on the job and learn more about what is actually involved in those lines of work. In addition, 375 persons have visited classrooms to explain their jobs to students.

Board member Virginia Prentice said that the program demonstrates that "learning can be fun."

The board also heard a report from Dr. Joseph L. Davis, assistant superintendent for special services, who said that the school system is moving ahead to operationalize 96 Project Unite recommendations. Project Unite is the community involvement project that has produced recommendations from more than 2,000 citizen volunteers.

DAVIS SAID THE 96 recommendations pertain to areas of special programs and services provided students who have physical, mental, emotional, behavioral or social problems that "make it difficult or impossible for them to learn at an acceptable rate in the regular classroom."

He said the programs and services are those provided by the school system's department of special education, school counselors, psychologists, visiting teachers, home-school-community agents, nurses and other health services personnel.

According to Davis, the schools have responded to the recommendations with 18 major projects and activities, 12 of which are already underway.

AMONG THOSE listed by Davis as currently in operation are: the Directive Teaching Project at Thurber School; the Nisonger Center-Hubbard School Project conducted with Ohio State University; development of a comprehensive special education plan; and an experimental program being conducted at Duxberry Park School to find new ways to serve educable mentally retarded children.

Plans are underway to implement further recommendations: expansion of special education programs; developemnt of new and improved mental health services for students; efforts to improve communication and coordination between schools and mental health agencies, and development of a centralized pupil information system.

Davis also mentioned a cooperative project to be operated by the school and Battelle Memorial Institute aimed at developing instructional objectives for some of the findings resulting from a study the research institute conducted last year into what the community expects from the school system.

BOARD PRESIDENT Thomas Moyer praised the latest Project Unite report.

Police Offer Aids

Education Vital In Drug Fight

BY KATHY DEVANEY
AND LYNN WILLIAMS

The Columbus Police Department is trying to do something to stop the widespread use of drugs. The efforts include not only investigation and arrest, but education.

The first step in fighting drug abuse is to determine its causes. Police officials said there were five basic reasons for the use of drugs.

THESE INCLUDED ignorance, economic factors, disintegration of family life, a distorted and false sense of values and times of stress and crisis.

Educational efforts by the Police Department are not only aimed at young people but also at the adult community.

Special efforts have been made to inform parents about drug abuse, its effects and the symptoms.

OFFICIALS EXPLAINED that present statistics indicate that by the time a youngster graduates from high school, chances are about one in five that he's smoked marijuana at least once.

Statistics also show that 75 per cent of the teenagers who have tried marijuana will quit after the first or second time.

Physical signs parents may look for and the drugs involved are as follows:

--MARIJUANA WILL leave a distinctive odor on a persons clothing for several hours;

--Marijuana smokers experience an unusual appetite for sweets and starches;

--Tranquilizers will make a person sleepy and lethargic;

--OPIATES, LIKE heroin and morphine, will cause the pupil of the eyes to grow small;

--Drugs containing atropine (a heart stimulant) may cause the pupils to grow large;

--A HEAVY dose of amphetamines shows itself in a burst of activity, total loss of appetite and inability to sleep.

Parents should should also be aware of marked changes in behavior which may indicate some type of drug expeerimentation.

These signs might include a change in the style of dress, a change in social patterns which might involve dropping old friends and acquiring new ones, and finally a change in personality.

OFFICIALS consider drug education for adults vital because most youngsters know about drugs and will ignore scare tactics or half—truths.

Being aware that a youngster has a problem, sensing that he is looking for help and then taking the time to listen are essential to eliminating the abuse of drugs.

One tool initiated by the Columbus Police Department is a Narcotics Analysis Anonymous program started in January of 1970.

This program enables parents to have pills or other foreign substances analysized while remmaining anonymous.

It's designed to aid parents who suspect that their youngsters are using dangerous drugs. It may also serve to ease unnecessary fears if it is found that the substances are not drugs.

To take advantage of the program suspected drugs should be taken to the Police Department's Public Affairs Bureau 67 N. Front St., between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekdays.

The specimen will be given an identification number and forwarded to the police crime lab for examination. After seven days the person may call the Bureau and be given the results.

Included in the education material should be the facts concerning penalties if arrestes on drug charges.

In Ohio illegal possession penalties for hallucinogens, including marijuana, hashish, LSD, mescaline or peyote, are ——first offense could be up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine; second offense could bring 1—10 years in prison.

FOR POSSESSION for sale of any of the above drugs a first offense means 10—20 years in prison.

For illegal sale or transfer a first offense means a prison term of 20—40 years.

In the category of narcotic drugs illegal possession means a fine of up to $10,000 and 5—20 years.

AN ARREST for the illegal sale or transfer of narcotics has a penalty of 20—40 years in prison.

A voluntary request for help will not result in arrest or any punitive action.

Locations where assistance may be attained are: Drug Abuse Center, 356 N. High St., phone 469—4953; Open Door Clinic, 1985 Waldeck Ave., phone 294—6337; Operation Switchboard, phone 294—6378; Kiwanis Drug Center, Chittenden and High, phone 299—1343 or 1346; Columbus Police Department, phone 462—4610; Northland Drub abust (NORDACK), phone 846—2240.

Mayor Proclaims Walk-A-Thon Day

Mayor Tom Moody has proclaimed April 29, as the National Foundation March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon Day. The Mayor has accpeted Chairmanship for the Third Annual March of Dimes 22 mile Walk-A-Thon, beginning and ending at Whetstone Park.

The Walk will begin promptly at 9 a.m. after a short non-denominational service given by the Mayor. Tracy Anders, the local poster child for the National Foundation-March of Dimes will lead the Walk.

The National Guard is providing water tanks at each checkpoint along the 22 mile route. There will be hot dogs, beverages donated by the 7-Up Company and other refreshments served at the finale.

Twenty-two miles is a long walk but those walking are trying to ehlp the 250,000 babies born each year who may not even be able to walk 22 steps during their entire lives. All of the proceeds raised will go for the prevention of birth defects.

PTA Council Plans Festival Of Music

The 36th biennial Festival of Music sponsored by the Columbus Council of Parent Teacher Associations, is scheduled for Friday, April 6 at St. John Arena on the Ohio State University campus.

Theme for this year's festival is "I Believe in Music," and more than 3,000 elementary and secondary pupils from all 170 Columbus Public Schools will be participating.

Tickets are on sale in all schools, from PTA officers and at the door for $1.25.

The proceeds from the event are used to provide future teacher scholarships of $400 through the Ohio Congress of PTAs' Memorial Scholarship Program.

This festival was begun by Mothersingers. This group was formed in 1935 under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Holscher. The first concert was given on May 7 of 1937 in celebration of National Music Week.

The scholarship program has awarded 287 future teacher scholarships since 1966. Every year two scholarships are awarded in music education, one in vocal music and one in instrumental.

A Flying Start...Starts With AFROTC

JEFFREY Lauffer is a Capital University senior enrolled in the University's Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) program.

He's an Eastmoor graduate. He's wanted to be an Air Force pilot since he moved to Columbus from Dayton (The Home of Aviation) at the ripe age of six months.

Jeff is just one of the many AFRTOTC students at Capital who have chosen the Air Force blue as their favorite colors (next to Capital's purple, of course).

BUT, this story is not about Jeffrey Lauffer. It's about the AFROTC program and what happens to get the hoped-to-be pilot in the air to win his silver wings.

As a senior enrolled in the Air Force ROTC Professional Officer course you can get a flying start on the Air Force career by learning to fly through the AFROTC flight instruction program.

YOU NOT only qualify for your own private pilot's certificate - you get a big jump when you start your Air Force flight training after you are commissioned a Second Lieutenant.

It's a proven fact that men who have completed the Flight Instruction Program are much better prepared for Air Force pilot training and have a much lower washout rate.

It's a two-way street. You get free flight instruction (the Air Force pays the entire bill) and a private pilot's certificate (if you qualify).

If accepted in the Flight Instruction Program (as Jeff is) you will receive 35 hours of flying instruction at a civilian-operated flying school near your campus. These flying schools have been approved by the Federal Aviation Administration.

ABOUT 20 of the 35 hours will be dual flight instruction and the other 15 is solo flying. An additional one and a half hours flying time is provided for a final flight check, which may include FAA certification for the private pilot training.

Ground school instruction can range from a minimum of five hours up to a total of 35 and includes weather, navagation and Federal Air Regulations.

AIRCRAFT used in the program include the Piper Cherokee, the four-place Cessna 172 or the two-place Cessna 150. The planes used vary with the civilian contractor operating the flying school.

The Air Force pays for everything - flight instruction, text books, navigational equipment, flight clothing and transportation to and from the flying school.

After completion of the Air Force ROTC Flight Instruction Program and graduation, qualified cadets enter the Air Force as second lieutenants and attend an Air Force Flight School.

HERE, the new officers train in the T-41, the T-37 and the T-38. Since the T-41 is very similar to the plane flown in the Flight Instruction Program you have a head start on an Air Force flying career.

After graduation from Air Force flight training, you will receive further training in aircraft such as the F4C Phantom and C-141 Starlifter.

Those who complete the Air Force ROTC Flight Instruction Program and go on to Air Force pilot training must agree to serve for a period of not less than five years on active duty as rated officers after earning their Air Force wings.

AIR FORCE ROTC college scholarships are available to qualified cadets who are pursuing the four-year AFROTC program only.

"A flying machine that's heavier than air? Impossible! That fool Wright will never get off the ground in that thing!", so it was said.

Capital University's AFROTC program as well as that at nearby Otterbein College in Westerville are disproving that act daily.

Advanced Placement Adopted At Capital

Roger A. Wiley, Director of Admissions at Capital University, announced that high school seniors who perform successfully on the advanced placement examinations can now receive immediate sophomore standing during the first year at the university.

Capital is one of 92 colleges throughout the country which have adopted the concept of an "advanced placement year" granting a year of credit for college level work done in high school.

The 1973 advanced placement examinations will be given during the week of May 14-18 at some 3500 schools throughout the world which participate in the advanced placement program of the college entrance examination board.

Students who are interested in registering for this test should contact the Advanced Placement Coordinator at their local high school.

In commenting on the significance of the expansion of the "advanced placement year" concept, Wiley stressed the importance of cooperation between the high schools and institutions of higher education.

He indicated that "by providing immediate sophomore standing, Capital is opening the door for students to enter sooner into advanced courses or to participate in broader, exploratory studies, independent learning, work, travel or other study options. Capital's 4-1-4 academic calendar lends itself very well to this new concept."

Rounding Up The Rams
By Suzann Klayko

On March 28 the French four and five class presented the French play "Cendrillon" to all the French classes. The play, based on the fairy tale "Cinderella", was done entirely in French.

French students featured in the play were: Sally Brockman, Diana McVey, Karen Collier, Pat Amburgey, Janise Wilson, Beth Nolder, Valerie Miller, Suzanne Kolarik, Sylvia Quade, Daraugh Myers, and Don Mar.

Five Whitehall-Yearling students will participate in an Environmental Workshop at Columbus Center of Science and Industry on April 7 & 8.

The workshop is organized by the Better Environmental for Everyone.

The workshop will consist of eight topics such as strip mining natural preservation, mass transit and the energy crises. The workshop will emphasize group discussions.

Students who will participate are Cathy Wood, Marcy Jo Klayko, Sandra Tippett and Suzann Klayko. Eva Ballanger represents the high school on the Better Environment for Everyone Committee.

By BETTY DRACONETTE

The price we pay for life is sometimes too high. Or at least more than we have to pay. But then, it's our choice.

We, in fact, do choose the way we live. If we wanted that rainbow enough, we'd not only reach for it, we'd figure out how to touch it.

This is one of the messages coming out of the Gallery Players production of "The Price", running April 4,5,7 and 8 at 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Jewish Center, 1125 College Ave.

The Scene is the upstairs apartment of an old house. The visable room is cluttered with old furniture, most of it very grand, in it's day.

Allen Gundersheimer did much with his set design to set the mood for this engrossing drama about two brothers, met to dispose of their family relics.

Also, the combination of a food director like Harold Eisenstein and a small dedicated cast pays off in the enjoyment afforded the audience.

Joe Hietter comes to the Gallery Players stage to play the brother who dropped out of school and took a job as a policeman to stick by his father after the family fortune was lost in the stockmarket crash of 1929.

Lil Strouss plays his long suffering wife. Neither is happy with the way their life is going, nor do they have the answer to the question "Where do we go from here?". As they stand there re-hashing the last twenty eight years, the furniture appraiser wheezes in the door.

Now, can you comprehend the words comic and wisdom being used together? This adorable old man, portrayed by Harry Schubert, combines comedy relief with the wisdom of his almost ninety years.

Throw in the policeman's brother, a successful surgeon who has not seen his family in sixteen years, (Graydon Goss) and you have enough material to make a fine two act play. At least in the capable hands of Arthur Miller, it turned into a fine piece of literature.

To see a well cast production of a great play, call 231-2731 for reservations.

Don Ebert is the guest-director for the next production for Curtain Players. He will cast "Last Of The Red Hot Lovers" Thursday April 5 and Friday April 6 at 8:00 P.M. at the Huntington National Bank, 800 High Street, Worthington.

It's A New 'Look

ALL THAT hustling and bustling you have noticed around Reynoldsburg at the sight of the former Barn Dinner Theatre off Tussing Road adjacent to I—70 will bring a new dinner theatre back to the area scene. It's called Countryside Dinner theatre and the management is entirely new. The old Barn Dinner Theatre went into receivership and the new management has taken all the "bad taste" of that theastre out of the area. An official said bids have been let on the sewage treatment facility and an entirely new look is being given the interior. Plans call for the new theatre to open about May 15. When the Spectator toured the spruced up facility we found Production Stage Manager Chuck Miller up on the rooftop getting that area fixed. An interesting visitor to the new theatre was Maggie Eyvind, Reynoldsburg High School's foreign exchange student who found Miller very well versed in all phases of the theatre. Workmen were busy as bees getting the new look. (Photos by Ray Adams.)

At The Parks This Week

A Wildflower Identification Workshop will be offered three consecutive Tuesday evenings beginning April 10 in Beech-Maple Lodge at Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Park.

The use of field guides, the terminology used to describe plants and the family relationships of our native flowers are among the topics to be discussed.

There will be an optional field trip to test skills learned at the end of the course. A $1.50 fee covers the cost of materials and pre-registration is required. Call 882-1798 to register.

SEAT BELTS

Ohio legislators are considering a mandatory safety belt bill. Your Department of Highway Safety endorses this proposal. If passed, it could result in saving about 500 lives each year in Ohio and in reducing injuries. A similar law was passed in Australia, and traffic deaths and injuries there have showed a dramatic decline.

Commencement Speaker

John R. Hall, President of Ashland Chemical Co., headquartered in Columbus and a division of Ashland Oil, Inc., Ashland, Kentucky, will speak at the 50th Commencement for Franklin University's largest graduating class at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 8 at Veterans Memorial.

Spring Madness

IT'S BEEN over the dam and out for six area men the past two weeks with three other teenagers beating the odds that high and cold and muddy water have in nature's favor.

When will the "spring madness" end?

THE TRAGEDY that overshadows the death of six persons and the rescue of three is that these events could have taken the lives of dedicated firemen and police officers in their attempts to "beat the odds".

It's not fair.

"Beyond and above the call of duty" should not be the call they have to answer when men with better wisdom take on nature and put other lives at stake.

WE CAN grieve with the dead men's survivors. As a youth I had several friends drown in similar circumstances and can recall the stupidity of myself in thinking that I was stronger than nature's water at its wildest.

It is fortunate that age mellows the need for derring-do among men.

It is unfortunate that with so many other challenges to overcome at lesser risks that men have to put other lives at stake.

SPRING just came around the corner.

When it turns the corner and is overcome by summer's basking sunshine we hope no more names will be read and bells tolled for those who have taken a chance with the elements and lost.

As a parent I have always warned my youngsters against foolhardiness of this sort. It has not always (the warning) been heeded.

Boys will be boys and men will be men.

TOO BAD that tragedy has to mar the arrival of spring and death could not take a deserved holiday.

Questions About COTA Answered By Experts

The Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) through the "Transit Crisis Committee" has issued a series of questions and answers concerning the facts of the .5 mill levy that will be on the May 8 ballot.

The 41-question and answer series started in the March 28 issue and continues through April 18.

(Second Of A Series)

Do residents in any other Ohio cities pay taxes to operate their transit systems?

Yes, most of the big ones do. Transit taxes have been voted in Dayton, Youngstown, Toledo, Cincinnati, Akron. Cleveland long has had a tax-supported transit system.

I don't ride the bus and I don't plan to. Why should I vote for the COTA tax?

You may not ride the bus but you're mistaken if you think you don't depend on the buses. If you go to the hospital, many of the employees who will care for you depend on the bus to get to their jobs. If you eat a meal in a restaurant, many of the people who cook and serve your food depend on the bus to get to their jobs. If you shop in a store some of the clerks who wait on you depend on the bus to get there. You are dependent on the bus system. All of us are!

Why bother to save the bus system? Why not go ahead and build a modern rapid transit system?

The Central Ohio area does not now have the population density to support a rapid transit system and probably won't have for at least another decade. In the meantime, however, the very real need for public transportation will continue. We must save the existing bus system. With this done, we can start the planning that will in due time lead to a rapid transit system.

Why don't we just build a monorail system?

It would take years to plan such a system and more years to find the money to build it. COTA wants to solve the present transit crisis and the only way to do it is to buy the bus company and keep the busses running. In addition, from an engineering standpoint, a monorail would be the most expensive and least efficient system available.

Will COTA use the existing system of freeways?

Yes, several of the route improvements planned call for the use of express busses on freeways.

Some of the new routes proposed call for using busses on the freeways. Isn't this simply going to add more congestion to an already bad situation? And if you reserve a lane on a freeway for busses won't that make life more difficult for drivers squeezed into the remaining two lanes?

No. What is proposed is the study of use of reverse lanes on the Freeways. Take the north freeway at 5 p.m. Northbound traffic is extremely heavy. Trying to operate a bus on the northbound lanes would, indeed, just add to the congestion. But at that hour of the day southbound auto traffic is comparatively light. What is proposed is to study the use of one of the southbound lanes for northbound busses.

Wouldn't this be dangerous?

No. This plan is being used successfully in Boston, Los Angeles, Washington and some other cities. It seems to work well and the accident rate is no higher than normal.

Can this system be started immediately?

No. There are many aspects of this plan that must be worked out. Approval will be necessary from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, the State Highway Department, the State Department of Highway Safety, Columbus City Council, and the Division of Traffic Engineering. There are many other financial and engineering problems to be worked out before the plan actually can be put into effect. All of this takes time.

How can I obtain more information about the COTA levy?

By calling 224-COTA (224-2682).

Growing Energy Needs

UNLIMITED sources of energy to run our factories, automobiles, and homes no longer can be taken for granted.

The immediate outlook is for a steadily increasing demand for energy which will force growing dependence on foreign sources, greater concern about the environment, higher costs and increasing uncertainty as to the future.

OUR national security requires that we should have a sufficient domestic energy supply to keep our economy going even if foreign fuel imports were cut off. This should have top priority and governmental policies should be pointed towards the goal of national energy self-sufficiency.

Government policies also should encourage research by private industry. Emphasis should be placed on research and developemnt efforts aimed at greater utilization of existing energy supplies. The nuclear breeder reactor and extraction of synthetic gas and liquids from coal are examples of energy sources which have great potential. Further down the road is the harnessing of solar energy and nuclear fusion.

IT IS imperative that the governmental decision-making processes be speeded up and simplified so industry can get on with its job. Environmental factors should be taken into consideration, but they must be balanced with the growing energy needs of our nation.

OSU Agriculture Students Meet Challenges Of Times

OHIO STATE University's College of Agriculture has been attracting Ohio farm boys for years. Now it's training large numbers of honors students who can, and probably will, tell their dads a thing or two about how to run their farms.

The college's honors program has grown from five to 215 students in little more than 10 years. Administrators like Austin Ritchie, professors like Leroy Hushak, and students like Gary Bovard help explain why.

"WE GIVE our honors students as much challenge as they'll take," claimed Austin Ritchie, assistant dean of the college. "They devise their own curriculum in the form of independent research andclear it through an honors committee. They also participate in weekly colloquiums which we hope combine their science and social science backgrounds. We expect a lot of reading and oral participation from all of them, and occasionally ask experts in certain fields to attend the sessions."

Each student has a faculty adviser to help him with his research project. For example, Leroy Hushak, assistant professor of agricultural economics and rusri sociology at Ohio State, is assisting Gary Bovard with his joint masters-honors project, "Land Values on the Urban-Rural Fringe."

BOVARD'S intentions are indicative of the serious type of research which many agricultural honors students conduct. By identifying the factors which influence the market value of land, he hopes to find out why so many farmers are losing out to commercial land developers.

He explained the problem.

"There's an urban-rural fringe surrounding almost every major metropolitan area today, and it's used almost entirely for urban expansion. This causes a rise in property taxes. The farmer is forced out of the area simply because he can't afford to pay them. As a result, good, productive land often lies idle until urban expansion eventually takes over."

BOVARD has studied 80 land transactions so far and hopes to have tackled about 250 by the end of this summer. He chose his samples at random from those registered at the State Board of Tax Appeals in 1971. His results, admittedly inconclusive, reflect land value trends around Franklin County.

He has found that the total market value of property decreases about $230 with each additional acre included in any sale. For example, if one acre costs $2,000, two acres of the same land would probably cost about $1,770.

HE ALSO found commercial land is worth about $6,000 more per acre than the same land with residential zoning. Property within the Columbus city limits is worth $21,000 more per acre than in the township, and about $10,000 more than in the suburb.

Bovard has concluded that among the most influential determinants of land value are acreage; zoning; location within a city, suburb, township, county; and distance from a major business center, highway, or railroad.

"In general," he said, "the most valuable land in Franklin County is in Columbus, commercially zoned, in the northeast part of the county, and close to a major highway, railroad and business center."

United Way Sets Goal To Set 1973 Plans Early

A PROPOSED 1973 campaign goal of $8,800,000 was recommended to the United Way Board of Trustees last week by the ad hoc Citizen's Campaign Goal Committee, reports Robert Lazarus, Jr., committee chairman.

Lazarus said arriving at an early goal will provide the UW staff and volunteers ample time to plan for this fall's campaign. The $8.8 million represents a 10 percent increase over the funds raised in 1972.

LAZARUS SAID many factors were considered by the committee in determining the fund-raising potential of Franklin County, including the impact of the potential cutback in federal funding which could cost the UW agencies some $873,000.

In arriving at a projected goal, the committee studied current community concerns in the areas of social services, health, crime, and rehabilitation.

THE 30-MEMBER group also reviewed statistical data on past agency allocations, general business indicators, and the economic climate of the county.

Lazarus said that although the 1972 campaign reached 96 percent of its $8.3 million goal, the $8,172,000 raised reflects only a 3.8 percent increase in giving over the $8,304,477 raised in the county in 1971.

Lazarus pointed out that Columbus ranked well below the 6.8 percent average increase in giving achieved by 26 other cities which raised from $4 million to$9 million in their 1972 UW campaigns.

THE 1972 UW drive did not meet all of the fund requests from the 62 UW agencies, Lazarus noted.

These "unmet needs" total $1,117,698, and include: family and child care services, $305,736; health and rehabilitation services, $498,192; group work, recreation, and character building services, $150,137; and planning and common agency services, $163,633.

Lazarus emphasized that agency allocations are evaluated and approved by the 96-member UW budget and finance committee. Over the past three years, as community needs have changed, UW has phased out 10 agencies and reallocated $285,000 to other areas of major concern.

FOR THE current year, 45 agencies received fund increases; six received decreases, and 12 received the same amount distributed the previous year.

The UW agencies had requested $7,116,881 in 1972 to meet 1973 program and service needs, a 16.6 percent increase over the $6,565,991 raised furing the previous year. The agencies actually received only 81.1 percent ($5,772,979) of the funds they had requested for 1972.

Beautiful Ohio Publications Are Available Free

Gov. John J. Gilligan has announced the availability of a new, comprehensive publication of state tourist facilities entitled "Beautiful Ohio– A Directory of Travel Attractions."

The publication is a joint undertaking by the Ohio Departments of Economic and Community Development, Transportation and Natural Resources. It is being distributed as part of the "Let's Hear It for Ohio" campaign.

"This directory will be helpful guide for Ohioans and out-of-state travelers wanting to take advantage of the many attractions and facilities located in our great state, " Gilligan said. "It's fitting that during the celebration of Ohio's 170th year of statehood Ohioans can receive an anniversary present that describes the great beauty of this state."

The directory will be distributed free of charge to all Ohioans requesting copies, and a one dollar fee will be charged out-of-state persons requesting the directory.

The publication outlines with full-color pictures and informative text the numerous travel attractions throughout Ohio. The attractions are categorically broken down into historic sites, scenic attractions, agricultural attractions, recreation facilities, a spectator sports guide, cultural attractions,seasonal attractions, major highways, lodging facilities and state parks.

Ohioans can receive a free copy of the directory by writing: 'Beautiful Ohio," Box 1001, Columbus, Ohio 43216.

The Old Timer

"It doesn't do much good to put your best foot forward, if you are dragging the other one."

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them -- whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. Fencing Ordinance Puzzles Resident

To the Editor:

Many residents of Reynoldsburg are concerned with a question as to whether or not the City of Reynoldsburg has a fencing ordinance in effect which prohibits fencing in your entire property on the new revised ordinance book at this time.

Some residents are being told there is no ordinance in effect, while others who want to construct fencing on their entire property are being told they cannot.

To the city solicitor, city council members and planning and zoning commission may we have a clear and, most of all, truthful, answer on this matter.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Richard C. Burris

Deadly Word Game Played By Some

To the Editor:

Regarding Tom Connery's article, "Board Splits on Busing Proposal." It seems to me that Mrs. Virginia Prentice and those school board members who are rejecting the 13 member committee proposal - a committee by the way, of teachers, principals and administrators - for providing transportation for students to programs and courses not offered in their home schools are playing a deadly "word game" that will be detrimental to all.

To put it mildly, it really isn't a question of ":quality integration," nor is it a problem of "dissension between white and black board members," although that is where the scenearic is taking place.

The problem as I see it and as propounded by Prentice and company, is an unwillingness to do that which is right for ALL students, even as the board's own policy statement on integration states, "... to give all students access to vocational and career facilities..."

Such uses of power in negation only serves to Afro-American parents and other interested persons in the Briggs-Eureka area high school development to therefore seriously question any commitment from those same persons regarding racial balance in the two west side high schools soon to be a reality.

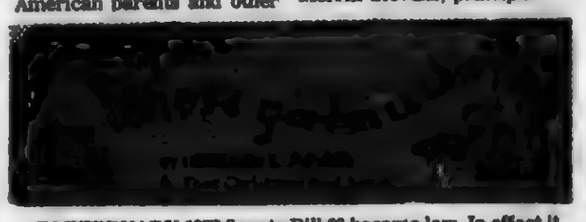
Sincerely,

Harold Turner
Advisory Committee Member,
Hilltonia PTA Vice Pres.

Principal Appreciates Coverage

To the Editor:

The articles in the Spectator Newspaper recently concerning the activities at West Mound School were outstanding.



We sincerely appreciate your cooperation and accuracy.

The photographs are always crystal clear.

Gratefully,

Merrill Stevens, principal

IN FEBRUARY 1972 Senate Bill 60 became law. In effect it said that anyone who started a junkyard with the cars in sight from the road would be liable for $20 each day they were in villation. The $20 was to be added to their property taxes and did not need lengthy court processes.

Just a mile from my house a blossoming junkyard appeared out of nowhere along a state highway. On March 28, 1972 I wrote the first of what was to prove a long list of letters in an attempt to get good old S.B. 60 on my messy neighbor.

BELIEVE IT or not, over a year later I am still trying to get the law applied to the junkyard. My contacts are as follows: for four months I insisted the Franklin County Sheriff get out there and inspect the premises. He did. Then for five months I nagged the county auditor who was to add the 20 bucks per day to the taxes.

In December 1972 the auditor brought the case to the office of the county prosecutor. (I have never figured out why.) Since then I have been nagging the law clerk and an assistant prosecutor to get going. A month ago the assistant prosecutor passed the case along to the county zoning board for verification.

A new sheriff is in office now and does not seem to care about the original complaint of a year ago. Nowhere does the law mention either the county prosecutor or the zoning board.

IN PART, the law of the land says"..whenever it is determined upon any semiannual inspection made under this section that a junkyard is not being conducted in accordance with the requirements of sections 4737.01 to 4737.14 inclusive, of the Ohio Revised Code, the sheriff shall immediately notify the owner of such fact." (This was done on June 2, 1972.)

From there on the system went sour. Sixty days later the sheriff should have re-inspected the premises and immediately notified the auditor to start tacking on 20 bucks per day for each day the junkyard was fenceless. Had that been done, according to law, Franklin County would have been $5,080 richer.

Or better yet, the operator of the illegal junkyard would have discovered it was too costly to continue paying the additional tax and either built a fence or moved on to a county where the officials cared less. As it is, the citizens have the worst possible combination.

THEY PAID the state legislators literally thousands of dollars in wages to pass a law. The $5,080 was lost through inefficiency and the eyesore remains.

At times like this I must stop and wonder just how much of the environment can be left safely in the hands of local politicians. I'd like to think the local office holders care about the state of our habitat but---?

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: If you find unfenced junkyards, tell your sheriff you want them fenced according to state laws. Show him this column and tell him you are prepared to force the issue. Get help from your local garden clubs.

Peter Glick Speaker At Prayer Breakfast

Congregation Tifereth Israel's Men's Club hosts its monthly prayer breakfast on Sunday, April 15, at 10 a.m. in the congregation social hall.

Peter M. Glick, ACSW, Executive Director of Jewish Family Service of Columbus, will share with club members, their wives and guests some of the critical issues facing American Judaism through the dynamics of the Jewish Family. Glick's subject: "Future Shock and the American Jewish Family" comes at a most appropriate time, just prior to the family centered celebration of Pesach.

Glick received his Masters of Social Work degree from the University of Pittsburgh, following it with services as Clinical Social Work Officer in the U. S. Army's Valley Forge General Hospital.

From 1965 to 1969 he was Senior Caseworker and Social Group Work Consultant at the Veterans Administration Hospital, East Orange, New Jersey. During that time he also was a Field Instructor in Casework and Group Work for the Rutgers School of Social Work.

He then became Director of Jewish Family Service of Daytonm, Ohio. While there he was elected President of the Miami Valley Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers and Vice-President of the Board of the Free Counseling Center, a counter-culture mental health agency in Dayton.

He assumed his current position as Executive Director of Jewish Family Service (Columbus) in October, 1972.

Glick is a member of a professional organizations. He and his wife, Harriet, are the parents of a four year-old son, Jonathan.

Men's Club Program director Heinz Hoffman said that free baby sitting is again available for Prayer Breakfast participants. Reservations for the April 15 breakfast or baby sitting may be made at 239-7021.

The sixth annual Agudas Achim Brotherhood 'flowers for the living' award was presented to Philip Waldman Tuesday, April 3, at 8 p.m. Agudas Achim Synagogue 2767 E. Broad St., corner of Roosevelt Ave.

He is past president of the Columbus Chapter of the Mizrachi, an organization dedicated to perpetuation of Orthodox Judaism, and has served as vice president of the Columbus Vaad Hoir which pertains to dietary law.

ARIES ASCENDING

Mar. 21 to April 19

It sometimes takes a cosmetologist a while to adjust to her Aries patrons for at first they seem too positive, almost combative, disagreeing with every suggestion. But we have learned that they will respond to sound logic and they love to try new things if we can justify it. One strange thing is that there is usually a mark or a scar on the head or temples which we must cover.

People Helping People

THE RED CROSS IS people helping people. While it is one of the oldest and largest social service agencies, it still can be thought of in a person—to person way. In the Blood Program, it all starts here, with the perspective donor, in this picture Anita L. Bryant, 1229 Fair Ave., giving registration details to Mrs. Madalyn Quant, a regular Red Cross volunteer.

...IN THE COLLECTION ROOM, these two volunteers type and mark the plastic bags which will contain the blood until it is ready for the donor. Volunteers Miss Mary Brown, 538 E. Mound, and Mrs. Donald (Elizabeth) Conroy, 1749 Westrun, put in a day a week at this task. Miss Brown is also a Red Cross volunteer at Grant Hospital.

The Senior Citizens will hold a Birthday party for members whose birthday was in Jan., Feb., and March, on April 5, 1973 at 7 p.m. A business meeting will also be conducted. All are invited.

Chess

As the Chess Program winds down, it officially ends March 31, a summary is in order. For a program that only lasted three months, many things were accomplished. Among then, two chess tournaments and the formation of a chess club. In all, some 50 people participated in the program, ranging from beginners to outstanding and dedicated players, from those who attended only once to those who never missed a session. The program can only be termed a huge success.

For a rundown on the tournaments, first we conducted a inter-club tournament. The 16 participants each played 12 games each getting two points for a win, one point for a tie, and no points for a loss. Medals were awarded for 1st., 2nd., and 3rd.

The final standings were Larry Dickens 11-1-0, for 22 - points, John Ogden 10-2-0 for 20 points, and Bob Gibson also for 10-2-0 for 20 points. (a play off was necessary for 2nd and 3rd place.) The second tournament, an invitational was held on March 10. The double elimination event attracted some 24 players. The outcome was never in doubt.

Our own Larry Dickens did it again. In five and one half hours of play, Larry did not suffer a defeat until the semi-finals, but with only one loss he came through the win a thrilling last game. It ended with Larry Dickens first, newcomer Bob Fick, second, and (you guessed it) John Ogden third.

The awards for both tournaments were provided by the Whitehall Recreation Department. At the end of our regular chess program, the members elected to form a chess club. For Information, call Randy Gidley, 961-9706.

Women's Softball

Mr. Dave Hart will be the coach of Women's Softball this year. If interested, please contact Dave Hart at 160 Midcliff or call, 861-1329. A meeting will be set up in early May.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

Helping to maintain the fashion look while keeping a firm hand on the purse strings, literally, are the exciting new handbags by JACLYN.

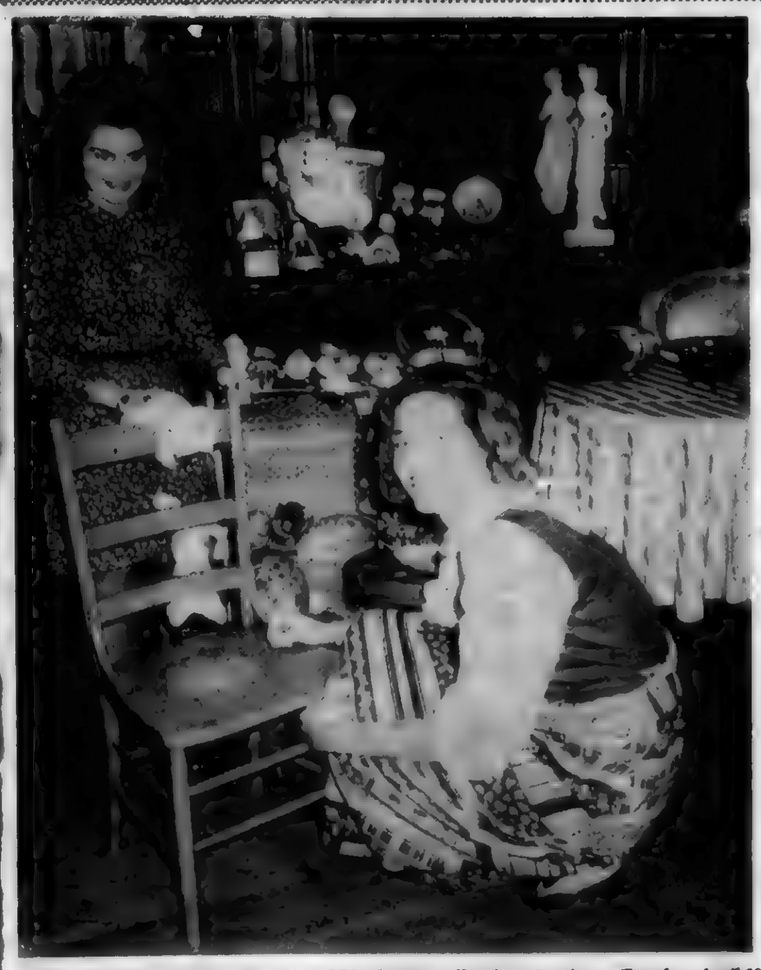
Whether in vinyl with the look of leather, or in fabrics that range from colorful cut velvet to sturdy canvas, all of the Jaclyn handbags belie their tiny price in their shapes and ornamentation, usually associated with couture creations.

ENVELOPE bags are the newest look for Spring and they are irresistible in the Jaclyn collection. One lean East to West handbag in glace vinyl, has a tri-compartment interior with front flap secreting an extra outer pocket and a shoulder strap that adjusts from long to short...another pair of quilted beauties are clasped with gilt or left unadorned.

SINCE CASUAL separates call for casual handbags, Jaclyn has created its famous softies...marvelously unstructured bags, from vagabonds and easy satchels to outsize mail pouches and carry-alls, in all the new colors and in two tones for a spectator look.

NEWEST ON the young swingers wavelength are the miniature shoulder-strapped mail pouches in antiqued vinyl that have a hand-tooled look...ideal for soft sporting clothes.

LAST BUT not least are the travel bags...giant sized handbags that could almost double as carry-on luggage. Squashy canvas bags, piped in contrasting color, are zipped all across the top for easy stashing...a huge soft vinyl bag has a small push-lock pocket at one end for carrying extra miscellany.



The new spring fashions demand a handbag for every look and activity, and at Jaclyn the price is right...each one less than $10.00. Isn't that nice to know?

April showers may bring May flowers, but they also bring hazardous driving conditions to Ohio's streets and highways. Slow down when the showers start, advises Pete O'Grady, Director of Ohio's Highway Safety.

TIPS on CLEANING
Chuck says

Q. How do I know what product is best for cleaning my carpets and furniture?

A. Check the ingredients. Any product with an oil base will attract soil, even after it is dry, causing things to get dirtier faster. Fiber Fresh, the product used by ServiceMaster all over the world, has no oil to cause resoiling. When it dries, it crystalizes all the remaining soil and can be vacuumed up completely, leaving no oil residue.

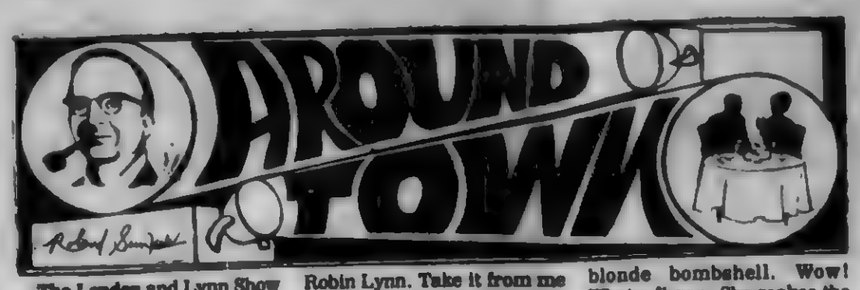
Night Stops Are Dangerous



Stopping on an unlighted highway after dark to change a tire or make other necessary repairs creates a traffic hazard, says the Columbus Auto Club—AAA. Your car should be stopped as far off the traveled roadway as possible, and parking and taillights should be kept on as a clear warning to approaching nighttime traffic. Better still, carry a flare or flashlight for emergency use.

The London and Lynn Show is currently at the Ramada Inn East. Yep, this act is properly named, because what a show they do furnish the crowds at the Ramada East.

Coming to Columbus direct from Las Vegas, where they make their home base, and have played in just about every major hotel in fun city, London and Lynn brings to the stage of the Ramada Inn the same show that has made them so popular in good ole Vegas.

You name it, and they have it in their act. Comedy, exciting instrumentals, the sexiest singer this side of the Rockies, all top shelf, is provided by this outfit.

The fivesome consists of a wild man with the trumpet, Bud Brown, the Godfather, himself, Mike Morrillo playing a silky sax, organist Tom Cavanough, who by the way, is a real expert in the music field. Rounding out the quintet is Billy London. This guy is a one man show himself. Besides being a first rate drummer, Billy is the one who handles the belly laugh comedy, as well as some mighty fine vocal work. Last, but by far not least, is a gal from England, who acts as straight man for Billy, Robin Lynn. Take it from me fellows, that's about the only thing that is straight with this blonde bombshell. Wow! What a figure. She makes the so called movie queens look like candidates for a health studio. Now, I know for sure that England is not an under developed nation.

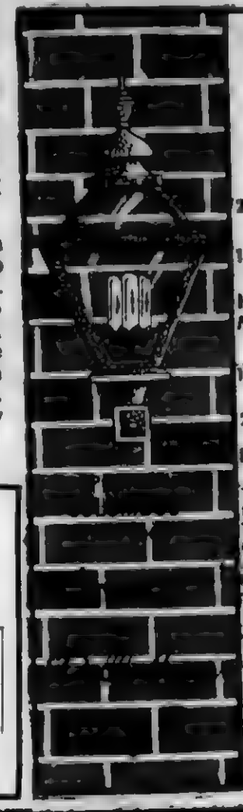
CURRENTLY at the Ramada Inn South is the highly entertaining quartet, The Make Believe. Opening last Monday after a successful cross country tour, The Make Believe appear Monday through Saturday at the popular Ramada Inn South Motel.

Besides, being a delightful rest for tired eyes, Robin sings up a storm. She has such a dynamic voice, that Robin could be a hit without any visual assists.

Now, that I have told you about the personnel in the act, let me tell you a little about their show. First Robin comes on and belts out a few numbers, then Billy dishes out a host of side splitting routines that run the gamut from a take-off of a southern radio preacher, to gorilla strolling through the audience. This fellow pulls no stops in between. You just never know, what may happen next, even after watching the show two or three times.

The close harmonics of the sax and trumpet, along with the organ, sound as if a full orchestra was on stage.

The show keeps moving at a fast clip for over an hour. Of course, as you may imagine, there is plenty of variety. With Billy's rapid fire delivery, his hilarious adlibs, along with the musical portions furnished by the entire group, you are bound to have an abundance of variety.



With the London and Lynn Show, you are also bound to have the time of your lives. You seldom get to see a group like this in Columbus. So, don't miss your chance, make sure you head to the Ramada Inn East this week or next. You'll be treated to a show that you will talk about for a long time to come.

A new and rather unique act opened this past Monday night at the Lincoln Lodge Motel. Sig and Gary is the name of this highly sophisticated lounge act. It is unusual because of the superb talent these two possess. Also, it's a unique duo, due to the fact that it is not high powered.

If you are looking for a place to go to hold a tete-a-tete with someone, then Lincoln Lodge and the Sig and

Fly Rod And Stream

When I was a boy and graduated from the old canepole, my father gave me a fly rod. I used it a lot to catch fish in shallow streams softly tossing crayfish and worms.

Dad always told me to wade quietly and cast towards the undercut banks and to fish the pools below ripples. He was right. I caught fish where he told me they would be.

You know, a fly rod and stream is a hard to beat combination to catch bass and trout. It's true there are places and likely looking spots you can't reach, but properly handled fly rod, small lures and live bait will catch fish in streams and lakes when larger lures fail.

There's no greater thrill when you can see a fish rise to the surface and smack your lure, then jump a foot or two in the air trying to shake it.

I've had smallmouth bass come up out of the water to take a bass bug before it even hit the surface. If you've never used a fly rod and top water lures, you may be missing a special way to enjoy the great sport of angling.

Bass Bugs Types And Uses

There are so many bass bugs displayed on cards in sporting goods stores, it's a problem trying to figure out which one to buy. Here are a few tips that might help you out. One of the more popular bass bugs is the folded wing. It imitates an insect with its wings folded back. It's made out of cork or plastic and has bucktail or feathers folded back along its body.

The best action to use when fishing a folded wing bug is a light and delicate twitch while retrieving.

Another bug is the crippled minnow. It imitates a common food source and is a natural, because game fish are suckers for an easy to catch minnow.

My favorite bass bug is the imitation frog. It's easy to use and is a natural food for big bass. Just imitate its live swimming action. Last to choose from on my list are the rubber and plastic insects such as grasshoppers, crickets and every other insect you can think of.

Some of these are good potential bass and panfish lures. Just remember when bass bugging, fish shallow water, no deeper than five or six feet, and think and work your artificial bug as though it were alive.

Group Effort

I stopped by to chat with Vic E. Sabo, recently appointed manager of Millersport Camper sales which is a division of Millersport Marina in Millersport Ohio. I noticed as I drove in town that the canal that runs through town for about a mile out to Buckeye Lake looked different. Vic told me the folks in town and the students at Millersport High were tired of looking at the trash that gathered along the banks.

They worked together as a group on two Thursdays last month, cleaned it up and hauled it away by the truck loads. They even cut down the dead trees and planted new. Good work Millersport!

Fishing Report

With all the rain and high water, the fishing outlook has been poor, however the Division of Wildlife reports trout fishing is fair to good.

I'm about a week late with the following, but it does prove you can catch big fish in Ohio:

Charles Massara checked in at Harry and Dots Bait store near Hoover Dam a 27¼ inch Walleye that weighed 6 lbs. 15 oz's. It was taken March 7 in the Big Walnut River below Hoover Dam.

G and B Bait at Delaware Dam reports Richard Pickens of Delaware landed an 18 lb. Musky, 38 inches, caught on a Rooster Tail spinner fishing Delaware Lake. Leo Dowsey of Columbus landed a 9 lb. 30 " Musky, also caught on a Rooster Tail Spiner.

District Fish And Game Hearing

Wildlife District One will conduct a District Fish and Game Hearing at the Hangar Building, 1500 Dublin Road, Columbus, Sunday, April 8 beginning at 1 p.m.

Interested hunters, trappers and fishermen are urged to attend this meeting.

Warning

With the coming of spring and warmer weather just around the corner, groundhog hunting will soon be at its peak. Many hunters will take advantage of this opportunity to keep their "shooting eye" honed by hunting this harbinger of spring.

The groundhog, or "whistle-pig" is most easily hunted this time of year because he is hungry after his winter hibernation and the ground cover has not yet grown high enough to offer good concealment.

Fred A. Schob, District One Law Enforcement Supervisor for Division of Wildlife cautions hunters against shooting these or other wild animals from vehicles parked on public thoroughfare or to shoot on, along, from or across any public road or highway. "This practice is dangerous", said Schob, "as well as being unlawful. The hunter sitting in his car along a road too often mistakes other objects, including humans and domestic animals for a groundhog and results in an otherwise pleasant hunting trip ending in tragedy.

Ohio's efforts in the conservation of natural resources and fish management were recognized last Saturday at the annual convention of the League of Ohio Sportsmen at Salt Fork State Park near Cambridge.

Three persons from the Department of Natural Resources were among those honored at the League's annual Governor's Award Banquet, and two anglers received cash prizes for record fish taken from Piedmont Lake in Belmont County in 1972.

Fish Eggs

Ohio fishermen get a big boost each Spring from the division of wildlife of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources when the division conducts its annual game fish egg collection project.

Division of wildlife chief Dan C. Armbruster said division personnel will collect walleye and muskellunge eggs at many Ohio reservoirs during the next two weeks. The division has completed collection of Northern pike eggs.

The egg collection is performed as part of the division's fish population survey. Population information is used to determine future management programs.

The process involves capturing mature female fish in nets and forcing ripened eggs from the female's ovaries.

Gary Duo is it. They play and sing in a very quiet, soft manner. Their music, while entertaining, does not overshadow the conversation in the room. Sig and Gary entertain, yet they don't force themselves upon the audience.

If you want to talk, that's A-OK. But, give them five minutes of your attention, and you'll forget about everything else except listening to the two songbirds. It has been a long time since I have heard such beautiful harmony and all around vocal renditions as Sig and Gary [illegible].

Sig, short for Sigrid, is certainly a rare treat in today's show business's world. What talent. I could sit and listen to her vocal renditions all night. The same is true for Gary. Both of their voices contain so much classy, subtle tones, used with such delightful stylizing, that I practically sat in the lounge speechless during my entire visit.

For those of you who are really lovers of good music, music that is treated with taste and sophistication, then Sig and Gary is a must for you. They will be at the Lodge for a limited engagement. So, take my advice, and rush out there this week.

For those of you who enjoy good contemporary music head towards Marco Polo's Lounge this week and catch Eddie Ray and Company. What a company, this is.

Eddie Ray is a fellow, with plenty of experience under his belt for such a young man. Eddie has a rare voice, and style to match, that just grabs hold of your ears and doesn't let go. I found myself to be completely fascinated with his voice. Not only his tonal qualities, but his style are quite different.

While the Eddie Ray and Company is a contemporary group, they are not one of these loud, ear splitting aggregations. Bob Ochsendorf plays the guitar, as well as sings both lead and harmony work. He does lots of strong, solid work, in both departments. The same can be said for Craig Stickel at the bass guitar. Craig also joins the vocal department on many numbers. Mike Carson is the backbone of the instrumentals, with his fine work at the organ, and electric piano. Mike also turns in some nice vocal renditions. Steve Smith does an adequate job taking care of the sticks and skins.

Of course, the main duties fo the four, is to give Eddie Ray first rate backing. They do their job well. That's for sure.

I think it is only fair to warn you, that in my opinion, you will set and listen to Eddie for many sets, or walk out after a few numbers. His unusual singing style is the reason I say this. But, if you are like me, and a host of others who drop in at Marco Polo's Lounge, you will want to hear more and more. From the way the place has been jammed, I think speaks for itself. Eddie Ray and Company have plenty of company every night at Marco Polo's Lounge. Join in the fun. It happens Monday through Saturday.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Watch for a well known North end Italian restaurant to change hands real soon. It seems like junior just can't make a go of it ... I heard about it, but I've never experienced it, until the other day. Perky and pretty Betty Cunningham, the cashier at the Olentangy Inn's restaurant is walking around with her finger in a splint. Seems as if she broke it by getting it caught in the cash register. Come on Betty, you can come up with a better story than that .... Dined at the Ramada Inn East last Friday. Their Seafood Buffet is great. I have to recommend it, that's for sure ..... Page Four, is an exciting new act at the all new Ohio Stater Inn Motel. Wait until you see Polly Grove, the cute chick singing with them. They came to the Ohio Stater right from the Chicago Playboy Club. More on them next week.....The Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg is coming on strong. They now have entertainment six nights a week in their cocktail lounge. Plans are to change groups every two weeks. More on this next week, also ... See You Around Town.

A BOY ON ICE IS RARELY IN HOT WATER

Bantam Hockey Team Champs

The Ice Chalet bantam hockey team made a noble try for the Junior International Hockey League championship last week at Dayton but lost a tough overtime decision to Philadelphia, then trounced Ft. Wayne but lost again to Philadelphia to get eliminated.

The bantams went to the regional tournament representing the State of Ohio with that chamioonship title won the previous week. The bantams knocked off Bowling Green, 6-2, then Dayton, 5-3 and added Toledo to its list of victims, 7-2, to win the Ohio title.

The Columbus Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) has over 300 boys in the program and covers ages 6-21.

The age categories are: 6-8, Mite; 9-10, Squirts; 11-12, Pee Wees; 13-14 Bantams; 15-16, Midgets and 17-21, Juniors.

CAHA is a member of the American Youth Hockey League and this is composed of teams from Dayton, Findlay, Toledo, Knoxville (Tenn.), Ft. Wayne (Ind.) and Erie (Pa.)

The team record this year before the playoffs was 25-9-2 and as champs of the league they won 11 and lost only one.

They finished third in the league playoffs and were runnerup in a tournament at Kingston, Ontario, Canada and finished third in a Michigan tournament before clinching the Ohio crown.

Cruiser Golfers Head To Virginia

Bob Blagg's Groveport-Madison High School golfers will take a weekend fling to Oglebay Park in Wheeling, West Virginia starting Friday night after a match against London and Hilliard at Groveport Country Club.

The Cruisers finished second in the Mid-8 last year and this could be their final Mid-8 effort as they are reportedly headed for the Ohio Capital Conference.

Bexley and Mifflin golf teams will also go to Virginia with the Groveport golfers.

They'll play Wheeling High School Saturday and Sunday will participate in intra-squad matches.

The team will stay in a four-bedroom cabin with living room, kitchen and bath.

They can also play golf at night on a lighted 18-hole Par 3 course.

Blagg said that 35 boys tried out for the team this year and they usually don't have more than 12 or 15 try out.

The team will return late Sunday.

Groveport will play Upper Arlington Monday, April 9 and will have a triangular meet against Whitehall and Worthington Tuesday, April 10, with all matches at Groveport Country Club.

Wins Angling Recognition

J. H. Campbell, 6614 Red Fox Rd., won angling recognition in the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament when he caught a 13 lb. 2 oz. jack in the spin casting division.

He was fishing out of Key West with Capt. Lefty Reagan on the Marquesas as guide.

Ohio Dominican Starts Heavy 37-Game Schedule

Ohio Dominican College's 1973 baseball roster carries names of four seniors, all letermen at ODC last spring, along with 10 freshmen according to Thomas School, ODC baseball coach and athletic director.

This is the fourth baseball season at Ohio Dominican, which at one point last year was rained out 14 of 17 games, and finished the season with a 10-12 record.

The 37-game schedule, about six per week, will require Coach School to use at least four starting pitchers, using two additional starters in heavy weeks. The 1973 schedule is one of the toughest among small colleges, including gmes with Dayton, Ashland, Youngstown, and Wooster, as well as Bellarmine.

Coach School will select his starters and relief pitchers from these: Doug Carpenter, senior, Zanesville Rosecrans; Jamie Diedalis, junior, Columbus DeSales: Carl Bogenschutz, sophomore, Erlanger, Ky., Covington Latin; Dwight Kollmeier, sophomore, Sandusky, Shelby High School; Tony Schwendeman, freshman, Dayton Chaminade: Mike Hull, freshman, Columbus, Greenfield McClain; and dennis Lee, Neptune, N. St. Charles Ready To Make Baseball Waves

By Bill Morrisroe

St. Charles will return to the diamond sport in an optimistic frame of mind.

The team finished with 15 wins and five losses last year, became sectional champs, and district runners-up.

The Cardinals have 11 returning lettermen, but Coach Don Henne says the team will miss All-District players, Craig McDonald, 1st baseman, who hit .428, and John McVey, Catcher, who hit .338.

Hitting will be a concern to the team this year, with the defense and pitching being more than adequate.

Even though St. Charles is a Class "A" team, it will play a number of "AA" and "AAA" teams to round off a tough schedule in preparation for this year's State Tournament and next year's participation in Central Catholic League, to which St. Charles has recently been readmitted.

The Cards are young - this year's starting pitchers will all be Sophomores - but experienced in that these players have pitched for St. Charles for almost two years.

Other Sophomore pitchers are Jim Tracy, Dick Miller, Bobby Ryan, and Rick Mackessy. Bobby Ryan and Rick Mackessy will also handle left field and shortstop, respectively.

Of the veterans, Rhett Plank and Bob Doriwski will handle 1st base, and Jim Vonau will be at 2nd base. Dave Heilman will be going after shortstop.

In the outfield, Tom Simmons and Jerry Lang, team co-captains, will play right field and center field, respectively. Bill Morrisroe and Bob Iannarino will back up the starters in the outfield.

Coach Henne says the team spirit is high. He expects last year's winning trend to continue and awaits another winning season.

St. Charles opens its season Friday against Columbus East.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Pough

WITH MUDDY SHOES

I JUST got word from my good friend and outdoor writing Fremonter, Harold Barr, that the walleye run up the Sandusky River has begun. For those of you who are not familiar with this phenominon of nature, it's the biggest fish-catching event on Ohio's angling calendar.

When the water in Lake Erie rises during the spring rains, the spawning walleyes swim up the Sandusky River as far as they must to find suitable nesting areas. Traditionally, the Sandusky - where it flows through Fremont - becomes a mecca for Ohio's hungry, cabin-weary fishermen.

THIS YEAR, the first few were sighted off the bridge in the heart of Fremont on March 11th. Varying with the weather and amount of rainfall, the run will last from ten days to two weeks. By the time you read this, if weather has been fair, three or four days will remain. If much rain hits the Lake Erie to Fremont area, the run will slow a bit, maybe extended into early April.

Compared to the California grunion run or the return of the swallows to Capistrano, the Sandusky walleye run is small. Compared to Ohio fishing the rest of the year in most other areas, the walleye run is magnificent. Three pounders are common and an occassional five-pounder is dragged ashore right below the bridge. Timing is all important.

Making the trip to Fremont too early or too late is an exercise in futility.

AFTER arriving in Fremont, a trip to the local fishing tackle shop is indeed a good idea. Generally, the lure to use is a feathered ¼-ounce weighted jig but the locals vary their likes in color from year to year.Four to six pound monofiliment on a good spinning rig is the best possible medicine.

The retrieve must be started quickly as the weighted jig has a tendency to get to the bottom of things in a hurry. Many's the fishing safari cut short in its prime from loss of lures and terminal tackle.

IF YOU think all the walleyes have gone from your life, get thee to the burg of Fremont before this moon wanes, catch your limit and live again the wondrous days of plenty.

BIG FISH CAUGHT

Elmer (Curley) Marcum, 6746 Rocky Dea Rd., caught a 10 lb. large mouth bass while on a fishing trip with his son Terry and other Bass Club members last week in Tallahassee, Florida.

Your carrier is counting on you.

Large Print Books Are Now Available

Librarian Edward Daniels said Columbus Public Library has recently added to its large print sight-saving collection at Main Library, 96 S. Grant Ave.

New this year in the Fiction Division is the weekly large print New York Times and the monthly large print edition of Reader's Digest. Patrons should ask for these two publications at the Fiction desk.

Five new acquisitions in large print now available for general circulation include: "On the Night of the Seventh Moon" by Victoria Holt; "Out of the Dark" by Norah Lofts; "My Life and Prophecies" by Jeane Dixon; "Who Owns America" by Walter Hickel and "Portrait of a President" by William Manchester.

Persons young and old alike who have sight difficulties and who require large print reading material are encouraged to ask for a complete free list of large print books now available at Columbus Public Library.

The list is available at Main Library or at any of the 20 branch libraries in the greater Columbus area.

The Body's Building Blocks

THE HUMAN digestive process breaks down protein into amino acids. These are sometimes called the body's "building blocks."

There are 21 commonly known amino acids, eight of which are termed "essential" because if they are available from the food a person eats, the body can manufacture the other needed amino acids.

Fortunately, it makes no difference whether all of these essential amino acids are available in one food such as meat or are obtained from a combination of vegetable proteins.

The case for vegetable proteins is that studies indicate vegetarians live longer than meat-eaters.

PRACTICALLY all foods contain some protein, and by providing a variety of foods, the protein in one food supplements that found in another. This is true of combinations of whole grains and legumes such as beans, peas, and lentils.

Soybeans are an especially good source of vegetable protein and they contain all the essential amino acids.

HOWEVER, for many people, all this discussion about the food value of vegetable protein misses the point that people like meat. They have eaten it for years and like the taste of it.

Undoubtedly most people will continue eating meat, although perhaps in lesfer amounts, in spite of their grumbling about cost and quality.

But those who are adventuresome enough to experiment with vegetable-protein recipes will be delighted to discover how ingeniously practicing vegetarians have developed tasty, eye-appealing entrees using high-protein nuts, grains, and legumes.

THIS recipe for cheese-nut patties may be served on hamburger buns with all the trimmings, or covered with tomato juice and served in the place of meat.

Oatmeal-Cottage Cheese Patties

1 cup nuts
½ cup oatmeal
½ cup cottage cheese
½ cup bread crumbs
1 medium onion chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sage

An egg or a little canned milk can be added if desired. Mix together and form patties. Brown in small amount of oil.

More vegetarian entree recipes may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Department of Health, 6840 Eastern Avenue, N. W. Washington, D. C. 20012.

Pool Patter
By Peg Pierce

TOTS-N-FOLKS — The Teach Your Infant to Swim program is held on Thursday morning at 10:30 a.m. in the indoor pool at The Jewish Center. Because so many families have backyard pools and each year more and more leisure time is spent in and around water, it stands to reason that parents must begin mental and physical adjustment methods for their infants.

The average age is between eighteen months and three years old. This age group seems to adapt rather well and can follow directions from their parents. The parent does the actual teaching. We just add a few ideas and tricks of the trade.

Our Center program is geared for a long span with very little pressure forced on either parent or child. Tots and Folks enrolled are: Janice Nelson with Christopher, Janet Brand with Adam and Nina, Anita Grossman with Andrew, Hilary Talis with Mark, and Brenda Davidorf with Melissa.

CORALINA CLUB – The Synchronized swimmers are now first in the region. Luanne Saas, a Center member and former swimming, diving student, has made the A—team with the Coralina's. We watched the team practice the night before they left to go to Texas for a national competion. Good luck girls. We are all cheering you on!

POLLIWOGS – "On behalf of The American Red Cross and The Columbus Jewish Center it gives me great pleasure to present to you your Polliwog Patch." Ms. Ivy Guseman, Mr. Irving Brombert, and Mr. Phil Weintraub. Now let's hear it for these adults! Applause please!

Notice — Indoor pool will be closed on the days and evenings of Passover.

ROBERT FARLEY

Retires

Robert J. Farley, 240 Eastmoor Blvd., assistant controller for the Columbia Gas System Service Corporation, 1600 Dublin Road, Marble Cliff, retired April 1 after more than 38 years of service with affiliated companies of the Columbia Gas.

Farley started as an accountant for the Ohio Fuel Gas Company in Columbus in 1934. Locally, he is a past chairman of the Advisory Board of the Catholic Welfare Bureau, and is a member of St. Catharine's Catholic Church of Bexley. He and his wife, Helen have three sons, the Rev. Thomas J., of Columbus, John R., a teacher at Barret Junior High School, and Stephen M.

Eastview United Methodist Church

The Chancel Choir of Eastview United Methodist Church will present Dubois's Cantata, "The Seven Last Words" on Sunday April 8th at both the 9 and 10:30 services. The soloists are Mrs. Richard Seeley, Mrs. Jack Wise, Mr. Ray Castle, Mr. Roger Bair and guest soloist, Mr. Jack Swicegood. Mrs. Tad Flugge is choir director and Mr. Paul Gerheart organist.

Promote your club activities in The Spectator.

Opera Workshop Set For Weekend

The two productions scheduled by Capital University's Opera Workshop for April 6, 7 and 8 reflect musical efforts of the conservatory of music, scenic design by the department of art, and choreography by the department of physical education.

The musical dramas are "Trouble in Tahiti" by Leonard Bernstein, and "The Medium" by Gian-Carlo Menotti. Curtain times will be at 8 p.m. on April 6 and 7, and at 2:30 p.m. on April 8.

"Trouble in Tahiti," written by Bernstein in 1953, is a satire on life in middle-class America, seen through the actions of a husband and wife as the central characters. "the Medium" focuses on a charlatan who has for years deluded clients into believing she can help them contact their departed loved ones.

The opera workshop company at Capital is directed by Gene Allen; the university orchestra is conducted by Richard Suddendorf.

Tickets for the opera double-bill are $2 and $1. They will be available at the door, or in advance by contacting the Capital University central ticket office at 236-6802.

Medic Units Announced

To provide better emergency squad and medic (high trauma) service for the citizens of Columbus, Fire Chief Raymond R. Fadley has announced the addition of a new medic unit.

Manpower for the new medic will come from phasing out one of the present emergency squads, adding three men from operations personnel, and replacing it with the medic unit.

Faster response to emergencies will be made available by relocating two emergency squads and two medic units now in service. The relocation will establish a back up pattern from the center of the city outward, of a squad-medic-squad. The changes will also place the units in close proximity to the freeway system for rapid cross-town respnse.

The four medic units will be stationed at; E. Fulton and S. Fourth Street; Glenwood Avenue and W. Broad Street; E. Livingston and Rhoads; and E. Weber and McGuggey.

The emergency squads will be stationed at; Chestnut and N. Fourth Street; Maple Canyon Drive and Dublin-Granville Road; Eighth Avenue and Indianola; E. Long Street and Champion Avenue; Himnman Avenue and Parsons Avenue; Wheatland avenue and W. Broad; Hampton Road and E. Main Street.

Walnut Ridge Scientist Big Winner

BY THOMAS CONNERY
Special Staff Writer

With Marie Castleman casting the only dissenting vote, the Columbus Board of Education approved a voluntary busing plan designed to bring about integrated educational experiences.

The 6 to 1 vote came following a long and stormy debate over interpretation of the board's July 18, 1972 policy statement which called for "giving each student the opportunity of integrated educational experiences."

Called the Columbus Plan, the busing program provides transportation for students who voluntarily choose to attend another school to participate in an educational program not available in the home school. The plan calls for school to school busing, and not home to school busing.

Although Supt. John Ellis has much leeway in deciding who will be transported to what program, he emphasized that the student will be bused for a specific program and not to force integration.

BOARD PRESIDENT Thomas Moyer said, "No one wants to transport students just to put a white student next to a black student and vice versa." He said the purpose of the busing plan is to make available "academic courses and vocational and career courses" to all students.

The plan passed by the board was a revision of the plan presented to the board at its March 13 study session. At that time white board members objected to including voluntary transfer students in the busing program.

Voluntary transfer students are part of a long-standing program that allows students to transfer to another school at their own cost to improve racial balance. Under the revised plan voluntary transfer students may receive free busing only if they change schools for a specific program. According to Ellis, most of the voluntary transfer students will be eligible for the free busing.

Mrs. Castleman indicated after the meeting that her negative vote was a protest against the insincerity of the white board members in passing the July 18 policy statement.

BEFORE THE VOTE, Ray McLain, who ran for the board in the last election, and Mary Flom spoke against the busing plan.

Napolean Bell, Urban League president, the Rev. John Frazer, Metropolitan Area Church Board, Charlotte Whitkin, Columbus Community Relations Commission, Roland Brown, Urban Education Coalition, and Dorothy Reynolds, League of Women Voters each spoke in favor of the plan.

Shortly before the board was about to vote on a plan to improve the racial balance of the professional staffs in the schools, it received word that the Ohio Civil Rights Commission had rejected the plan.

The Commission will hold public hearings in June on alleged discrimination in the assigning of teachers to schools. Two complaints were received by the commission about 18 months ago.

REACTING TO THE commission's rejection, Moyer said "this is an example of a government agency not understanding anything about the operation of a school system." He said that the commission is "doing nothing to further education in Columbus, Ohio," and suggested that members of the commission "look at their own houses first."

Board member Paul Langdon said the commission was acting "without due regard for the education of our children."

Ellis pointed out that the commission's demands of staff ratios would cause such high turnover rates in professional staffs that it raised "a serious question of the impact" immediate implementation of such ratios would have on the students and faculties of many schools.

In other business, the board approved a plan to lease a Marathon Oil service station to serve as a training center for careers in the automotive service station business.

THE STATION is located at 1080 E. Broad St. and is a former training center of the Marathon company. Rent is set at $1 a month through August, and then $200 a month until the lease expires.

The station will be a part of Central High's vocational education program, and will serve 50 students, providing on-the-job training in maintenance and mechanical work, customer relations and service station management.

Students will operate the program in the daylight hours only, and under the direction of vocational teachers.

Initial cost of the program is $28,000, which will be used to purchase supplies and equipment necessary to start the program, and for teachers' salaries until the start of the next school year.

About half of the equipment costs will be reimbursed by the State Department of Vocational Education. It is expected that the program will be self-supporting.

Eastland Teachers Get Salary Raise

The Eastland Joint Vocational Center board of education met in regular session recently and a new teachers salary schedule was adopted and will go into effect July 1.

The beginning bachelor of arts salary will be $7,600 and the top of the masters of art will be $13,600 with 14 years experience.

In other action, the Board:

-Received the Communications and Public Relations Report for February.

-Received the policy on Emergency Closing of School to require all employees to report to work on these days if it is at all possible for them to do so.

-Approved the payment of $10 per month toward the family portion of hospitalization, surgical and major medical insurance for each employee.

-Re-employed Thomas A. Parks, Director of Adult Education, and Edward B. Riley, Assistant Supervisor of Adult Education and Trade and Industrial Education.

-Adopted the school calendar for 1973-74 and non-certified work calendars for 1973-74.

Project Aids Hospital

EITHTEEN TROOPS IN THE SHADY LANE Service Unit on the far east side of Columbus, voted to participate in a service project for babies. The girls found an enthusiastic reception at St. Ann's Hospital. Baby items, such as clothing, bottles, blankets and diapers were presented to Sister Rosarita, hospital administrator. Members of the troop 330 making the presentation were left to right: Cindy Moxley, Lisa Moxley and Dawn Sherri Dostie.

Present 'The Stuck Pot'

"THE STUCK POT" is the title of this year's Spring Play at Johnson Park Junior High School. Two performances are scheduled today at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the school. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Sheila Morris is directing the play. South High Students Make Trip West

A concerted effort both in and out of class, plus a grant from the Martha Holden Jennings Foundation of Cleveland, Ohio, have made a dream a reality to 17 people at South High School.

15 students and two teachers will board a fully-equipped mobile home and begin a 6,500 mile trek across the United Stated on a Western Extended Classroom. For the remainder of the month, the group will hike through national parks, visit the Salt Lake City area to study Mormon Family life, and live on a Navajo reservation to observe the Indian family and mores.

For two of the weeks the group will participate in role reversal; women and men will exchange traditional male and female jobs and attitudes.

The focus of the trip evolved through the Family Life sociology course taught by Mike Rotonda at the school. Previously, his students spent several days in Amish homes in order to study and analyze their close family units.

With the prospect of an extensive trip within reach, students guided by Rotonda pitched in and raised over $1,700 in bake sales, donut sales, car washes, and numerous other projects.

Ms. Brenda Arnett, a South High teacher of multi-media, will accompany the group and with members of her class will make a movie of their adventure and study. They plan to edit the film and show it to students and local service groups. To defray costs for the film, sponsors were asked to buy 15 and 30 second movie advertisements.

Preparing for the trip, students had to undergo a long period of training and preparation which included co-educational physical fitness, first aid lectures, extensive map reading and geology of the Grand Canyon, Brice, and Zion National Parks.

TB Association Has Change In Name

The Tuberculosis Society of Columbus, Franklin, Delaware, and Union counties is changing its name to the Central Ohio Lung Association.

The new name reflects the increased importance of the expanding program interests as well as the central purpose of the Association--to prevent and control all lung diseases.

Mr. Harold Throop, the Director of the Association, explained, "Since modern drugs have reduced the problems in tuberculosis control and since emphysema is becoming a major health problem, the name, Lung Association, will better re flect the functions of the Association." He added that for a number of years the programs of the organization have dealt with many other diseases besides TB; all of them effecting the lung.

The Association has an emphysema screening program, anti-smoking activities, a home care program for emphysema patients, tubeerculosis control programs, professional educational programs, and general education programs about air pollution and lung diseases.

Police Athletic League Begins Fund Raising

The Columbus Police Athletic League is just beginning its fourth year of serving the youth of Columbus.

P.A.L. is a non-profit organization dedicated to better community relations through a positive but basic change of attitudes and actions. P.A.L. programs provide a wide scope of athletic events and a summer camping program to a broad cross section of boys and girls throughout the city.

The projected 1973 P.A.L. budget of $30,000 will permit them to continue and expand their programs. Last year over 1,000 youngsters participated.

The fund-raising program is now under way and P.A.L. is asking the community to support its programs and send contributions to the Police Athletic League, 120 West Gay Street, Columbus, Ohio 42315.

Miflin High School Receives Accreditation

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has approved accreditation for Mifflin High School.

The action, which means all 14 Columbus senior highs are now accredited by the association, came during North Central's 78th annual meeting March 28, according to a letter Superintendent Dr. John Ellis received Tuesday from Stanley Fox, chairman of the Ohio North Central Committee.

In the letter, Fox said the approval "reflects extraordinary effort by the administration and staff" to meet the association's requirements. "The Board of Education, school staff, and community deserve praise for the support and commitments which have made this achievement possible," he wrote.

Since Mifflin's accreditation becomes effective for the current school year, Fox pointed out, the transcripts of this year's graduates can show they received their diplomas from an accredited high school, something that is looked upon favorably by college admission offices.

Mifflin High, previously operated by the Mifflin Local School District which was annexed by the Columbus system in 1971, had lost its accreditation several years ago.

The accreditation means Mifflin now meets the high quality standards set by North Central for the school's instructional program, staffing, counseling services, library and physical facilities.

About 4,000 accredited high schools in 19 states are members of North Central, the largest educational accrediting association in the United States.

Mixed?

MIXED. That's how the color of my hair is described on my new Ohio operator's license.

I thought the registrar and I were just joking about how best to describe the slightly graying locks.

Not so. People are becoming sticklers for detail.

I JUST hope no one claims or accuses me of having a frosting job. That would end it all.

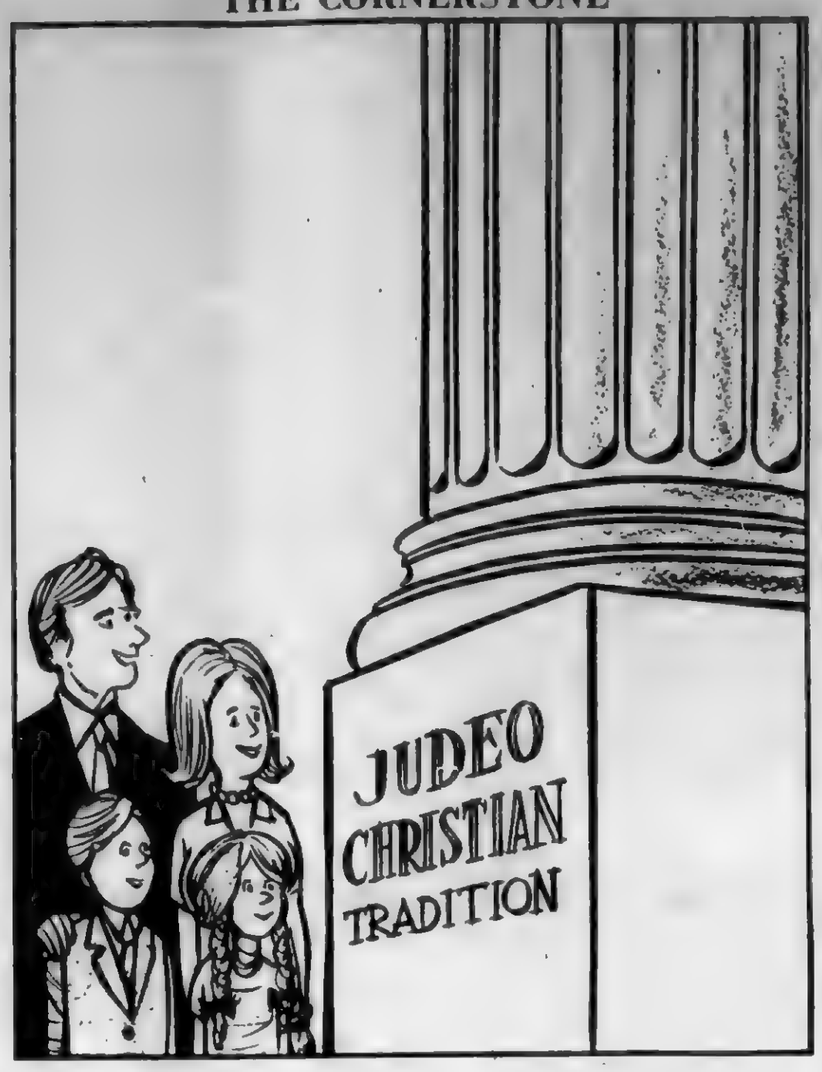
I've been thinking about all the words and phrases I've heard about the graying (or is it greying?) process - how to avoid it - how to put up with it and also how to ignore it.

One thing for sure - it's here and I've resigned myself to staying with the color as is.

I'VE ALREADY pointed out to the wife and each child the portion of grey that they have individually created through fret and worry. That went over even less than the proverbial lead balloon.

So what do you do? You grin and bear it and remember that where there is snow on the mountain there is fire in the furnace but you also remember that applies only to volcanoes.

What's the best way to avoid falling hair? You either step aside or let it turn grey.



So my hair is mixed.

THAT'S NOT as bad as my certified copy of my high school grades and credits that point out that I was born in 1931 (I graduated in 1939 at the ripe old age of eight according to the certified copy) and failed courses in English and Journalism (to which many of our readers might be in agreement without a doubt) and lettered in every sport except mumbly-peg and tug-of-war (I was actually the third jerk on the tug-of-war team).

To err is human - to forgive divine.

AT LEAST it brought back a few things that I used to laugh about and still find time today to do the same.

THE CORNERSTONE

Rejuvenation Of Spirit

WHETHER celebrating Passover on April 17, Easter on April 22, or just the fact that it's spring, it is appropriate for all citizens to honor the Judeo-Christian Tradition. Scholars say that this is the foundation of our secular American form of government, our freedoms, and our private business system.

CHRISTIANITY followed the Jewish tradition of a well-integrated family life, a legal order, and ethical principles based on divine and brotherly love. "One nation under God" says the Pledge of Allegiance, and "endowed by their Creator..." says the Declaration of Independence.

SO, whether celebrating the resurrection of Jesus or the sparing of the Hebrew first-born in ancient Egypt, we can all pray that we will be able to build on the wisdom and sacrifices of our ancestors to achieve a new era of prosperity and understanding. We can look forward eagerly and with great hope for future accomplishments to the rejuvenation of spirit which comes in this joyous season.

Inquiries Invited

Questions About COTA Answered By Experts

The Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) through the "Transit Crisis Committee" has issued a series of questions and answers concerning the facts of the .8 mill levy that will be on the May 8 ballot.

The 41-question and answer series started in the March 28 issue and continues through April 18.

(Third Of A Series)

Doesn't the COTA program mean government ownership of the bus system?

The COTA program does not mean government ownership of the transportation system. It does mean public ownership of the system. The COTA board of trustees represents the public and it will set the policies under which the system will be operated.

But that's still not private ownership.

Right. It's public ownership. COTA agrees that in most cases private ownership is preferable to public ownership. But in the case of public transportation, it has been conclusively proven that private ownership simply is not working.

Why won't private ownership work in mass transportation?

Because the private company has not been able to compete with the combined automobile success and public highway building program. As a result, privately owned transit companies all over the country have been unable to take in enough at the fare box to pay their operating expenses and still show a profit. In the past decade 254 privately owned transit companies have gone out of business in this country. The Columbus Transit Company is the last privately owned company of any size left in Ohio. The rest, Toledo, Akron, Youngstown, Cincinnati, Cleveland, all have become publically owned.

But doesn't the Columbus Transit Company still show a profit?

Yes, it does show a profit -- a very small one and one that is constantly declining. The company has been able to stay out of the red by constantly cutting service and by increasing fares. But every time the fare increases, the ridership drops off. It is a vicious spiral, the same spiral that put so many other privately owned transit companies out of business.

You say that if we don't pass the tax the Columbus Transit Company will go out of business on June 30. How do you know that? How do I know that at the last minute the City of Columbus or some other agency won't come up with enough money to keep the busses running?

Neither the city of Columbus or any other agency has the money to do it.

How much money will the tax levy raise?

Over the three-year life of the levy about $8.1 million will be raised.

How will this money be used?

Some of it will be used to buy the equipment of the CTC, and some for capital improvements inthe form of matching money to qualify for the Federal grant. Some will be used for operating expenses and for planning.

Why will the tax run for three years?

That is the minimum amount of time that will be necessary for new COTA management to reduce the decline in ridership, improve the existing service, find an alternate source of financing and plan for a real mass transit system in the future.

If the tax levy passes, what will happen to the fares?

COTA will immediately stabilize the basic fare at 50 cents. Senior Citizens will ride during off-peak hours for 25 cents. Peak hours are 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m. on weekdays.

It is a matter of economics. The levy is limited and the money can go so far. The consultants to COTA will continue to study both of these and if funds become available other fare reforms will be instituted.

How does COTA plan to improve the existing bus system?

Most important, it will prevent the present system from collapsing when the CTC goes out of business. It will stabilize the fare structure. It will restore most of the service cuts made by the Columbus Transit Company on Jan. 1, 1973. It also plans to make 13 route improvements and extensions. These improvements are listed further on in the book.

What employment policies will COTA follow?

COTA will be an equal opportunity employer and will develop an affirmative action program to recruit employees from among minority groups. Present drivers and other employees are guaranteed continuation

How can I obtain more information about the COTA levy?

By calling 224-COTA (224-2682).

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Atlantic Union Berated By Writer

To the Editor:

An article in the Columbus Dispatch, Tuesday, March 27, 1973, page 10A probably went unnoticed by most people, yet, if our government passes the Atlantic Union, the United States will lose its Independent Republic.

More than that, it will lose its national sovereignty and the Constitution of the United States will be a complete thing of the past.

The recent devaluation of our dollar may be the giant step towards the realization of the Atlantic Union - World Government.

The article said the proposal was criticized before the House committee by Lillian C. Williams of Bridgewood, N. J. who said she was testifying as a private citizen.

She said, "It is terrifying to contemplate the President of the United States selling out the Constitution of the United States."

President Richard Nixon and Senator Hubert Humphrey are men who have been publicly and emphatically committed, for many years, to movements for a world government in which the United States will be merely a regional province, having surrendered its national sovereignty.

There are many movements for world government. The one to which Nixon and Humphrey belong is called Atlantic Union. Another one is the World Federalist. They both have the same goal - World Government. Nixon and Humphrey are both Council On Foreign Relations men, C F R. That's the very powerful, secret, communist accomodating C F R made up of some 1450 very wealthy intellectuals and socialists in America. Identified Communist Alger Hiss was a C F R, probably still is one.

President Nixon is strictly an Internationalist, which means, any of his international dealings, the United States of America will come out second best on the list, or further down. We seem to always lose. Of course Kissinger runs the show.

The article said, "A resolution for American-European consideration of such a federation, supported by President Nixon "as a goal and a concept," was approved by the Senate by voice vote Monday with little debate and sent to the House."

Congressman Paul Findley, Republican of Illinois compared the proposed convention to the Constitutional Convention in 1787. I would say that is pretty earth shaking to just receive a "voice vote."

The Communist United Nations would probably be at the head of the Atlantic Union. That's the United Nations that since it has come into being, fostered by the Rockefeller's (CFR) and the C F R itself, has witnessed more wars in that period of time than in the history of the world.

And is seeing the United States approaching the status of being a second rate power. The U. N. Charter was written by Alger Hiss (C F R), Molotov and Vishinsky.

The aim of the United Nations has always been One World Government - which means world laws, World Court, World Army, World Navy, World Schools and World Church without Christ.

In time, if the Atlantic Union is passed, could mean,

1. Foreign politicians envious of American prosperity and unshakably convinced that America is possessed of unlimited wealth, would decide how much taxes we Americans should pay without even having to consult our own government in the matter.

2. World Law shall be enforceable directly upon individuals. That means the American people would give up their right to make their own laws. Americans would obey laws made for them by foreign politicians who do not understand and who have no regard for our American ideals of individual liberty.

3. America would strip itself of all power of self defense and would be thereafter at the mercy of a well-armed international mercenary force responsible to whatever clique of European politicians gained control of the world government - quite possible a Communist clique, and certainly at the very least a socialist clique, since virtually all Europe is either Communist or Socialist.

Any gold left at Fort Knox would be seized and all debts would be cancelled. No doubt a new currency and monies would be in the offering.

The International Banking Circles would like nothing better than to control the currency of every sovereign nation in the world.

How can members of the United States Congress, sworn to defend the American Constitution, listen with respectful complacency to these outrageous proposals that they enact laws for America's destruction?

On the other hand, our government from the President on down is promoting the deficit spending which is 99 percent of the cause of inflation.

The politicians know this, so would they stop at World Government for the U.S.A.?

There are some patriotic Congressman and they are fighting but the news media is "blacked out" for the conservative pro-Americans by the "Establishment" so you don't hear about it. With Mr. Nixon at the helm, he will push hard for approval.

And if you think there are controls by the government now, just let the officials in another country make our laws? Oh Boy!

"Righteousness exalted a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." Proverbs 14:34.

And this is what God thinks of nations when they are sinful and have turned from Him: "Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing." Isaiah 40:15.

"All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity." Isaiah 40:17.

"And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?" Daniel 4:35.

Environmental Action Rewarded By Governor

Twelve Columbus area youths were among 38 Ohioans this week to receive the Governor's Award for Community Action-a continuing award designed to recognize Ohioans for outstanding contributions to their communities.

The 12 youths--junior high, high school and college students-are part of the Youth Subcommittee of the Better Environment for Everyone (BEE) Committee.

They were involved in an all night environmental workshop at the Center of Science beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 7, and ending at 8 a.m. Sunday, April 8.

The event was planned by the Youth Subcommittee with aid from the Governor's Youth Action Program.

Each member of the group was cited by Gov. John J. Gilligan for his "interest in the quality of Ohio's environment," and for his "work to promote coordinated environmental action in Ohio."

Presenting the awards to the youths on behalf of the Governor was David Milenthal, chief of the Public Interest Center of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

The youths were: Richard Conway, 609½ S. Ohio Ave., Mohawk High School; Jim Cottle 358 Lambourne, Worthington High School; Jim Weissman, 441 Whitney, Worthington High School; Joe McCahery, 4185 Chadbourne Drive, Upper Arlington High School; Larry Glickler, 4058 Barthel Ave., Walnut Ridge High School; Mary Murphy, 2361 Park Court, Mifflin High School; Lee Starr, 28 Bullitt Park Place, Bexley High School; Sarah Hennessey, 2861 Halstead, Jones Jr. High School; Eva Ballenger, 717 Valerie Lane, Whitehall-Yearling High School and Debi Baker, 1558 Cunard Road, Eastmoor High School.

We're Telling Us

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them -- whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. All letters submitted for publication must be signed with the writer's name and address, although -- upon request -- the name of the writer can be withheld. Letters should be marked: "To the Editor, Spectator Newspapers, 3121 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio 43204" and must be received by Friday noon prior to publication date for possible publication in that week's edition.

Pleasantview Parents Chided By Participant

To the Editor:

Pleasantview Middle School (5th-8th grade) parents need to pat their own backs! They really managed to show the administration tat the reputation of being unconcerned, apathetic and indifferent parents really is true! This "reputation" is well deserved by parents that find themselves too busy to even wonder if their attendance at school meetings is worthwhile.

South-Western City School District is organizing meetings at all school in the district to present their philosophy and goals. The meetings are also to try to determine if parents are happy with the education their children are receiving, and parents are encouraged to help in the evaluation of cirriculum and program, and to discuss the possibility of year-round schools, etc.

Doesn't anybody really care about their children's future anymore???? Is the "reputation" really true in your case???? I have heard it many, many times, and have always tried to excuse your absence or non-involvement by explaining that people with families are busy, etc.

Perhaps there are many reasons why some of you seem to not "Care." I am not trying to judge you. I would just like you to know that Thursday, March 22, between 50 to 60 parents did care enough to attend a meeting at Pleasantview.

Over 900 children attend this school! These were concerned parents that feel an evaluation of the middle school is timely.

Are you willing to be the silent majority and let this small representation decide your child's future? If you do care, please join us at Pleasantview, Thursday nights, 7:00 p.m.

In April, 1972, a "Search for Consensus" was launched by the State Department of Educaton, to meet a legislative mandate for greater accountability of the education establishment to the people. Our school district is now asking you to participate in a study of what parents want from the schools, on a local level, in our own schools.

You have the chance to voice your opinion in this country by voting in elections. How often do YOU have the chance to evaluate your schools? This opportunity is unique.

I sincerely hope that you aren't one of the "Silent majority" with this "reputation". Silence anymore seems to indicate complete agreement.

Do join the few who DO CARE, and do believe our schools should offer the best educational opportunities and at the same time an atmosphere or environment conducive to learning. Or then again, perhaps..... you really don't care at all.

Higher Truck Speed Would Be O.K.

To the Editor:

Concerning your editorial "Speed Kills...Kills...Kills".

I am in no way associated with the trucking industry but I fail to understand why you would be so opposed to increasing the speed limit (for trucks) to 60 miles per hour when, for the sake of money, our auto manufacturers are turning out, and selling daily, vehicles which will travel at speeds over 100 miles per hour.

The truck drivers are given many hours of rigid training and must pass physical, mental and driving exams in order to be permitted to operate a big rig.

In my 20 years plus driving across country I have found truck drivers to be quite responsible and courteous.

On the other hand I've seen many, many brainless wonders zipping in and out of traffic at high speeds and in a fast hopped-up type of car.

Drivers of the latter generally have had no mental nor physical exams and as you know, if you drive, not too much is required to obtain an automobile drivers license in Ohio, where standards are higher than in some states.

Also, many persons driving within the 70 miles per hour auto speed limit are really not qualified as a glance or two in their direction proves.

For me, to object, in writing, to an editorial is indeed rare, but I just can't understand how so-called sane people can condone the placing of high speed quippment in the hands of poorly trained, poorly qualified persons while objecting to a well trained truck driver moving along at a speed limit only five miles higher than the present one.

Sincerely,

Beaula Dysart, Jr.

45-15 School Plan Needs More Interest

To the Editor:

Columbus newspapers do an excellent job of keeping citizens informed about the Columbus Public Schools.

Residents of the areas served by the South-Western City, Schools, however, often do not have important knowledge concerning their schools.

At this time, they should be informed that a series of meetings is being held in each school in the district.

The major item under discussion is a year-round school plan in which the administration of the South-Western City Schools is showing great interest.

It is the "45-15 Continuous School Year Plan". Pupils would attend for 45 school days (9 weeks) and have vacation for 15 school days (3 weeks), with three-fourths of the students attending at one time.

Citizens interested in expressing their views should call the principal of the nearest school or the South-Western Board of Education office to find out when the meeting are being held.

True Or False... Fashions New Guessing Game

FLAG flowers by Vera...red, white and blue in a fool-the-eye jumper of nylon knit and shirt inset of texturey crepeset for all-in-one at-home ensemble.

MARGIT BRANDT designed this long gown and cover-up jacket in crepeset, edged in porthole lace. Feminine and innocent in baby pink or blue, with imported white lace. Junior sizes.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

FORMFIT ROGERS, leading designer and manufacturer of lingerie and sleepwear, is playing games...and their new guessing game couldn't be more provocative.

We all have to bite our pencil before we answer these questions because it's impossible to answer one of them True or False. The minute you say True, you flip the subject over, and you see it's also False. Yet these are the questions that influence fashion. Try it and see.

. Current American Mood is peanut butter and jelly, not caviar - True or false?
. Religion is going out of style - True or False?
. Open sexual freedom is replacing old sex taboos - True or False?
. Good old classics are in and wicked clothes are out - True or False?
. Young people are seriously deciding against marriage - True or False?
. More leisure is a blessing for us all - True or False?
. Everybody is better educated about doing a better job of body care - True or False?
. Women have come a long way, Baby - True or False?

FOR FORMFIT ROGERS, their Spring Collection is a statement of philosophy...both sides of the coin are real and valuable. Nothing is all true, nothing is all false...the fashion picture is completely contradictory. Space limits me to elaborating on just a few questions...naturally they deal with fashion.

Classics vs. so-called wicked clothes is connected to the sex subject. As outerwear turns to mild silk shirts and pleated skirts...underwear is going wild...black, sheer, lace, wicked.

Modest-nudity...that's complicated. The bikini is a fact of life and so is the belly button...the breast is also being bared. Still there are sections of the country and population that stand pat on the covered bosom. Teen-agers, who happily go skinny dipping, are still wearing bras to look good in clothes...as for the older woman, no matter how liberated, she wears bras because she simply is not comfortable without them. Another fact, Push-Up, French Bras and Padded Bras are booming.

As for modesty-nudity in sleepwear, there are always those who prefer going to bed with nothing on but the radio...in Formfit Rogers Collection there are sheer see-throughs, opaque satins, and every length from baby doll to granny.

Leisure-Mixed blessing...for some it's wonderful, for some it's a bore. For everybody there's a Second Wardrobe coming in. Tricot, the intimate apparel fabric, is now a ready-to-wear staple...and Formfit Rogers has a lot of little knits designed for sleeping that are wide-awake indeed.

PUCCI'S new print for Formfit Rogers...best loved status symbol in ankle length gown of "Romanza" print...wrapped pareo shape...pink or blue. Same fabric in two piece pajamas with wide legs.

About the body...is everybody weight-watching? Absolutely yes. But is everybody doing something about the weight. Absolutely no. Women need the help of a good girdle and bra or all-in-one, before they develop the discipline of a good diet and exercise regime.

Have women come a long way, baby? Yes, true, but also false. There's such a much longer row to hoe...and it's going to be an adventure, every inch of the way!

Slow Moving Vehicles Dangerous

Slowly moving tractors and other farm vehicles are added driving hazards during the spring planting season, says the Columbus Auto Club--AAA. Motorists should reduce speeds and prepare for emergency stops in areas where farm equipment is likely to be on the roads. The safest way to pass a tractor is to reduce your speed, trail along behind it until you see adequate clearance ahead, and then pass.

Piave Club Plans Dinner

The Piave Club has kicked off advance ticket sales for its annual spaghetti dinner benefit set this year for Sunday, April 29, at the Berwick Party House.

From noon until 7 p.m., on that date the public is cordially invited to enjoy a genuine Italian feast for the price of $2. and at the same time help the Boys Clubs of Columbus continue their outstanding service to the Central Ohio community.

Local sportscaster Jimmy Crum helped launch the ticket drive earlier this week, telling an organization meeting of Piave Club m members and wives that their efforts on behalf of area youngsters for the past 20-years have been a major factor in the growth of the Local Boys Club program.

Over that span, Piave members have raised more than $40,000 to help provide consturctive outlets for youthful energy. The spaghetti dinner is the chief source of these funds and 1973 publicity chairman Joseph Pappano says this year's goal is to turn over proceeds of $2,500 to area Boys Clubs and several related causes.

Advance tickets ($2for adults, children $1.) are available at all neighborhood Boys Clubs; the Berwick Party 3520 Refugee Road; McDonalds Restaurant, 5295 N. High Street, and from all Piave Club members. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Women Golfers Will Swing For Arthritis Campaign

Ladies at 15 area Franklin County golf and country clubs will "swing" into the Tenth Annual Women's Arthritis Golf Tournaments some Ladies Day this summer. Plans were completed for the competitions during a recent luncheon at University Golf Club.

Entry fees for the tournaments help finance the year-round services to the Auxiliary of the Franklin County Unit of the Central Ohio Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. Services include a lending closet of self-help devices to assist patients in leading more independent lives and recreational therapy - arts and crafts sessions, holiday parties and picnics as well as the transportation to enable them to attend.

Mrs. Maxine Boehnker, Auxiliary chairman and hostess for the event, said: "We're starting our second decade. We've had some 'rough' times, but we're in the swing. Indian Run ladies joined us last year for the first time, so we're growing."

The tournament originated at University Golf Club.

UNDER the plan, tournaments are held on regular Ladies Days, set by the clubs, which also determine the types of team tournaments they wish to conduct. Competitors vie from a club trophy, individual charms, and five-dollar pro shop certificates at each club.

Representing the clubs are: Scioto-Mrs. Corinne Redick; Lockbourne AFB - Mrs. Jane Rice and Mrs. Betty Sama; High Lands - Mrs. Betty Konold; Riverview - Mrs. Wilma Stubbins and Mrs. Virginia Worrell; University - Mrs. Mary Yingling; Groveport - Mrs. Ethel Byrnes and Mrs. Betty Talis; Oakhurst - Mrs. Pat Cree; Brookside - Mrs. Pat Murphy and Mrs. Edna Jaffee; Columbus, Mrs. Boodie Giller; York Temple - Mrs. Marty Etzel and Mrs Rae Sterner; Winding Hollow - Mrs. Phyllis Cohen and Mrs. Elaine Feitlinger; DCSC-Mrs. Mary Jane Spittler; Worthington Hills - Mrs. Marion Drewsen; and Indian Run - Mrs. Helen Fultz.

The Walnut Hills representative has not been designated.

ACT II

By BETTY DRAGONETTE

The Theater Department of Ohio State University will present "The Royal Hunt Of The Sun" at 8 p.m., April 18-21 and April 22-28 at the Thurber Theater on campus. Dr. John Morrow is directing Peter Shaffer's dramatization of Pizarro's conquest of the Incas of Peru, which ultimately led to the death of their leader, Atahualipa, known as the son of the Sun.

This is a strange tale of plunder, assault, murder and treachery all under the guise of converting these pagans to Christianity. But it is also the story of a strange attachment between the boy leader and his captor. With his death comes a sense of pain and inconsolable loss to the aging Pizarro. One of the final speeches of the play states "So fell Peru.

We gave her greed, hunger and the Cross: three gifts for the civilized life.....So fell Spain, gorged with gold; distended; now dying." This sums up what the Inca gold did for both the Incas and the Spainards. There's a lesson there, somewhere.

This play has been feted by the Chichester Festival in England, the Royal Shakespeare Society and the Broadway critics. It is at once a piece of theater and history well worth seeing.

Also, on the Ohio State campus Saturday, April 14 at 2 p.m. at Mershon Auditorium will unfold a children's classic, "Pippi Longstocking", brought to Columbus by the Continental Theater Company. For ticket information call 422-2354.

"Cinderella", a ballet for children from six to sixty, is being presented at the Ohio Theater by The Worthington Civic Ballet, with it's director and teacher, Barbara Burrows, in the title role. They have always done a fine job in the past and I am sure this production will be no exception.

The date is April 13 and the time 8 p.m. For reservations call 888-7471 or 889-6967.

Mike McGee is directing "A Man For All Seasons" at the Little Theatre Off Broadway, 3651 N. Broadway in Grove City. This historical drama runs April 13-14-20-21 at 8:30 p.m. Box Office number is [illegible].

Opening April 13 and running April 14, 15, 18-22 and 25-28 is "The Great God Brown" at Players Club, 549 Franklin Avenue. The box office is open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. Call 224-6971.

Plan Car Wash

The local branch of the N.A.A.C.P. will sponsor a car wash at the Cheryl Ann Car Wash, 1966 Cleveland Ave. April 14, at 8 a.m.

At The Parks This Week

There are naturalist-led wildflower walks each Sunday afternoon during April and May at Blacklick Woods, Blendon Woods and Darby Creek Metropolitan Parks beginning at 2 p.m.

They originate at the trading posts at Blacklick Woods and Darby Creek and at the Walden Visitor Center at Blendon Woods.

A special fishing clinic for children will be held at Schrock Lake at Sharon Woods Metropolitan Park Saturday, April 14, at 2 p.m.

A park naturalist will show youngsters how to select and use various kinds of tackle and bait and how to prepare a fish for cooking.

There is no charge for the program and all participants will have an opportunity to try their skill.

Metropolitan Park naturalists are leading bird walks at Blacklick Woods, Blendon Woods, and Darby Creek each Sunday morning.

Veteran or novice birdwatchers interested in exploring the trails of the parks during the spring migration period should meet the naturalist at the trading post at Blacklick Woods and Darby Creek and the Walden Visitor Center at Blendon Woods at 8 a.m. Bird checklists will be furnished.

Because of the change in the feeding time of the waterfowl using the refuge, the hours of public visitation to the Walden Wildlife Refuge at Blendon Woods Metropolitan Park have been changed to 4 to 6 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Don't just be looked at, be looked up to.

After a young woman enrolls in Air Force ROTC, she's eligible to compete for an Air Force scholarship that includes free tuition, lab and incidental fees, and reimbursement for textbooks for her last 3 years. In addition, in their junior and senior years, a tax-free monthly allowance of $100 is paid to both scholarship and non-scholarship cadets alike.

When she gets her degree, the career as an Air Force officer awaits her—career that matches her abilities to a job with rewarding challenges. A career with benefits like 30 days' paid vacation, free dental and medical care, frequent promotion, good pay, travel, and a great retirement package.

Interested? Contact Capital University 236-6401

Outdoors OHIO

By WOODY EARNHEART

About The Weather

When is the best time to go fishing? Well, I've always said, Anytime! But when central Ohio's streams and lakes are high and muddy like they have been, I have to say forget it until they clear up, and this keeps me working around the house on weekends and my wife happy.

ANYWAY, when we do get a break in the weather and you're outdoors and you haven't got a radio handy, you can have some fun and be your own weatherman.

Just let mother nature help you. Did you know a chirping cricket can act as a living thermometer. Crickets chirp faster as the temperature rises. On warm days adding thirty seven to the number of chirps in fifteen seconds will about equal the temperature.

High clouds won't rain on you no matter how threatening they look, it's low clouds that drop rain.

Birds perch more before a storm because low pressure air is less dense, making it harder to fly.

When I leave the city on early morning fishing trips, I always look at smoke stacks because rising smoke fortells fair weather, low pressure before a rain drives smoke downward.

NOW HERE'S an oldie for you. When the wind is out of the west the fishing is best. When the wind is out of the east the fishing is least. When it's out of the south, it blows bait in the fishes mouth. Out of the north, don't go forth. This may sound funny, but sometimes it works.

Care Of Fishing Tackle

Like to save some money? Here's a few tips that will save you some on unnecessary replacement of your fishing tackle. Never put a wet rod or reel in a carrying case right after you use it because it will probably rust or get moldy.

Why not take a minute and wipe off all your equipment with a rag that has a few drops of oil on it. Another handy item to have is a can of lighter fluid. Use it to clean rod ferrals. It will keep them from sticking and make it a lot easier to take them apart.

Here's another tip. If you've been loosing fish after you got them hooked, check the points of the hook, they can fool you and feel sharp but to land a fish without losing it, use a honeing stone. They cost about a quarter and you can keep your hooks needle sharp all the time.

Here's how you can save some money on line. Just cut off the first fifteen or twenty feet of old line, or just reverse your line and use the other end that's never been used.

Spinning Line

What type of spinning line do you use? The type of line you should use will depend on your casting ability.

The two types of line available for spinning are braided and monofilliment. Most of the enclosed spinning reels come equipped with monofilliment line, but braided line is easier to use for the beginning fisherman on a spinning reel because it's less elastic than monofilliment and it spools evenly, eliminating backlash.

For the experienced fisherman it's monofilliment line, a line more durable than braided line. It casts light weight lures easier, absorbs less water and it's less visable to a fish and permits longer casts. Whichever type of line you use, braided or monofilliment, the spool on your reel should be filled to maximum which is about one sixteenth to one eighth inch below the flange of the spool. If the spool is over filled, you can bet, on your first cast your line will tangle or backlash.

If under filled the friction over the lip of the spool will shorten your casts, so it's really important to keep your spool filled to the correct level.

Don't Litter

A Bowling Green resident paid $100 for littering state lands along the Maumee River. Wildlife Officer John Milliron made the arrest. A Gibsonburg resident paid $60 for littering the Sandusky River. The charge was filed by Wildlife Agent Chet Shroyer. Another Bowling Green resident paid $100 for littering the Portage River. Wildlife Officer Dean Scott made the arrest.

A Napoleon man paid $40 for littering the Maumee River, Wildlife Officer Jerry Richardson made the arrest.

Two Harrod, Ohio residents were fined $50 each for littering a tributary ditch to the Auglaize River, Wildlife Officer Milt Brent filed the charges.

There were several other arrests made with fines ranging from $25 to $50. Gil Palmer, Law Supervisor, Wildlife District Two urges all to be careful with their litter while fishing, camping or enjoying the use of State Areas and private lands along Ohio rivers and streams.

Palmer also urges sportsmens to report stream litter violators to the nearest law enforcement agency or call the Findlay Wildlife Headquarters 422-6757.

Game Fish Limits

Anglers are reminded that there are daily bag and possession limits on certain game species in the public waters of Ohio. These limits are as follows: walleye - 10, trout - 10, muskellonge - 2, and black bass - 8 (including smallmouth, largemouth and spotted). These bag limits are not applicable to private bodies of water.

Incorrect bag limits have been listed in some local newspapers and at least one national magazine. It is suggested that all anglers refer to Publication 84, "1973 Ohio Fishing Regulation", which provides a summary of the Ohio fishing rules. This publication is avialable from each fishing license agent. If you do not receive one, with your license please request it from the agent. They may be obtained from Wildlife District 2, 952 Lima Ave, Findlay, O. 45840.

Plane, Deer Collide

March 6, Masrlin Clark, 86 South Chestnut St., in Jefferson, Ohio was making a routine landing with a Piper Colt airplane at the Kingsville Airport in Kingsville.

Everything looked good on his final approach and as the plane touched down and started to roll to a good landing a doe deer ran from the edge of the woods onto the runway and collided with the airplane. The deer was hit by the propellar and killed. The plane did not crash. The pilot was able to keep it under control and walked away, shaken but not injured.

The extent of damage to the plane is not known until the plane's motor can be checked.

With the increase in the deer population even airplanes are not exempt from deer collisions.

Natural Resources Director William B. Nye was the recipient of the League's Environmentalist of the Year Award; Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the department's division of wildlife, was named Wildlife Conservationist of the Year and William G. Hlavin (cq), enforcement supervisor in the department's division of watercraft, was presented the League's Fieldman Award.

Dale C. Yoho of St. Clairesville and Joe D. Lykins of Wheeling, W. Va., received $1,000 each for catching the 1972 best-of-species in the Fish America program sponsored by Zebco Consumer Division of the Brunswick Corporation.

Yoho landed a 76-pound flathead catfish at Piedmont Lake July 17, breaking his own former state record of 75 pounds, eight ounces, and establishing a world record for the species. Yoho's former record catch also came out of Piedmont Lake.

Dominican Golfers Look For Successful Season

Ohio Dominican College's Golf team coached by Dr. Robert Wess, chairman of the English Department of Ohio Dominican, won four of its six matches last season and faces tougher competition this spring.

Two veterans, Matt Yuskewich, a junior, 2814 Welsford Rd., and Mark Evans, 3471 Bolton Ave., are the bright spots in this year's prospects, and Coach Wess must depend on several "untried" juniors to fill the shoes of last year's team members, Tom Coady, Columbus, Jim Underwood, Washington D.C. and Paul Straub, Columbus, who were graduated.

After the Easter break, the Panther golfers will meet at Little Turtle, Cedarville, April 26, Walsh College and Ohio Institute of Technology, May 1, and Miami (Hamilton), May 4.

They will participate in the NAIA Tournament at Hawthorne Hills, May 7, and top the season away, May 10 with a match with Muskingum, Malone and Wright State.

Team members besides Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evans, and Yuskewich, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Yuskewich, include: Mike O'Connell, a junior, 3072 McGuffey Rd., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vic O'Connell; Mark Heuser, sophomore, 551 Collingwood Ave., son of Mrs. Jo Ann Heuser; Jim Nogawick, senior, 75 City Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Nogawick; and Gary Katana, junior, Huffman Dr. son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Katana, Warren.

Bike Safety Important

..This season many youngsters will be learning bicycle riding, and others just starting out again after a long winter. AROUND TOWN

YOU always read it first in the Spectator, so here is another bit of information that may interest you.

After several months of rumors it is now fact. Howard Johnson's will occupy the old Chittenden Hotel site. It will be a multi-story building with large restaurants, cocktail lounge and huge banquet facilities. The new Howard Johnson's will be owned and operated by the firm headed by former Governor Rhodes. According to an official with Howard Johnson's it is to be in operation, January, 1974.

While they dish out some entertaining instrumental stylings, it is their vocal harmonies that really sells this group. Almost every number includes some close harmony work by the four [illegible].

Each of them turns in some mighty nice solo duties, also. The personable Polly Grove has a rather high voice that is simply beautiful. Listening to her sing, is comparable to viewing a mountain waterfall, breathtaking and relaxing. Polly's voice is lilting and sounds so happy.

Jim Snell, besides handling guitar, also sings up a storm. He owns a rich, full body voice. Jim's rendition of, "Love Story", as well as many others.

Paul Shuster is another member of the cast, who besides playing drums with a classy touch, also turns in nice singing sounds. This fellow could drop the sticks anytime he wanted to, and capture the spotlight just with his singing abilities. And, believe it or not, Gary Jones also turns in a fine performance vocal wise. Gary also does an excellent job on the bass guitar.

As a group, they have a fine sense of direction.

THEY ARE not a loud, wall shattering group. Their volume is sensible. They employ a heavy melody line, along with simple, solid rhythms on every song. Their arrangements are excellent, and their whole approach is very commercial. Their sound, as well as their tunes, appeals to an older group.

This is something you should remember. Many people think since the Ohio Stater Inn Motel is located in the campus area, the place is dominated by the young crowd. This is not true.

The Ohio Stater Inn, and The Page Four go hand in hand. The crowds in the lounge prove that. The decor is quite enjoyable, and so is The Page Four. Stop in this week, and see if you don't agree.

According to the Marriott Inn Motel, spring is here. The Weatherman may disagree, but the proof is in the models. Yep, every Thursday, The Marriott Inn is conducting its Spring Fashion Show. It takes place at 1 p.m. and makes a great spot to have lunch.

I have a sneaky suspicion the show is basically for the women. At least, the latest, chic fashions leads me to believe this. However, many, many men were in the audience, and seemed to be enjoying every moment.

The first show, featured clothes and accessories from the Eastland Mall Merchants Association. Alternating will be the Holiday Boutique.

EACH WEEK models will be furnished by the Noni Modeling Agency. And, fellows, if they are as good and as cute as Toshi Davis, Gail Van Iderstyne, Jill Williams, Karen Slife, Melanie Bunstein and Pam Spero, well just look for me there every week. From the comments I heard, many men and women plan on attending these Thursday Luncheon Fashion Shows at the Marriott Inn.

Besides seeing the latest in women's fashion, and watching a bevy of pretty girls, their luncheon is really delicious. So, if you can sneak in a long lunch hour, and want to have one of the most enjoyable luncheons, possible, plan on going to the Marriott Inn. A hint to all of you working girls, invite the boss, I know he will enjoy it all, and besides, you'll not have to explain why you took a long lunch.

EVERY once in a while, I run across an act, that if I had the time, I would catch several nights a week. For me, this takes more than fine talent or a first show. They have to be super great, and this is what The Make Believe Quartet qualifies as, at the Ramada Inn South.

The name of the game is entertainment, and The Make Believe plays the game for all its worth.

The leader is drummer Tiny Diamond, an old pro in show business. As you may have guessed from his name, Tiny is about as tiny as a baby elephant. He uses every ounce of his abundant physique to its best advantage in promoting chuckles from the audience. If Tiny were a belly dancer, he would put the best of them out of business. What control. His comedy and humor are outstanding. By the way, don't let Tiny's humor distract you from his drumming ability. This guy can play them as the pro he really is. He plays with such feeling, along with a nice touch, if one can describe a drummer in that manner. Tiny is not a pounder, that's for sure.

Another talented person, who certainly adds a bushel of enjoyment ot the group is Jerry Marsh. Talk about talent, this young man is terrific. Jerry is one of the finest singers I have heard in a group in many a moon. His intonations and control are something to hear. He has a beautiful voice. I am surprised that he hasn't struck on his own, except for one thing, Jerry is also one of the best accordionists I have listened to, professionally, in years. Squeezing the thing with plenty of gusto, Jerry produces pretty, pretty music. While it is amplified, it still has that accordion sound. Jerry also plays the electric organ, just as well. Jerry is a real triple treat, full of fire performer.

ANOTHER member of the group adding lots of zest is bubbly Gail Seltzer. Gail gives the outfit sex appeal, some nice vocals and a strong attack with the electric bass. Gail is like the whipped cream on the dessert.

Rounding out the quartet is Ray Sulikouski, who literally plays a handful of electric guitar. Ray also comes on with a pleasant sounding voice that shows an above average style.

Add the four together, and you end up with a fast paced, highly enjoyable group. If you want first rate entertainment, that includes top vocals, both solos and harmony, top instrumentals and belly laugh humor, then The Make Believe at Ramada Inn South is for you.

Firemen Won't Work For Levy

The Franklin Township Trustees at their regular monthly meeting received a statement from Local 1441 of the Firefighters union which said members would not work for passage of the fire levy renewal and increase on the May ballot on their own time.

"We're not saying we oppose the levy, but we're not giving time or money to get it passed," Gary R. Siniff, president, said. "We're not going door to door as we have in the past."

Board members accepted the statement with regret.

In March a bid from Bill Swad Chrysler was accepted for a police cruiser at a cost of $3,075 plus the trade in.

The following expenditures by the Fire Department were approved: approximately $175 to send a man to the Mack Pump school in Allentown, Pa.; $3 per man to attend the county fire school; approximately $539 for boots and coats for volunteer company No. 1.

Art Susi, 1021 Binns Blvd., was accepted as dispatcher for the Fire Department effective April 18.

One firefighter was suspended for two days without pay for $500-$600 damage to fire equipment.

The emergency squad team requested $1,000 for the 1973 international and the 1974 state competitions. No action was taken.

The event also will be graduation night for participants in the Columbus-Franklin County AFL-CIO counseling programs.

Ward, general manager and co-owner of the family-founded Ward Transfer and Storage Co., is president of the United Way board of trustees. A Columbus native and a graduate of Ohio State University, his interests in community service span a wide range of activities.

He was selected as outstanding Baptist Layman in Columbus in 1967, and currently serves on the Metropolitan YMCA board of management.

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, [illegible], is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a laison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge." Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Soong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems--getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily.

Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

The cat and mouse game

ABOUT THIS TIME each year, a cat-and-mouse game is played in New York City. The scenes of the action are corporate headquarters of the three major networks. The game's goal is to outguess the other guy in arriving at the master program schedule for the upcoming TV season.

What it usually boils down to is this: each of the networks try to schedule their most popular returning shows and what they feel to be the best of their new programs, in an arrangement that will hopefully win the ratings race against the other two networks' programming. It's a tough chore for all...and as more than one exec at ABC, CBS, or NBC will tell you, a few heads are put out there on the figurative chopping block.

Monty Hall of Let's Make a Deal

THE SAME GOES on between network affiliates at the local level, what with the large number of syndicated programs that are aired by those local stations. An equal amount of time and effort—perhaps even more so—is spent by the independent stations, those who are unable to derive a large share of prime-time programming from a network.

The end result of all this, of course, is success for some programs, failure for others. While it won't be long before everybody will herald their "new season" as the best of all seasons, it won't be until sometime next October before we know what cats got what mice...

LOOKING AHEAD TO next season, a number of expired series—once shown on a network basis—appear to be headed for success in syndication. Among them: "The Bold Ones," the former NBC series featuring episodes of The Doctors, The Lawyers, The Policemen and The Senator; "Mission: Impossible," the popular CBS series which could be a real winner in syndication; and "The Mod Squad," ABC's long running police-adventure series.

There are very few, if any, people anymore who sell syndication short. It's been proven that many syndicated shows enjoy better track records and ratings than they did on network airing.

*** ***

ONE OF THE highlights of the recent Academy Awards show was the sincerity with which Frank Sinatra paid tribute to actress Rosalind Russell, who was given the Academy's Humanitarian Award this year.

Truly a devoted and unselfish woman, Miss Russell will share the spotlight with other noteworthy women next month, as CBS presents a live "Women of the Year: 1973" telecast.

ORIGINATING FROM the John F. Kennedy Center for the Arts in Washington, D.C., the show will honor outstanding women in each of eight categories: voluntary action, public affairs, human rights, arts and humanities, economics and business, science and research, youth leadership, and quality of life.

Miss Russell will serve as hostess for the May 14 program, which will feature an Oscar-like format, with major personalities serving as presenters or performers during the honors [illegible].

*** ***

KUDOS TO ABC for airing the recent "Pueblo" special, a frightening and powerful portrayal of the events surrounding the capture of the U.S. Intelligence vessel by the North Koreans. Especially deserving of praise—actor Hal Holbrook, in his role as Navy Commander Lloyd Bucher. Holbrook is among the best in his business.

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a liaison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said. "We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge." Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Howard Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Soong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems—getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a laison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge," Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Soeng demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems—getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a laison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge." Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit [illegible] graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Seo Soong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems—getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily.

Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a liaison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge," Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Soong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems–getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Richard Thomas

Your man is Richard Thomas, the fourth to bear his name. Despite his youth, 21, he has already starred or been featured in the three principal entertainment medias-TV, the Broadway stage, and movies. Not only that, he also writes poetry and screenplays, plays the dulcimer, studies Mandarin Chinese, is a ballet student and to round out a rather full schedule also breeds dogs. He finds time to keep up with the newest films.

Although young Thomas is a New York City born product, his ties to the rural, back country life depicted in THE WALTONS are very real. He has dozens of relatives throughout that section of the country. Richard's father is the first male in the family who didn't work in the mines, instead he became a ballet dancer. Richard believes that ballet lessons teach economy of body movement, a factor that's essential in good acting, regardless of the media.

Columbus

Since the two want to know about the same man, Peter Falk, we decided to put in both letters. Columbo is simply referred to as "Columbo" or "Lt. Columbo" as he was given no first name for the series.

Peter Falk

Forty-five-year-old Falk attributes the encouragement and tutelage of actress Eva Le Gallienne as a major turning point in his career. With her urging, he went to N.Y. in 1955 and landed a role in a stage production of "The Iceman Cometh."

A steady rise on Broadway followed his debut in "Saint Joan." In 1961, he received his first Oscar nomination for his role in "Murder, Inc." Within another year he received another Oscar nomination and two Emmy nominations. He won an Emmy in 1962 for his role in "The Price of Tomatoes" on THE DICK POWELL SHOW.

Born in N.Y.C. on Sept. 16, 1927, Peter is married to the former Alyce Mayo. They have two daughters, Jackie and Kathryn. You may write Falk in care of NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a liaison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge." Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Soung demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems--getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's available to everyone."

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a liaison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge," Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Soo Seong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

Turner said the class memebers take turns operating as registers and serving customers.

"WE HAD ONE session before Christmas and are now finishing our third since that time. So far I'm very satisfied with the quality of the people we've gotten and what they've accomplished.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems—getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Lee Trevino is a real leg man

Lee Trevino

"Anyone trained or fit to contend in exercises requiring physical agility, stamina and often strength" is the way Daniel Webster, a man of many words, describes an athlete.

Would you say this description fits the hardy breed of men who withstand the rigors of the professional golf tour?

While it is true that all those who stroll the fairways and swing the clubs are not athletes in the truest sense of the word, it is also a fact that there is little comparison between the demands made on an individual playing a casual round of golf and on the man who plays the game for a living on the Tour.

It is interesting to observe the number on men on the Tour who have adopted some form of physical-fitness program.

South Africa's Gary Player may be the No. 1 exponent of conditioning. He jogs 2½ miles daily and also follows a program that includes stretching muscles to keep them limber, doing "half-squats" to strengthen the thighs and calves, jumping in the air to help build spring into his legs, and working at least three times a week with light hand weights to strengthen his arms and shoulders.

Lee Trevino tries to run two miles every day. He says with a laugh: "I'm trying to get down to 5 minutes, 40 seconds for the mile so I can run with Gary. He can do 5:30, and I'll guarantee you that's moving." Trevino also does 100 situps every day.

"I'm a leg hitter," he says, "and what determines my clubhead speed is the way I move my legs into the swing, so my legs have to be strong."

Another member of the Tour regular viewers might watch closely is Deane Beman, known as one of the Tour's shortest hitters off the tee. Beman has been on a muscle-exercising program and says, "I've gained about 10 solid pounds, and I'm hitting the ball 15 yards farther than ever."

Although, alas, a little jogging and exercising alone do not make an athlete, yet these things help keep the professionals hard and trim.

Webster refers to physical agility. Certainly there is plenty of this required for success on the Tour. The entire body must have the coordination necessary to generate the powerful, smooth swing.

Stamina? Try following the pros for a month, through many hours on the practice tee, and stepping smartly over hill and dale in the heat of the day for 18 holes.

Strength? Anyone who has played the game knows the strength the pros must possess if they are to rip a golf ball out of deep rough with a long iron and send it whistling toward a distant green.

Timing and coordination? What sport requires more than golf?

Yes, the men on the Professional golf tour are athletes. As it is in all phases of sport, those who work the hardest are the ones you'll find leading the way, week after week. And viewers though they may find themselves snowbound in the middle of winter, may well learn a lesson that could be beneficial, especially with spring just around the corner. Try it, you'll like it.

Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a laison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge," Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Workshop Explains Volunteers Available

A workshop for volunteers, teachers and administrators of the Columbus Public School system was held recently at Milo Elementary to explain what community resource people are available to expand the learning experiences of elementary school children.

The Office of Volunteer Services, 464-4300, is designed to be the eyes and ears of the teacher in the community which finds people willing to share their knowledge, talents and experiences with school children.

The program is designed to enrich and expand the school educational curriculum through the use of community people.

Volunteers are people who have specialized talents such as artists, musicians, dancers, actors; people with interesting hobbies and collections; people who have traveled widely; people with knowledge of customs of various ethnic and national groups; people in government; and people with interesting careers and occupations.

There are 300 volunteers or organizations available to teachers after the principal of their school has requested the service, according to Mrs. Lois Rubin, community resource coordinator.

Table displays were set up with volunteers sharing a little of what they do when they go into a classroom.

Subjects at the tables included: puppeteers, ceramics, cosmetology, crafts, Black poetry, a policeman, a pilot, government, printer, environment, architect, and various countries of Asia and Africa.

The state of Ohio has been selected as a pilot project to initiate a state plan for the development of a systematic statewide Volunteers In Education (VIE) program. This plan is called "Project Reachout." Miss Carol O'Connell serves as reading consultant-VIE coordinator for the Ohio Department of Education.

There is a liaison in each county for Reachout. They are in charge of getting service cards of volunteers, distributing slides, tapes and materials from the state (anyone interested may borrow them), according to Miss O'Connell.

Volunteers are used for vision-hearing screening, playgrounds, lunchrooms, studyhalls, library-IMC's, physical education, health clinics (trained by the American Red Cross), to reinforce basic reading skills and to help in other school subjects, she said.

Resource people come from community service clubs; senior citizens, including retired teachers; colleges and universities; business; industry; and parents, she said.

"Columbus is one of the leading cities in the state in the use of volunteers. It was one of the first to have a coordinator in the central office. Frances White has helped to build the state plan," Miss O'Connell said.

"We use willing people almost immediately. Even people who don't feel they could work in the classroom may volunteer to find others who have special skills or knowledge." Mrs. Rubin said.

The office of volunteer services coordinates five other services: IMC volunteers, mini-humanities volunteers, reading tutorial volunteers, school health volunteers and pre-kindergarten volunteers.

The Volunteer Services, the Division of Continuing Education and the Junior League are responsible for recruiting, training and coordinating volunteers for the instructional materials center (IMC-library) in each of 10 inner-city schools.

The Columbus Public Schools provide the physical equipment and the books for each IMC and employ seven field librarians who work closely with the volunteers and oversee each IMC's operation.

Outer-city schools also have benefit of such services through their local building volunteer program.

Volunteers do many routine chores such as shelving, filing, etc., but their real job is to establish the love of reading for pleasure in children with whom they work by reading them stories, helping them understand how to use the card catalogue, finding a book for a special project or making a bulletin board display.

The mini-humanities program is designed to benefit sixth graders who attend inner-city school and have reading proficiency. It is an enrichment program designed to stimulate interest in reading for pleasure, as well as to broaden the cultural horizons of the participating students.

The volunteer designs activities and field trips that expand upon her students reading experiences; makes arrangements and provides transportation for the field trips. The Junior League and the Columbus Club of Zonta pay for tickets and supplies.

Inner-city schools participate in the pre-kindergarten program. Volunteers work with the classroom teacher. They may read stories, assist on trips, supervise an activity, prepare snacks, help with bulletin boards, teach poems or fingerplays, involve children in conversation, etc.

Each reading tutorial volunteers is responsible for individualized remedial tutoring of three or four students. The volunteer is supervised by the reading teacher assigned to each school.

The Health Services Department, School Volunteer Office and the American Red Cross provide volunteers to work in a school health room to assist the nurse or to provide comfort and help when the nurse is not there, to keep daily record of children seen in the health room and to keep a monthly record summary.

THE VARIETY OF volunteers available to teachers to enrich and expand the cultural, creative and career horizons of their children was part of the workshop sponsored by the School Volunteer Program at Milo Elementary for administrators, teachers and volunteers. Mrs. Swami Nadimingi demonstrates an Indian dance she performs in the classroom. She created the tape for her dance, both vocal and instrumental. Indian women are not allowed to dance after they marry, but her husband wants her to share the beauty of Indian culture. Mrs. Yoon-Seo Seong demonstrates a Korean dance with fans which usually involved many beautiful women who danced before the king.

..KEITH TURNER (far left) watches his students practice their salesmanship skills in the pilot program now being offered at South High School. The unique program was started this year and is open to adults from throughout the Columbus area. The Retail Merchandising course prepares students to find jobs in department or other variety stores. There is a $20 fee for the 80 hour course and this covered materials and help with job placement after completion of the work.

OPEN TO ADULTS

Pilot Program Offered In Retail Merchandising

The Columbus Public School system is offering adults in the area a unique opportunity in the form of a pilot program to train those interested in working for a department or discount store.

The special course in retail merchandising is being offered at South High School and the instructor for the course is Keith Turner, an Adult Raining Specialist.

TURNER EXPLAINED that each year the state's department of distributive education sets aside funds for one new program. This year the department chose this retail merchandising course prepared by the National Cash Register.

"The material is so new we are really working with the rough drafts," Turner said. "This program is unique in that it's the first anywhere in the world."

The Columbus School system was given $20,000 to start the program. "We used $3,500 just for cash registers," Turner said.

THE ONLY stipulation was that it had to be for high school students and for adults. We now have programs for both groups here at South." The program is open to anyone in the Columbus area.

"The adult program is open to anyone 17 years or older who is not enrolled in a day high school."

The cost for the course is $20 which covers the 80 hours of instruction, the material and help with job placement once the course is completed.

INCLUDED IN the 80 Hours of instruction are extensive drills on modern and fully equipped cash registers, mechanics of the cash register, cash security, prevention of pilferage, credit, profit, study of over all store operations, study of various department s within a retail store, sales promotion, customer importance, salesmanship techniques, interviewing and applying for a job and job success requirements.

The classroom at the high school is set up with four cash registers and check-out lanes similar to any store. There are grocery, clothing and various other items on display so that the room resembles a store.

"We are now working on setting up some criteria for who may qualify for the course because we want people who will be able to go out and find jobs or be employed."

Turner said they have placed several of the graduates in jobs and have had request for more. "That's one of our problems–getting enough people to fill these requests."

ONCE A PERSON had been placed, Turner said he is also charged with following up to see how they're doing.

The next program will begin April 30 and class will be from 11 to 3 daily. Those interested should contact Mrs. Stanley at 225-2841 for more information.

Turner explained that as this is an experimental program a decision would have to be made later to whether the course will be continued.

I'M OPTIMISTIC about it at present but a decision probably won't be made until September of this year."

He said he had most of the equipment needed and that tocontinue the course shouldn't cost the district much more money. "There would just teacher's salary and a few additional things which might be needed as we grow."

The job now, Turner explained is just to get the word out to people that we have this program and that it's avaiable to everyone."

Teacher Will Head New Drug Program

Ann James, an elementary school teacher with training in the areas of health and physical education, has been selected to head a new drug education program that will begin next September in 16 Columbus schools.

The pilot program, financed by a $61,000 grant from the State Department of Education, was approved February 20 by the Board of Education. The program will make use of nationally acclaimed instructional materials and serve over 8,500 students in kindergarten through eighth grade.

As drug education coordinator, Miss James will manage the program in the three junior high schools and 13 elementaries in which it will operate, performing a variety of duties, including conducting workshops for the more than 250 teachers who will use the program in their classrooms.

She is currently scheduled to attend a number of workshops and seminars on drug abuse and drug education and will meet the officials of other Ohio school systems where the program being established in Columbus is now underway.

Originally from Port Washington, New York, Miss James joined the Columbus schools in 1959 as a first grade teacher at Burroughs Elementary School. She later taught at Parkmoor Elementary and was assigned to Winterset Elementary when selected to head the new program.

The drug education coordinator, who began serving in the post March 6, holds a bachelor's degree from Bowling Green State University and a master's in guidance counseling from Ohio State.

Miss James, who worked with drug education efforts in the schools where she previously taught, served from 1964 to 1967 as a resource teacher in the development of health and physical education films for use by educational television in Central Ohio.

Student Teacher Learns, Helps With Eastland Ag

He is supervised by Clyde Keathley, Gene Houser, Wilbur Stevenson, and Franklin Niller of the Eastland Staff.

Following Steve's student teaching, he will be an Extension Trainee in Fairfield County. Steve has had eight years of 4-H Club work while living on his father's beef and grain farm in Butler County near Hamilton, Ohio.

For the past 18 months he has worked for the Ohio Department of Agriculture inspecting animal feeds and fertilizer.

Steve hopes to receive his M.S. Degree in Agricultural Education from the Ohio State University in March of 1974.

Steve enjoys working with high school students and feels a vocational center such as Eastland can meet the student's needs that perhaps cannot be reached by a conventional high school.

Doctor Gives Tips To Walk-A-Thon Hikers

The local organization of foot specialists are taking time to aid those area residents who will be taking part in the annual March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon on April 29th.

To make sure the feet of these walkers can survive the 22 mile hike, Dr. Palestrant listed a few precautions to try and make the trip less painful.

"Inspect your feet before you begin for possible pain-producers such as corns or ingrown toenails, and have them treated before you begin," he said. "Self treatment of such problems is worse than no treatment. You can run the risk of infection and turn a minor problem into a major one."

For proper footwear, Dr. Palestran said that well-fitting sneakers with good support are fine, provided they have few ridges and inside seams which could cause sores or blisters by rubbing.

He also recommended absorbent socks to keep feet dry and comfortable. Holes in socks can cause excess friction and result in a blister, he warned. And if your socks are too short, the toes will be bunched together resulting in the formation of blisters or other foot problems.

He advised dusting the inside of walking shoes with a medicated foot powder to check excess prespiration, and to set a normal, comfortable pace to limit strain. And when the walk winds up, he recommends taking off the shoes, and to relax with feet elevated.

"This promotes circulation," he said, "and an alcohol rub of dunking the feet in alternate tubs of warm and cool water will also help."

Wishing Well Will Make It So

NUMEROUS civic officials and guests joined hands in breaking ground last week for the new addition to the Marriott Inn on South Hamilton Road at I-70. The noontime ceremonies centered around Todd Carter, Franklin County Easter Seal Poster Child, who turned the first shovel of earth in an area which will eventually become a small lake with a Gazebo and Wishing Well. Funds fished from the Wishing Well will go to the Franklin County Crippled Children's Society. The Marriott Inn presented a $100 check to the Easter Seal campaign. The Marriott addition will also include an additional 51 rooms and 2100 additional square feet of banquet space. Construction is expected to be completed by Sept. 1973. Some of the groundbreakers posed for this happy photo. From left are General Manger Arthur Allis; T. W. OSU College Of Theatre Plans Diversified Events

The Renaissance Ensemble, one of several groups from the Oakland University Collegium Musicum, will appear as guest artists Friday, April 27, at 8 p.m. in Hughes Auditorium, the Ohio State University School of Music.

Performing music from the Renaissance period, the group includes both singers and instrumentalists, who perform on the instruments of that period--lute, viola da gamba, recorder, krummhorn.

In addition to early works, the group also performs contemporary works which utilize these historical instruments.

The public is invited to attend this performance and a workshop in Renaissance wind instruments the following day at Hughes Hall. There is no admission charge.

Concert artist Lois Marshall, soprano, will appear in recital Sunday, April 29, at 8 p.m. in the Thurber Theatre as an event on the Faculty Recital Series sponsored quarterly by the Ohio State University College of The Arts.

A guest artist professor on the voice faculty at the School of Music, Miss Marshall will be assisted by her New York accompanist, pianist Stuart Hamilton.

In addition to her teaching on the voice faculty at the University, Miss Marshall has maintained an active performing career in solo recitals, oratorio performances, and with the famed Bach Aria Group.

The public is invited to attend this performance. There is no admission charge.

Pianist-composer Denes Agay will conduct a Piano Workshop at the Ohio State University School of Music Friday, April 27, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Hughes Auditorium.

Sponsored by the piano faculty, Mrs. Miriam Mooney, chairman, the workshop is intended for piano teachers and advanced students in the area.

Dr. Agay was born in Hungary, studied at the Liszt Academy in Budapest, and received his Ph. D. from the University of Budapest.

There is no registration fee for this workshop. Interested musicians should contact Mrs. Mooney at the School of Music for further information.

Sandor Szokolay's opera, "Blood Wedding," which received its first performance in the composer's native Hungary in 1964 and will receive its American Premiere performance at Ohio State University in May, will also appear on the summer season at Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1973.

The opportunity offered by the Ohio State University College of The Arts to the American musical world is rare, and representatives from opera groups throughout the country have been invited to share in this first performance in America.

The productions, scheduled for May 17 and 19 in Mershon Auditorium, will feature two professional singers in the lead roles and a cast of over 200 University students and 50 elementary-age singers. The Bride and the Bridegroom will be sung by soprano Anne Esch and tenor Mario Alch.

Reserved seat tickets for the two performances are available by mail order now at the Mershon Ticket Office and will be available for counter sale April 30. Call 422-2354 for information.

Harris is also director of the highly successful Lab Theatre program, a series of weekly student productions presented in Royer Commons.

Tickets for "Earnest" are available at the College of The Arts Ticket Office, Mershon Lobby West. Call 422-2295 for information.

Pinned Down

I MIGHT be the bolder of a new world's record.

Last week I completely undid the pins of a new shirt in seven minutes and 28 seconds.

There are only three pin pricks to show for my efforts - all in the same right index finger pinkie that is having trouble typing this tidbit of wisdom.

There must be an easier way to do it. We'll repeat the old cliche about "Man has gone to the moon, why can't he ..." and plead that our scientists in the shirt factory come up with an easier way to tie a man up in knots.

My wife and I have a bargain arrangement going between us. I undo my new shirts and she undoes her new everythings. That evens it out in time and agony.

WHILE ON the subject of pet peeves I have another that constantly bugs me. It has to do with the easy open (just follow the directions) medicine bottles and various other bottled and canned items. Only one thing is wrong. The directions on how to open the dad-blanged things are always locked on the inside.

They could at least make the easy open bottle for those who do take care of their medicines (maybe a sworn statement at time of purchase will do) and keep it out of the hands and eyesight of eager children.

Whatever-I think I'm doomed to go through the rest of life looking at the world with rose colored glasses. I have to or the top will blow as certain as in the next five seconds...

Questions About COTA Answered By Experts

The Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) through the "Transit Crisis Committee" has issued a series of questions and answers concerning the facts of the .8 mill levy that will be on the May 8 ballot.

The 41-question and answer series started March 28 and concludes this week.

(Fourth Of A Series)

How can I schedule a speaker about the COTA levy for my organization?

By calling 224-COTA (224-2682).

Why buy the Columbus Transit Company now? Why not let it go out of business then buy the company for much less?

Because there won't be any company to buy. The CTC consists of three things - the work force, the busses and a few pieces of real estate. If the company goes out of business skilled drivers and mechanics will find other jobs, the busses will be sold (CTC has eager buyers for its busses) and the real estate will revert to the parent company, the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company. What do you buy then? This kind of scheme would cost the community more in the long run than paying a fair price for the company.

Which way does COTA plan to go, then, in developing a rapid transit system?

The Central Ohio area fortunately has a well developed rail network radiating from the center of the area. In time, and as these rights-of-way become available, it might be that COTA would acquire them.

Does this mean that COTA plans to use railroad rights-of-way for rapid transit cars?

Probably not for quite a while. Remember we don't have the population density for that yet. But it would be possible to pave these rights-of-way and use them as exclusive bus lanes.

Why not use rapid transit cars along with regular railroad trains?

It just won't work. You can't mix high-speed, nimble rapid transit cars on the same trackage with much heavier freight trains. A rapid transit car that can't move any faster than a 300-car coal train really isn't much of an improvement.

If the Columbus Transit Company, with its experienced management, can't continue to make a profit, what makes you think that COTA can?

COTA can't. That's the whole point of the tax levy. Some of the money raised will be used to subsidize the operation of the bus system. COTA is a non-profit, publically-owned operation.

Do you mean to say that the COTA board of trustees will actually run the bus system?

No. The COTA Board will establish policies. Actual day-to-day operation of the system will be handled by a nationally-known transit management firm selected by the COTA Board on a competitive basis.

What is COTA's policy with regard to public information?

All meetings of the COTA Board have been and will continue to be open to the public. The Board encourages the public to make suggestions, comments and complaints to COTA. A program is being developed to insure continues citizen input.

Do the suburbs stand to benefit most from the COTA program or will the City of Columbus benefit most?

No one will benefit most but all will benefit. COTA is supported by the city of Columbus, by Franklin County and by most of the municipalities in the suburbs. It is a regional program designed to benefit everyone within the Central Ohio region. For the suburban residents it will open up access to jobs and shopping in the downtown. For city dwellers it will provide access to jobs and shopping centers in the suburbs. It will provide service to hospitals and other medical facilities.

What is the transit crisis committee?

The Transit Crisis Committee is a broadly-based, non-profit citizens' group organized for the purpose of getting voter approval of the COTA levy so that the present transit crisis can be solved. It uses no public funds.

Why should differential fares be eliminated? Shouldn't those who live farther away have to pay more since they ride farther?

Because residents of all parts of the transit area will help to pay for operation through the proposed levy, it would not be fair to charge these people higher fares. COTA is a regional authority serving the entire Central Ohio region.

Will an improved bus system help the parking problem?

It will be a considerable help. More people will be able to ride a bus to their jobs, to shopping centers, to educational and health facilities. Eventually people will be able to drive their car part way to their destination, park in a specially designed fringe parking area and take a bus the rest of the way.

Whitehall Nips Drug Pushers Through Concerted Effort

THERE are not enough John Bishops to go around.

Every town should have at least one.

One town does - Whitehall.

JOHN BISHOP is Whitehall's Mayor.

He's at his best when the chips are down.

They were down last fall and John Bishop was fortunate that the deck of cards in play were ones with which he was familiar - teamwork.

Bishop and the entire safety department of Whitehall went to work last fall to get at the roots of the drug problem that was knocking loudly (and entering at will) on the community's doors.

Bishop's staff was keyed to the situation. Most were family men who had a stake in the drug cutoff operation through being men who were concerned.

THE SCHOOL administration was also keyed to the need to get the monkey off its back.

Teamwork did it and last weekend the Whitehall police were an instrumental force in working with other law enforcement agencies in "Operation All-Together".

They have rid (Lord, we hope so) the city of some of the slime that has been covering the area with death at its doorstep.

Thanks, John Bishop, and thanks to the many who worked with wisdom and concern under your command.

TO THE undercover agent who made the operation successful we can only say we're glad that there are men like you who are willing to put their lives on the line to save others from the drug clutches.

We'll be watching the outcome of the decisions that will be made by judges and probably some juries. We hope they prove to be as dedicated as the men who made the operation successful.

GIVE PRAISE

Sing Halleluia! Christ is risen ... and joy fills the hearts of men, lifting our spirits, raising our hopes. The miracle of rebirth surrounds us.

Especially now, at Easter, we long for peace and brotherhood...let's pray for it. And work for it. Together.

Easter . . . Spring . . Lamb A Reason To Remember

BY LOIS L. SHERERD

THE BLESSED Easter time and the spring season are synonymous, both meaning new life. However, Easter day is a sacred Christian festival commemorating the resurrection of Jesus Christ to a glorified, everlasting life which is not a violation of natural law but a fulfillment of supernatural law.

The life of Christ upon this earth was one of a suffering servant and also the Lamb of God that must die for the sins of the world.

THE LAMB, is peculiar to Christ. Isaiah speaks of Jesus as, "like a lamb," which still means innocence, Peter used the name lamb in his epistle as did Luke in the Acts of the Apostles. But it is John who seems to love to speak of the Lord as the Lamb and especially in the Book of Revelation, for he writes, "Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb."

John the beloved disciple of Christ, had first been a disciple of John the Baptist, and heard him say as Jesus came toward them, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." This was a short sermon that John never forgot.

Behold this Lamb of God as a man. He was lowly and humble, one chosen out of the Jewish race to fulfill the prophecy that Jesus shall come forth as a branch from the roots of Jesse and as the son of David, whose reign shall never end.

HE WAS born in a stable, grew to manhood in Nazareth, waxed strong in spirit, increased in wisdom and stature. Always obedient, first to his heavenly Father, and to his parents. A pure character and a gentle disposition that drew children to him. A kingly bearing that endured persecution and reviling without anger.

He loved the outcasts of society, the poor and the destitute, the lepers, the publicians and harlots because he saw them as lost sheep that could be reclaimed.

This is only a glimpse of his humanity but this is THE MAN whom all kindreds and nations of the earth must one day acknowledge, as "The Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." Jn. 1:29.

We see Christ among men - men of the household of Israel and Behold him as he becomes the sacrifice of God, taking away the sins of the world; bearing its penalty by his atoning death on the cross.

JESUS had to work to do and a certain time to do it in, for he knew he was the Lamb of God and the cross awaited him at the end of his earthly journey. He said to the crowd, "and I when I am lifted up from earth will draw all men to myself. He said this to show by what death he was to die." Jn. 12:32-33.

It is written that when the time drew near, that he should be received up, he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem. It is consistently recorded in the first four Gospel Books that Jesus had told his disciples over and over, that he must die and raised again on the third day. Luke tells it more in detail, that Jesus would be delivered up to the Gentiles, to be mocked, spit upon, bruised and struck, mistreated, scourged and put to death, and the third day rise again.

"But they understood none of these things, and this saying was hid from them and they did not grasp what he said." Lk. 18:33-34.

ANOTHER reason as he said, was "His earnest desire to eat the passover meal with his disciples," he even arranged for the Upper Room, in which to have the passover.

However at the same time He instituted His Own Supper or The Lord's Supper. The broken bread representing his broken body and the wine his shed blood, a memorial that points back to his death and our deliverance from sin and his coming glory.

The scene that followed the passover meal with his disciples was one of betrayal, agony, arrest and desertion. He prayed in agony so earnestly that his sweat like great drops of blood fell on the ground. The dark cloud of human sins overshadowed his soul and weighed so heavily upon his heart that he cried out, "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not my will, but Thine be done."

He stood in Pilate's judgment hall alone, despised by the people, forsaken by his disciples, and delivered up to the malice of his foes. Pilate passed judgment upon him and he was led away to be crucified. "He was led as a lamb to the slaughter: as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, he opened not his mouth." Isa. 53:7.

WHEN JESUS came - he was the last of the lambs, the first also, the real Lamb, the Pascal Lamb, and the dear Lamb of God, all the others before Him were but a type. Leading up to the One and Only Sufficient and Supreme sacrifice of God's Son, who paid the price of sin for us, forever.

Patrol Superintendent Asks Truck Speed Stay

Results were released this week concerning a study conducted by the Ohio State Highway Patrol to determine the feasibility of increasing the speed limit of trucks on Ohio's interstate highways.

"All evidence revealed in the study indicates that trucks, especially the larger trucks, are already over-involved in highway crashes, particularly the severe injury and fatal accidents, and that an increase in the speed limit would drastically increase crash injuries and fatalities, Colonel Robert M. Chiaramonte, Patrol superintendent, stated.

Statistics show that in collisions between passenger cars and trucks, an average of 39.2 fatalities occur in the passenger cars for each fatality in the trucks. In car-truck accidents involving large interstate trucks, 60 times as many fatalities occur in passenger cars as in these trucks.

"Our study shows that in over half of the accidents in which trucks are involved, the truck driver and-or his equipment are the primary causes of the crash," Colonel Chiaramonte said. "These causes include: driver condition; equipment failure; poor braking characteristics of large trucks; and truck-induced aerodynamid distrubances or blast effects."

Blast effects, or air turbulence around large trucks, affects the stability of small vehicles passing or being passed. These blast effects can cause a passing car to be pulled in as much as 4.7 feet toward the truck or pushed 3.3 feet away from the truck. These aerodynamic disturbances become critical with adverse weather and road conditions and present a real hazard to smaller cars, cars towing trailers, small vans, and camper combinations.

"In reviewing the evidence compiled in this study, it is obvious that if speed limits for trucks are increased we may expect a considerable increase in truck-related accidents, and particularly in accident severity, injuries, and fatalities," the Colonel said.

Chiaramonte based this conclusion on the following:

(1.) Higher speeds will encourage companies and drivers to cover greater distances which will only aggravate the driver fatigue problem which already exists.

(2.) Stopping distances, presently a primary problem, will increase with greater speeds.

(3.) Blast effects will increase in severity, thus becoming an influencing factor for the loss of control of a greater number of vehicles.

"Higher speed limits for trucks may be advantageous to a few, but may prove to be disastrous to the safety of the majority of Ohio's highway users," Colonel Chiaramonte concluded.

Mandatory Seat Belt Support Is Asked

To the Editor:

HOUSE Bill 202, the mandatory safety belt proposal, is soon to be considered by the Ohio Legislature.

I respectfully ask consideration for editorial support of this legislation.

Twenty years of study have proved the value of safety belts. Experts conclude 10,000 to 20,000 lives a year could be saved in the United States by the universal use of safety belts.

In Victoria, Australia, a mandatory safety belt law was passed in 1971. The first year it was in effect, traffic deaths decreased by about 20 per cent. If we applied this percentage to last year's Ohio traffic death toll of almost 2400, we see that such a law here could mean 480 lives saved.

IN THE Australian experience, injuries were reduced about 30 percent. Translated into Ohio figures, this percentage would result in 31,500 fewer or less severe injuries.

Common misconceptions about safety belts include the wish of some motorists to be "thrown clear" in case of an accident. The truth is that one is 30 times more likely to be killed if ejected from the car.

ANOTHER misconception is the fear of being trapped by a safety belt in a burning or submerged car. The fact is that only about one-half of one percent of accidents involve fire or submersion, and even in the ones that do, a person has a much better chance of escaping if he has been held in place by a belt than if he has been bounced around the car and knocked unconscious.

The safety belt also helps keep the driver in place so he can control the car and avoid a second collision.

Some argue the belts themselves cause injuries. The fact is that if worn properly, the belt seldom injures the wearer.

WAGE LOSS in this country due to traffic crashes is placed at three billion dollars a year. Medical expenses are placed around one billion dollars a year. Universal use of safety belts can cut this needless expense significantly.

Ohio's stake in such a savings can run into the millions of dollars.

A side benefit of economic savings due to universal seat belt usage could be the reduction of insurance premiums. Such premiums are determined by claims and a reduction in claims can mean money-in-the-pocket to Ohio taxpayers.

SOME motorists still have faith in the development of an air bag system of protection. These devices can add some $300 to the price of a car and are not yet perfected. Moreover, many of them still require the use of safety belts. Seat belts are here; they're proven effective....in short, they do the job.

Objections can be answered. A law requiring the use of seat belts is no more an infringement on rights then a law requiring a driver's license. Both protect the rights of the innocent from those who would abuse the privilege of driving.

AGAIN comparing the seat belt proposal to the driver's license law, I don't think the problem of enforcement would be any different. Police officers don't stop drivers now to see if they have a license. But if drivers are stopped for another violation, they are then checked for a license too. Most people have the license because the law requires it, not because they will be caught without one.

The seat belt law will be easier to enforce in the future because manufacturers will be installing new three-point harness-lap belt combinations which will make sight enforcement a reality.

I believe it is time to enact a law that will make safety belt use mandatory. The saving in human resources is too great to wait any longer.

The law is needed because other approaches have failed. Education, appeals to reason, celebrity endorsements--none of these increased seat belt usage.

I would be appreciative if your publication could speak in behalf of this proposal. If passed, I believe this law could bring to Ohio the same dramatic results recorded in Australia.

THANK YOU for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Eugene P. O'Grady

Writer Questions Principal's Tactics

To the Editor:

I hope Harold Turner (V.P. at Hilltonia) is still cleaning the egg off his face for his very distorted and misleading mailbag contribution of April 4.

In his letter he discusses the shite members of the Board of Education particularly Mrs. Prentice's attitudes on the Columbus Plan saying they were against the Plan, when in fact the Columbus Plan was passed 6 to 1 with the only negative vote coming from black board member Mrs. Marie Castleman.

Another misleading statement was that this program will benefit all students. This is NOT true!

It was clearly stated at the board meeting that a white student from Linden McKinley cannot transfer out of this school fro any reason (even medical) but a black student can transfer.

Now if this is not discrimination against a segment of the populace I'd like to know what is?

If we must bus for programs let the poor white student have have the same advantages for education as the black.

I also take issue with the fact that 13 members of the Committee are on the payroll of the Board of Education. These people should be used as advisors not make policy.

At least two members from every high school area should have comprised this committee using administrators only as a source of information.

Then truly you would have a representative picture of the community feeling and whether they felt the taxpayer will support such a program in liew of the fact that there is no money available to anything else.

What does Mr. Turner Think we're spending 9) million dollars in new buildings for?

Sincerely,
Mary Flom

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

IN WASHINGTON, if a woman wants to know what to wear to any of the White House parties, she simply asks designer Adele Simpson...from personal experience, Adele has all the answers.

ADELE SIMPSON, whose customers include Patricia Nixon and her daughters, is remarkable proof that "good things come in small packages". Although tiny (only 4 feet 9 inches tall) Mrs. Simpson stands at the top of the designing profession...directing her own dress business with an astute business sense. Naturally, to attain this success, she gives a lot of herself...time, patience and respect...gets tremendous satisfaction from doing things...from accomplishing something. I've often heard her remark, "To see a woman walk down the street in one of my dresses is a joy. I always remember I am dressing a woman...not making a dress. I go to the stores all over the country, regularly, and meet the women who buy my clothes". (Incidentally, I ran into Adele at I. Magnin in San Francisco, doing a show.)

"BEAUTY THROUGH REALITY" is Adele's Spring and Summer message. "Attitudes and values have changed faster than we think and women are determined that life is meant to be enjoyed...clothes must express and enhance their enjoyment".

Adele Simpson moves straight into reality with three groups based on navy: navy combined with yellow and white; navy and champagne; and navy with red and white; as well as vital colors such as pink, green, and blue and contemporary prints.

She shapes her dresses and suits simply with emphasis on rich fabrics...a new awareness of day clothes is expressed in her soft shirt dresses and soft two-piece suits.

FOR EVENING she gets more adventurous...a group of short jersey dresses, some long sleek satin dresses, polka dotted crepe suits with dirndle skirts, and a black and white coin-dotted suit with a bare little glitter halter sweater.

According to this famous designer, "Today's fashion is illustrated in personal dressing...where each woman can find her own identity" And I couldn't agree more heartily.

Pool Patter By Peg Pierce

Torpedoes --The Jewish Center Speed Team traveled to Mansfield on April 8th. Thirty one swimmers left Columbus at 10:30 a.m. in eight cars driven by parents.

The Friendly House in Mansfield has one of the most complete facilities for competitive swimming that we have seen this season. Everything was regulation; starting blocks, racing lanes, skylights, controlled air, and seating for four hundred. Our hosts were gracious and very efficient.

Mel Martin, Chairman of the Speed Team Committee for The Jewish Center Torpedoes, Phil Long and Sue Wallman assisted by acting as timers for the three way meet. Leigh Orlov served as our trainer and did a beautiful job of lining the team up for their events.

Sam Brief our one and only eight year old boy delighted the good doctor and his wife with a first place in the free style heat.

Ruth Miller did an outstanding performance in the individual medley and relay races. Ten year old Sally Zacks swam her first individual medley very well. Terry Wirth took first places in the fifty yard free style, fifty yard breast stroke, fifty yard back stroke, and the two hundred yard free style relay. Wow what a gal!

Rob Templeton, Rick Stein, Chris Delaney and Sean O'Donnell swam their events in a brilliant fashion, pacing and then moving out to a good finish. Of course, we made a few mistakes, seven to be exact, but the judge was best thus far this year. Both Galion and Mansfield have excellent teams and will no doubt be heard from in the near future.

The 138 points received by the Jewish Center Torpedoes were hard fought and well deserved. The Girls' Relay of Ruth Miller, Terry Wirth, Missy Long, and Karen Saas took a first place with the time:2.10:0 for two hundred yards.

I should like to mention at this point that I was proud of all the boys and girls. The entire group displayed sportsmanlike conduct and carried themselves with poise.

Open swim hours during Passover: Wednesday-April 18-7-10 p.m.; Thursday-April 19-4:30 p6 p.m.; Friday-April 20-2-6 p.m.; Saturday-April 21-2-4 p.m.; Sunday-April22-1-4 p.m.; Monday- April 24-7-9 p.m. Regular program will resume Wednesday, April 25th.

Splashes--Barbara Templeton completed 50 miles of Swim to Stay Fit on April 6. Dr. Richard Alpers has volunteered to act as life guard on Sunday, April 22nd. Thanks, Doc.

P.S. The late Mrs. G.W. and I wish you all a most pleasant Passover and a happy Easter. Gone Fishin --Be back April 25th.

Elizabeth Janeway Matrix Table Speaker

Over 1600 invitations were mailed this week to Central Ohio women, inviting them to the 49th annual Matrix Table May 1, at the Sheraton Hotel, Columbus.

The invitations, sent to a special guest list, are not transferrable. Deadline for reservations is April 25, and none will be accepted after that date.

Guests who do not attend for three years and fail to write their regrets are dropped from the event's guest list.

"Bus service? I couldn't work at the hospital without it!"

CTC bus service will stop on June 30th. What will happen to this hospital worker's livelihood when she loses her only means of transportation? And, what will happen to the people who need her help every day?

The loss of CTC will affect everyone — not just the regular bus-riders—but all the people who depend on those who ride the buses.

You can help save the buses with your vote for the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA) on May 8. COTA guarantees continued bus service, extended routes, Sunday and holiday service and a 25¢ fare for Senior Citizens at off-peak hours.

There will be no bus service without your support. Vote May 8, and vote FOR COTA Bus Service.

Youth For Zoo Forming

A new organization for teenagers, 14-18 years, is being formed to serve the Columbus Zoo. YUZOO("Youth for the Zoo") will provide volunteer service for the Zoo, help with fund-raising and participate in educational endeavors.

Assisting in the Children's Zoo is the 1973 summer service project. This involves selling animal food and helping young children feed and pet the domestic animals. Volunteers are also needed to help in the Party House, assisting primarily with children's birthday parties.

Volunteers may sign up for half day per week: 12-4 p.m. Monday thruugh Friday and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays. OSU Theatre Plans Unusual Events

Peter Shaffer's colorful and dramatic play, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," will continue nightly (except Sunday) at Ohio State University's Thurber Theatre through Saturday, April 28.

Under the direction of Dr. John C. Morrow, of the Theatre faculty, the play tells the story of Pizzaro's conquest of Incan Peru.

All the spectacle inspired by Incan gold and the sun-god worship is present in the visual aspects of the production, in addition to the hgihly dramatic aspects inspired by an ambitious banc of explorers, a tribe of innocent, trusting natives and their leader, and a mutiny inspired by greed.

Reserved seat tickets are still available at the College of the Arts Ticket Office, Mershon Lobby West, open weekdays 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 422-2295 for information.

Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Easter Sunday, April 22, at 3 p.m. in Mershon Auditorium, the Ohio State University College of the Arts will present a performance of Gustav Mahler's Second Symphony, "The Resurrection."

Under the direction of Evan Whallon, the groups performing this monumental work will include the University Symphony Orchestra, augmented by members by members of the Columbus Symphony, and the University's Symphonic Choir, Chorale, Concert Choir, University Chorus, and Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.

Soloists are soprano Marilyn Nims and contralto Beverly Vaughn, both students in the School of Music.

Mahler, the last great Austrian symphonist, stands, both historically and philosophically, not so much at the beginning of the twentieth century as at the end of the nineteenty century.

Mahler's use of massed voices in a symphonic form finds its precedent in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, with which composition Mahler's Second Symphony also shares other similarities.

Personally selected texts were altered by both composers and both also thematically united the vocal sections of their respective symphonies with the orchestral sections by an elaborate system of either variations or thematic cross-realtions.

Both also seemed to share the belief that the word was necessary to help carry the strong ideas that certain of their works conveyed. And, of course, both demanded a grandiose group of performers to accomplish the aims of their works.

Tickets for the concert are available through the Mershon Ticket Office. Call 422-2354 for information.

AROUND TOWN

I dropped into the Howard Johnson's - East, the other night for a drink, and to catch a little bit of their entertainment. Well, I stayed until closing, and had a great big ball. Howard Johnson's - East has the Rum Keg Lounge. Within these walls, you'll find a happy, fun lovin' atmosphere. This you can contribute to Bill Bragg, who sings and plays accoustial guitar, and the help. I'll guarantee you, both makes your stay a ball.

FIRST let's talk about Bill Bragg. He is a very entertaining entertainer. His guitar is amplified. Bill has the ability of getting a lot of music from the thing, with a lot of good chord structures. While there are a million guitar players, Bill handles the thing in such a manner that he produces a rather unique sound from it. He literally strums the devil out of it.

In the vocal department, his style and total quality are just as unique. His intriguing voices grows on you, and makes you want to hear more and more. In fact, that's one of his secrets. He holds you to your chair until closing. He's fun, he's enjoyable.

ADDING a lot of help to this is the cute little bunny behind the bar, Linda Freeman, Miss Personality of 1973. The Rum Keg Lounge is a friendly spot. That includes the customers, as well as the employees.

Just take my advice, and plan to visit there real soon. Bill Bragg performs there Thursday through Saturday. I'll be there again this week. Look for me, and we'll have a ball together.

A COUPLE of weeks ago I told you about the Hoof and Horn Steakhouse. Now, let me tell you about the food. First, let me explain something. Right now, I could write my entire column on the subject, and still not be able to convey to you the actual nobility of their steak. You just have to place a bite in your mouth, to really understand and appreciate the excellence of the food and the Hoof and Horn Steakhouse.

In my previous column, I said that all beef is raised on a contract basis, just for the Hoof and Horn. This means, that you get the finest. And, you do my friend.

I had their New York Cut, which weighs between twelve and fourteen ounces. I have traveled all over, and seldom have I found anything better. It was the tenderest, tastiest piece of beef I've eaten. The flavor was simply beautiful. One other aspect, the steak was cooked exactly the way I ordered it. Often, the broiler man in a kitchen will under or over cook. Not true, here.

THE MEAL also included a build your own salad bar. I had my choice of several dressings, plus onions, tomatoes, cucumbers, croutons and more. A hot loaf of homemade bread also came with my meal, with plenty of butter.

Now, my friends, you may think this dinner cost a small fortune. Nope. While I normally do not print prices, this has to be an exception.

The entire meal was only $6.25. The reason Hoof and Horn can sell a delicious steak dinner like this for such a price is that they have no rent and many of the other expenses that most restaurants incur. Since Hoof and Horn is located in the same building as Diamond Jim's, and the front part of the building was vacant, the entire cost has been charged off to DJ's. The same is true with a lot of other costs that goes with running a restaurant.

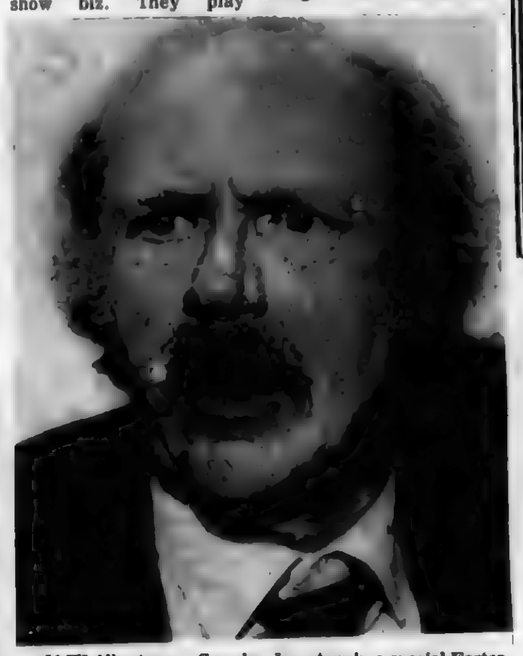
DIAMOND JIM'S, as many of you know, is a high class, swinging show lounge, featuring the best contemporary groups in the country. For those of you who do not dig this, don't worry. The two are completely separated. You can enter Diamond Jim's off of Murray Hill, and Hoof and Horn Steakhouse off Beacon Hill Rd.

If you do want a good steak, plus some fine entertainment, walk through the door into the lounge. There is no cover charge for you who dine there.

All I can say is that you will love not only the food, but the wonderful intimate, relaxing atmosphere of the Hoof and Horn. The service, as provided by Linda, was superb. In fact, that's the simplest way to describe my entire dining adventure.

THE OTHER night a real treat was in store for me. I was invited out to Danny's Mannhole to listen to a girl singer, who Andre Correale told me was a gas of a singer. How right he was.

In the past, I have told you about Danny Mann, and his new place, including the nice decor, top entertainment, featuring owner Danny Mann and the fun and enjoyment that abounds at the Mannhole.



But, with Jerri Aberman singing there, the other night, the place took on a new dimension. She won't be appearing there very often, because Dad can't afford her. Yes, Jerri is Danny's daughter. This doesn't mean that he is giving her a break by letting her sing. Jerri has worked all over the country, including a stint in San Fransisco. Actually, Jerri does Pop a favor.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Foster and Ferrell continues to pack them in at the all new Olentangy Inn. This is one of the best duos in show biz. They play everything, and play it well. Their singing, both harmony and solo work is fun and enjoyable. What a fun group. Stop and see them sometime real soon ... Here's some good news for movie goers. Westland Cinema is starting something new. Every Monday night is Dollar night. The same movie that you pay a lot more to see the rest of the week, can be seen for only one dollar on Mondays. This is true for both Westland I and II ... This is the finale week for Sig and Gary at Lincoln Lodge Motel. This couple gives out with lots of sophicated, tasty vocals. While they are not a high powered duo, they play and sing pretty music, that is fine for conversation or romancing that favorite gal of yours ... Got word the other day, that the Duke Jenkins Trio has been held over at the Marriott Motel. Here is another classy group, playing a host of pretty music. Duke sings a lot like Nat King Cole. A truly fine outfit ... For some really good food, drop in soon to the Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg. Their food is fit for a king. Make sure you try one of their three specials buffets. The noon buffet is one heck of a deal, it includes three hot entrees, six salads, vegetables and much more for $1.75. The Friday night seafood smorgasbord is out of sight and very reasonable. The Sunday Beef Buffet is certainly a bargain for only $2.95. I'll tell you more later, as soon as I make up my mind, which one to review. They are all so good....The fabulous Freshwater is currently knocking them dead at Marco Polo's Lounge. This group played there sometime ago, and have been brought back because so many people ask for them. Plenty of action at this place....Have a good time this week, go out and enjoy yourself. See You Around Town.

JACK Albertson as Grandpa Joe, stars in a special Easter Show "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory," which will be shown as a Friday, Saturday and Sunday Matinee at Westland Cinema II. All seats are one dollar.

Recreation Vehicles Need Special Tire Care

A growing number of motorists have a special kind of second "car", a recreational vehicle (RV) they use in warm weather, and it needs a special kind of tire care according to the Tire Industry Safety Council.

"Over four-and-a-half million motor homes and all types of trailers andcampers are on the road now, with the number expected to increase annually at a rate nearing one million by 1975," said Council Chairman Ross R. Ormsby.

"With the variety of recreational vehicle sizes, shapes and weights involved a motorist shouldn't rely on the rule of thumb he applies to his car for tire maintenance and safety procedures," Ormsby declared.

A Recreational Vehicle Consumer Tire Guide to RV tire care, including proper load-inflation tables, is available free of charge from the Tire Industry Safety Council. Write "Recreation", Box 726, New York, N.Y. 10010, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope.

Inflation – Trailer tires normally require higher inflation pressures than passenger car tires. Bleeding air from trailer tires to match the lower pressure of passenger tires will result in underinflation, causing fast and uneven tread wear.

Allowable load – When loading a car and trailer, or camper, be sure to consider the macimum load permitted on the tire and the proper distribution of the load within the vehicle. Both are important in preventing overloads and obtaining good stability.

The only positive method of checking the load on each tire is to weigh each wheel on a scale, consulting the Council's RV Guide load-inflation tables or information in the owner's manual regarding recommended and maximum allowable loads that may be carried.

Stability – Trailer wagging, or side-to-side movement may indicate an improper load or improper hitching. Once started, it can magnify rapidly to violent oscillation. Trailers with high profiles are generally more susceptible than those with lower "sail" areas, and lower centers of gravity.

Precautions include (1) using an anti-sway bar attached between the trailer and the car, (2) higher inflation pressures, up to the maximum rating of the tire especially on the rear axle of the towing vehicle, (3) using the widest recommended rims for the tires, especially on the rear axle of the towing vehicle and (4) slow down.

Tread Depth – When the tread is worn to less than one sixteenth inch between any two grooves the tire is unsafe and should be replaced.

Maintenance – Tires should be inspected periodically for excessive tread wear, cuts, and for stones, nails and glass embedded in the rubber or between the grooves. Such objects may initially be lightly embedded, but continued driving may force them through the tire body causing a puncture and flat.

Driving Speed – At any given speed small diameter camper or boat trailer tires must make a greater number of revolutions with more flexing action than the larger tires on the car. With the consequent higher heat build-up, a speed that may be safe for the automobile alone may be excessive when you are towing a trailer.

Boating Safety Awards Planned

Organizations making significant contributions to boating safety during 1973 will be honored in the sixteenth annual Gold Cup Awards for Boating Safety, according to an announcement today by Mercury Marine, sponsor of the competition.

A boat club, water ski club, skin diving club or any club associated with boating in any way, that makes an original and substantial contribution toward promoting boating safety in its area during 1973.

A summer camp, scout troop, school or any youth group (majority of members under 21 years of age) that makes an original and meaningful effort to promote safe boating in its area in 1973.

Boating safety authorities representing the U.S. Coast Guard and its auxiliary, the National Safety Council, American Water Ski Association and U.S. Power Squadrons, serve as judges.

Entries should include full details, and supporting materials when available, regarding the contributions made by the group or organization toward advancing or promoting boating safety during 1973.

Presentations, which will be returned, should be sent to Gold Cup Awards, Public Relations Department, Mercury Marine, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin 54936, before October 15.

Easter Sunrise Service Set At Hoover Reservoir

For the 18th consecutive year an Easter Sunrise Service, sponsored by the Central College United Presbyterian Church, will be held at the Hoover Reservoir.

The Service will begin with the actual rising of the sun at 5:44 and will be conducted from the top of the west tower.

The public address system should make it possible to hear the service in the lower and upper parking lots on the west side as well as along the causeway and in the parking lot on the east side.

Entrance to the service should be made from Sunbury Road unless one is planning to park on the east side of the reservoir. The access to the east side is by Central College Road.

Blendon Township and State Highway patrolmen will be on hand to keep traffic moving smoothly. Local Boy Scouts will help direct people to the best location.

The Easter message "Standing On The Light Side Of The Cross" will be given by the Reverend Richard D. Ellsworth with the Reverend Randall L. Hilscher assisting with the service.

A choir of the Central College Church will provide the music.

A large cross has been erected on the top of the west tower and it will be illuminated from dusk until dawn each night through the Easter Season.

SPRING WEATHER

Spring weather may bring out more pedestrians reminds Highway Safety Director, Pete O'Grady. Children playing or sports fans going to baseball games may forget to watch for traffic. As drivers, do your part to keep them safe. Let them have the right of way.

Poster Winner Named

Linette Woda has won first place for the Blue Bird Division of the Camp Fire Girls Traffic Safety Poster contest.

The contest was held in conjunction with the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee.

Linette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Woda, 4999 Fenwick Ct., and attends Winterset School.

Easter Service Is Planned By Knights Templar

For the 40th year, the Knights Templar of Free and Accepted Masons, Columbus, will observe Easter at the RKO Palace Theater.

Traditionally, the observance has been a Sunrise Service.

The service will begin promptly at 6:30 a.m. and will be preceded by a parade from Broad and Fourth Streets to the theater.

The Knights of the two Commanderies and members of the Order of DeMolay will be in uniform and will be escorted by the Aladdin Temple Shrine Band.

The Reverend Gerald W. Koster, Pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church, Grove City, will conduct the service and the Senior Concert Choir of Grandview Heights High School, under the direction of Larry Weaver, will participate in the program.

All Masons, their families and friends and public are invited to attend.

Artificial Lures

Have you ever wondered why somebody using the same lure, fishing the same spot catches fish with it and you don't?

I think the reason is that some fisherman don't make use of the fish catching action that is already built in the lure by retrieving too fast.

Most artificial lures resemble a live minnow so you should copy it's live swimming action, which is slow and deliberate. Only when a minnow is startled will it hurry and skip through the water.

You can copy this fish getting skipping action by repeatedly pulling back on the rod tip while retrieving. So slow down and fish the natural way and you can catch more and bigger fish.

Most important, the thing to remember is, don't take that built in fish catching action out of your artificial lures by retrieving too fast.

Plan A Float Trip

Ever hear of a float trip? For a great day of fishing and an opportunity to observe the beauty of naturte take a float trip down your favorite river or stream.

You'll need two cars, a light weight boat or canoe in addition to your regular tackle and don't forget to pack an extra big outdoors lunch and take binoculars.

Pick a stretch of water where you can drop in a boat. You'll find these areas near a bridge. For a full day float trip plan on covering our or five miles of water. You can check distances with a highway or county map. Leave one car down stream at your takeout pint, drive back up stream and start your trip.

Just a note of caution, if you're taking your boat in or out on private property, ask the land owner for permission before you plant the trip.

I wear an old pair of deck shoes or low cut rubber boots, as hip boots and waders are too darn dangerous to wear in any boat.

You may get wet, so take rain gear and extra clothes to change after the trip for the ride home. As you're drifing along cast towards the bank, undercut ledges, near sunken logs and boulders. I like to cast quarter ounce Abu or Shyster spinners.

If you prefer live bait, try dunking nitecrawlers or minnows with a long cane pole or fly rod.

Dunking live bait right next to stumps and fallen logs is a deadly method for bass. Make sure you use a quiet approach to these areas so you don't scare the fish off to deeper water and out of reach.

When you come to ripples, fish the pools below. Sometimes they're the most productive spots along the way. If the fish aren't hitting, I don't know how you feel about it, but I'm thankful that I've had another day OUTDOORS to enjoy the gift of nature that's ours, as long as you and I protect and preserve it.

Vol. VXI No. 20 Total 900 | Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, April 25, 1973 | 15 Cents

BONNIE LEE MOOK (seated) and Nancy Janson will be sponsored by the Spectator Newspapers in the March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon on Sunday, April 29. Both say this will be their first 22 mile walk, but agree they will be going the full distance as the March of Dimes attempts to raise funds for the prevention of birth defects. The two say they will be spending the next few days exercising and jogging to get in shape for the walk.

ON APRIL 29

Spectator Will Sponsor March Of Dimes Walkers

Nancy Janson and Bonnie Lee Mook will be taking time out this weekend to do something for someone else.

The two east side residents will be taking part in the March Of Dimes Walk-A-Thon and will be sponsored by the Spectator Newspapers. The sponsors pay 50 cents per mile.

THE 22 MILE walk is Sunday and will begin at 9 a.m. at Whetstone Park and will be lead by Tracy Anders, the local poster child for the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Both fairly new to Columbus, Nancy and Bonnie said they had never been in a walk such as this before but were determined to go the full 22 miles.

"I've been doing something for the March of Dimes for the last four years," Nancy said. "I'm just so impressed that I have two healthy children that I feel very fortunate."

IN THE PAST she said she was a marching mother, collecting for the campaign.

Columbus was the first place to have a Walk-A-Thon sponsored by March of Dimes in 1971. That year 650 people came out to walk and raised $14,000.

Those in charge of the walk are expecting between 3,000 and 5,000 walkers this year.

The National Guard will provide water tanks at the checkpoints along the route and there will be refreshments at the finale.

THE PROCEEDS will be used for research into prevention of birth defects.

Nancy concluded by saying, "I'd like to think that the 22 miles I walk may help a child take his first step."

COUNTY–WIDE PROJECT

Clean-Up Efforts Headed By BEE

It's spring clean-up time again and this year the main thrust of the efforts are being coordinated by the BEE Campaing (Better Environment for Everyone).

The BEE Committee was organized last December by the area Kiwanis Clubs and community leaders to clean up and improve the environment.

THE BEE PROGRAM is the coordinating committee which is functioning like an umbrella in matters of citizen action for environmental improvement, beautification and ecology.

The campaign is under way now and will run through May 6. Events planned for this week include not only clean up work, but also such activities as tree plantings and educational programs aimed at making citizens more aware of the environment.

This week's activities will be in full swing on Saturday, April 28 as it has been proclaimed the county-wide clean-up day.

Organizations who have volunteered support include the Army, Navy, Air Force, Boy and Girl Scouts, Kiwanis Clubs, Waste Watchers, Pitch-In Clubs, university students, senior citizens and local governments throughout the Franklin County area.

Arbor Day, April 27, will be a special day of community improvement and will be celebrated by the planting of trees throughout the county.

Through grants from the Ozias Fund of the Columbus Foundation many trees will be planted on public sites and thousands of seedlings planted in school nature areas, and on new park lands.

AS PART OF this the forestry-lumber industry has provided educational materials for use in the schools.

As education is a major factor in the program, teachers are encouraged to deal with environmental topics during this spring period.

Ten mini grants will be awarded to several elementary schools for their participation in the program and more grants are being sought for next year.

THESE EFFORTS are being made so that youngsters will also be taking a part in the campaign and will be learning more about the environment and what they can do to keep it clean and beautiful.

Dr. John WEllis, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools and Fred Daniels, superintendent of Franklin County Schools, are serving as honorary co-chairman of BEE and have pledged their support of the committee's goals to clean-up and improve the environment.

Columbus Senior Citizens have also taken a special interest in BEE and have produced an environmental puppet show which is being presented to school children in the first through third grades.

UNDER THE direction of Catherine Gillie of the Columbus Department of Recreation and Parks, senior citizens are also preparing awards and recognitions for BEE volunteers and are currently supervising a children's "Name The BEE" Contest.

A Speakers Bureau has also been organized by Dorothy Geiger of the Ohio Waste Watchers, Inc. Speakers are available to all interested groups as well as film strips and other visual materials. Those interested in obtainning speakers may contact Mrs. Geiger after 6 p.m. at 261-6264.

Coordinating all of the BEE activities are William Schmitt, education director of the Center of Science and Industry, and Don Hollenback, Columbus beautification coordinator.

THEIR GOAL for the BEE project is to bring together all citizens who have environmental concerns to establish improvement projects that can be carried out on a year-round basis.

In order to fulfill the goals, the county has been divided into 22 functional areas for use by the BEE Committee. Each area will have a main headquarters and will be supervised by a local Kiwanis Club for the duration of the BEE campaign.

In Whitehall Robert Roshon is the area chairman.

ROSHON SAID the BEE program there is being coordinated with the clean-ups planned by the city and by other civic organizations.

A kick-off is planned for Saturday morning and young people from the Rosemore Ecology club, the girl scouts, camp fire girls, the little league teams, and adult groups will be cleaning up open spaces and parks in the area.

The Rosemore Ecology Club has been Active for sometime in informing other students and residents of the problems threatening the environment.

THE CLUB made a special film about pollution and presented it at the meeting of the Whitehall Development Corporation and at a recent city council meeting.

The volunteer in the clean-up effort residents in Whitehall should contact Roshon at 235-2385 or 235-8837.

Bill Wilcoxon is the area chairman for the Berwick vicinity and he may be reached at 866-3251 or 228-6411.

THE EASTERN Columbus chairman if Tom Harris and he may be reached at 224-9131 or 868-1738. This will include the Bexley area.

Early Entrance Testing Offered

The Columbus schools are offering an early entrance testing program for children who will miss the age deadline for entering kindergarten or first grade next fall by as much as three months, according to Clayton Ferrell, director of guidance and student counseling.

The school system's standard requirement is that youngsters be five years old by September 30 to enter kindergarten and six by that date for admission to first grade.

The testing program is available for children who miss the age deadline but may still be ready to start school, Ferrell said. The program measures the intellectual, emotional, social and physical development of the children to determine their readiness for school.

The kindergarten testing program is for youngsters who will be five years old during October, November or December. The program for early entrance into first grade is for children not now in public school who will be six during that three-month period.

Ferrell pointed out that only those children who have reached a proper level of development can profit from early entrance and that placing a child in school before he is ready can be "a very traumatic experience" for him.

Parents seeking further information about early entrance testing should contact the principal of the elementary school in their neighborhood. Parents wishing to apply for early entrance testing for their child must supply the school principal with the child's birth certificate and a letter stating the reasons for requesting early entrance.

Ohio State Presents Oscar Wilde Drama

"The Importance of Being Earnest," Oscar Wilde's brilliant portrayal of the manners and modes of Victorian England, will be presented by the Ohio State University Theatre May 2 to 5 in the Drake Experimental Theatre.

"Earnest" has been hailed the world over as perhaps the best of Wilde's classic comedies.

Although his plays are conventional drawing-room dramas, it soon becomes obvious that Wilde constructed these mannered works solely to poke fun at the society they represent.

The sentimental, sometimes pathetic turns, in plot are present to display glittering epigrams and bon-mots delivered by the characters, and the characters themselves exist in the formalized Victorian world mainly to mock it.

In this play Wilde dropped all pretense of being serious and created a pure farce in which paradox and artificiality reign supreme and the preposterous becomes the norm.

"Earnest" is being directed by Albert Harris, a graduate student and presently director of the Lab Theatre Program, a series of weekly student productions presented in Royer Commons, on North campus.

Tickets for the production are available at the College of The Arts Ticket Office, Mershon Lobby West, any weekday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 422-2296 for information.

BLUE RIBBON ACADEMY, 5350 Livingston Ave.

Blue Ribbon Academy Opens Newest Facility

Blue Ribbon Academy is a private Preschool, Nursery and Kindergarten. The program is academically oriented and designed to provide education suitable for the student's age, and preparation for formal public school education, which begins at age six. Emphasis is placed on academic readiness with a goal of development of the prerequisite skills for reading mastery, math comprehension and social development.

The program for students in the age range of 18 months to six years is supervised by degreed teachers in an environment with a teacher-student ratio of 1 to 10 in the Nursery, 1 to 15 in the Preschool, and 1 to 20 in the Kindergarten.

The $700,000 building at Yorkshire is custom-designed for the program and classes are conducted in an atmosphere of open "classroom community" with class areas divided by a unique mobile teaching unit. The Blue Ribbon Academy offers half-day and full-day programs, elementary student supervision after school, babysitting and a summer swimming, outdoor-indoor recreation program at the Academy's own Summer Day Camp.

"This new building is the only one of its kind in the nation to my knowledge. It was designed specifically as a Preschool, not rennovated. It will offer parents the best available care and learning experience for their children," Wise stated. "This represents the first phase of our $2.3 million long-range expansion program," he added.

Blue Ribbon Academy also has a Preschool facility at 530 East Rich Street, Summer Day Camps at Hoover Dam and 1317 Noe-Bixby Road, and a Family Swim Club membership program at the Yorkshire Swim Club.

it's a waste of one of our vital natural resources—water
And if the leak is hot water, it wastes another vital natural resource —the natural gas used to heat the water.
Not to mention the money used to pay for the gas to heat the water
A leak that fills an ordinary cup in ten minutes wastes 3,280 gallons of water a year
Fix your leaky faucet. With a two-cent washer.
Natural gas and water . . . and money . . . are too valuable to waste
There are other ways you can conserve gas. Keep the thermostat on your water heater set at the normal temperature. Avoid partial loads in your washing machine and dishwasher
Don't use an excessive amount of hot water in your bath or in the shower.
Keep your water heater working efficiently by draining about a bucketful of water a month from the faucet at the base of the heater
This prevents mineral deposit build-up that makes the heater work harder
Use the gas you need in your home. But not a penny's worth more.
Write for our free booklet, "30 Ways to Save", for more ideas.

Working Smarter Will Increase Productivity

By Arch Booth

Executive Vice President

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

AN EDITOR I know – who runs a big national magazine – says he got where he is not so much by "working harder" as by "working smarter." That, in a nutshell, is the secret to improving productivity.

"Productivity" is the current buzz-word for increasing the efficiency with which we use our resources, including our human resources. Improving it means learning to do more with less.

WHY IS that important? It's not just important, it's absolutely essential if we are to maintain our present standard of living, or gain a better one in the future. Our way of life is very expensive, in terms of the resources that are required to support it.

With an increasing population (and it will continue to increase for years, even with the birthrate leveling off) we will need more resources just to stay in the same place. But some raw materials are getting scarce. So we cannot afford waste – in anything.

Some people think "productivity" is just a code word for making workers work harder. That may be involved – especially if the workers have been featherbedding. But most workers work hard enough already. The biggest productivity improvements come from working smarter, not harder.

IN FACT, historically, the dramatic gains in productivity have actually reduced human drudgery, not increased it. Take farming, for example. In 1700 it took 186 men to harvest and thresh 80 acres of wheat in one 10-hour day. By 1910, the same job could be done by seven men. Today it takes one man. Obviously that man is not working 186 times harder than the men of 1700. He is working 186 times smarter.

We can improve productivity in four ways: Better workers, better tools, better materials, or better systems.

An exhibit on productivity at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington illustrates the four methods in application to "Mom's apple pie." We could send Mom to baking school (better workers), get her a new oven (better tools), buy better apples (better materials), or find a better recipe (better system).

OVER THE years, we have used all four of these approaches – often in combination – to win a better way of life. The American economy today produces six times as much per man-hour as it did 100 years ago. But the American worker does not have to work as long or as hard as his ancestors of 1873.

Do we want "more"? Some Americans say no, what they want is more leisure time. Well, that's "more", isn't it? Leisure time is a commodity, too. It must be earned, too. We can see that if we go back to basics:

The primitive farmer has to labor from dawn to dusk to get enough food for his family. If he wants any time off, he must find a way to produce the same amount of food in less time. That is, he must "earn" his leisure time by becoming more efficient, by working smarter.

The principle is more difficult to see amid the complexities of modern society, but it is exactly the same.

We can all have more leisure time (or more of anything else we choose) if we learn to produce what we need more efficiently. However, if we simply take more leisure time without paying for it through greater efficiency, then we will have to pay for it in some other way. That "other way" would be a lower standard of living.

OUR GREATEST gains have come – and will continue to come – from improving old tools, inventing new tools, and finding new and better ways to do things; from working smarter. These gains usually require a lot of seed money. Complex machines are expensive. So is research. Most of the money to pay these bills comes from the earnings of our most profitable enterprises.

SAM, STILL MEASURING BY THE FOOT?

Let's Go Metric

IN AUGUST of last year, the Senate passed legislation moving for U.S. adoption of the international metric system as our primary system and comparable action is anticipated in the House. From a number of viewpoints this is a most responsible decision.

In the first place, we are now the only industrial nation on earth not on or moving to the metric system. It is estimated that with metric-sized products we'll open up as much as $10-billion additional foreign trade and heaven knows with our trade imbalance we can use it. Continuing to use our customary system places us in a technological trap of our own making and this is inane in a world where all are moving to a single technology. Although the move will be expensive, evidence is such that failure to change will be more costly in the long run.

DOMESTICALLY a shift to metrics will create some confusion for both the public and business, but in the long run we'll probably learn it better than our present system. After all, how much sense is there to a system that asks you to relate 12 inches to a foot, three feet to a yard, 36 inches to a yard, 1,760 yards to the mile or 5,280 feet to the mile? With metrics we measure simplyáfor length the meter is divided into decimeters (1-10th), centimeters (1-100th), millimeters (1-1000th)ãall you do is move a decimal point! The system is so much more logical than our own.

The changeover will also encourage us to update our standards and specifications for products, offering us an unprecedented opportunity to improve them and cut out the unnecessary variety which increases cost.

QUICK action on this vital legislation would be a service to America's economic future.

Drive Is April 28-29

Wipe Out Cancer In YOUR Lifetime

THE THEME of the American Cancer Society's April 28-29 Crusade is worth repeating: "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

Those nine words speak volumes. They tell of a trend in the medical attack on cancer which gives reason for hope.

In the late Thirties, fewer than one in five cancer patients was being saved. The following decade it was one in four. And today one of three hit by cancer is saved.

WITH knowledge now available medical and scientific opinion holds that one of two cancer patients could be saved providing diagnosis and treatment come in time.

The last 20 years have seen important advances in the treatment of cancer resulting from research. There have been improved surgical techniques and radiation therapy. In some instances, drugs have been effective against certain types of cancer. Indeed, many scientists say that we have entered the era of significant development of drugs against cancer.

But there can be little difference of opinion about what is needed for the final conquest of this ancient enemy of mankind. The scientific efforts have to be broadened all along the line.

This means more major cancer centers, more money for brainpower and manpower, more money for equipment, training and facilities.

WHEN an ACS volunteer comes to your home this Saturday or Sunday, April 28-29, remember that goal: "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

So give generously!

Worthington Residents Support Drug Policy

To the Editor:

I, Richard D. Jackson, the elected representative of a group of organized and dedicated citizens who are deeply concerned with the drug abuse problem in our community, especially within our Worthington school system, have been authorized to make the following statement.

Recent figures from the Worthington Police Department confirm that this contagious problem is increasing rapidly.

Figures indicate that we have had and are still experiencing a drug abuse increase at an alarming rate of over 100 percent per year.

Various interviews of students and community leaders have indicated to us that the problem is very, very serious here in Worthington.

In the Saturday, April 14, Columbus Dispatch, the Assistant Superintendent of Whitehall Schools, Mr. Austin Peel, said they had "become aware of a real drug problem." Whitehall Police indicated that up to 20 percent of the school student body may be regular drug users. Peel indicated that the problem was not unique to Whitehall, and that "It's hard to find a high school these days without a drug problem."

In the Columbus area in 1972, over 1500 drug related arrests were made and a total value of the drugs confiscated was in excess of $9,000,000.

Twelve hundred of these arrests were for Dangerous Drugs, Barbituates, Hallucinogens, and Narcotics.

The other 300 arrests were miscellaneous drug associated arrests, such as forgery and wrongful influence of a minor, etc.

We support the Board of Education's Policy and Administrative Procedures Concerning Drug Education and Abuse at Worthington High School.

We endorse that this Policy apply to all Worthington Schools. We believe that this is a first step in solving our community problem.

As all good policy, it must have constant review, evaluation and change as new and better procedures and policies develop.

We ask that the School Board establish a committee to review and make recommendations concerning drug abuse.

This committee should consist of, at leaast, the following: Students, Parents, Enforcement Officials, School Administration, Teachers and Community Leaders.

This committee should begin to function at once and results should be implemented in the fall with Board approval. We, therefore, ask that you consider and approve at your next meeting, such a committee.

It is the determination of this group that we show our support for the Teachers, Nurses, all other Staff members, and The School Board, as long as a firm, combative, and continuing stand is taken to eliminate this drug abuse in our schools and community.

Recent newspaper articles indicate the value of total community involvement and cooperation which is necessary to eliminate this dangerous drug abuse from the community. It emphasizes enforcement, school, and community involvement.

If we were to have a 10 percent infection of small-pox in our schools, we would probably close them down.

Yet, we have almost evaded the entire drug problem while other communities have been waging a much more effective war against drug abuse.

Again, we say we support your new Policy Statement. We support the Teachers, School Employees, and the School Board in adopting and implementing a firm, combative, add continuing action policy to eliminate drug abuse.

It is not fair to ask our school officials to attack this monumental task alone.

This is the reason for our group's decisive supportive action. Such an approach can only strengthen our community and school system. We must work together!!!

Sawdust Is Flying

OSU Trains Men For Jobs In Booming Wood Industry

"WOOD HAS a lot to offer young men who are considering career choices," says Robert Touse, Extension specialist in wood utilization at The Ohio State University. "And proper training can open exciting doors."

"The wood industries of the United States are booming," he explains, "and it follows that jobs available with these companies reflect this flourishing business activity. Collectively, the industries that use wood as a raw material make up a huge segment of our economy. The forecast for the next few years seems very good."

While many jobs in the wood industries are not forestry jobs, they are foten closely related to the forest, and may even be located in the forested areas of the country, Touse notes. Logs must first be processed into lumber or veneer or pulp fiber before secondary products such as paper or furniture can be manufactured.

Ohio alone has 400 or more sawmills, many pallet manufacturers, some furniture mills, and a host of other wood users. They are all potential employers.

THE LIST of wood using companies is almost endless, and the most important commodity is people who know about the structures of wood--how it behaves when it dries, how to machine it, how to glue it, how to preserve it, and how to sell it.

For high school graduates interested in careers in the wood industry, The Ohio State University offers two training programs--a 2-year technical program at Wooster and a 4-year professional program at Columbus.

The basic difference between the two training programs is that the 4-year professional program offered on the Columbus campus includes many business courses, humanities, social sciences, and other similar courses. The 2-year technical program offered at Wooster gives more on-the-job training and experience in working with wood products. There is a definite overlap of subject metter in the area of wood science.

THE AG Technical Institute at Wooster is part of the OSU College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Its wood science curriculum includes: (1) structure and properties of the many wood species, (2) processing of wood into manufactured products, (3) organization and operation of wood processing plants, and (4) marketing of lumber and wood products.

Touse points out that this is not a forestry program but is closely related. A wood science laboratory has been included in the new building at Wooster, but students spend a significant amount of time in the wood using workshops of Ohio.

They work for pay and get academic credit at the same time. At the end of the second year, the student is ready to take his place in the forest industries of the U.S. This may be in Ohio, or it may be in one of the other wood processing and wood consuming states.

INTERESTED high school students can write to the Ag. Technical Institute, Wooster, Ohio 44691 or to the Admissions Office of the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio 43210. Or, if they forget the address, they can contact their local Cooperative Extension Servvice Office.

TB Society Name Changed

The Tuberculosis Society of Columbus, Franklin, Delaware, and Union counties is changing its name to the Central Ohio Lung Association.

The new name reflects the increaed importance of the expanding program interests as well as the central purpose of the Association--to prevent and control all lung diseases.

Mr. Harold Throop, the Director of the Association, explained, "Since modern drugs have reduced the problems in tuberculosis control and since emphysema is becoming a major health problem, the name, Lung Association, will better reiflect the functions of the Assiciation." He added that for a number of years the programs of the organization have dealt with many other diseases besides TB; all of them effecting the lung.

The Association has an emphysema screening program, anti-smoking activities, a home care program for emphysema patients, tubeerculosis control programs, professional educational programs, and general education programs about air pollution and lung diseases.

Safety Councils Formed

TWENTY counties have formed local traffic safety councils since December of 1972, Ohio Highway Safety Director Pete O'Grady said this week.

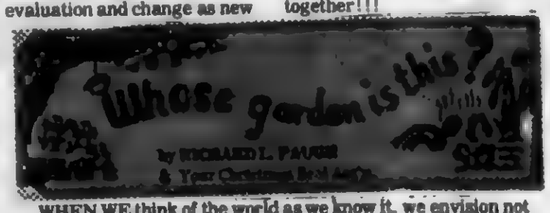
"The growth of citizen participation in the highway safety effort is necessary if we are to win the war against needless death and injury on Ohio highways," the director commented.

Youth traffic safety committees are now established and functioning in 21 school districts, according to a departmental report.

"The inclusion of the young in the highway safety effort is vital," Director O'Grady said, "because the leading cause of death in the 15 to 24-year old age bracket is traffic crashes.

FUNCTIONING in Ohio at present are 58 local traffic safety councils of which 11 have a paid staff. The remaining 47 are local voluntary citizens groups.

"These 58 groups are located in 48 counties which include some 70 percent of the Ohio population," the director noted.



THIRTEEN additional counties are now in the process of forming highway safety groups, the report said. The report also listed 115 Women In Traffic Safety (WITS) district, county and local chairwomen assigned and working in the traffic safety effort.

"Since highway safety is reduced, finally, to each individual driver in each individual driving situation, it is one of those phenomena which, to succeed, needs the help of all interested persons," Director O'Grady concluded.

The trailside Interpretive Center at Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Park has opened for the season with visiting hours from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday.

Fish, amphibians and reptiles native to the park will be on display and a "window on wildlife" will allow visitors to observe many wild birds and mammals close-up.

Nature books and field guides are on display and are offered for sale.

WHEN WE think of the world as we know it, we envision not only the household but the creatures living there. Our world is peopled with green frogs and soaring condors, frozen tundra and rain forests. Our descendents have a right to expect EVERYTHING we have on earth.

For the most part, developers and highway builders consider natural areas and wild critters nice but a luxury. NOT SO. They are a part of the world we were born into and birthright that must be passed jealously from generation to generation. It is only proper that man-made things like buildings and roads have a countable lifetime of usefulness then back to the earth. Your great grandson has a birthright vested in that patch of moss on the old oak tree behind the house.

THIS IMMORTAL attitude and the early force behind it are beautifully portrayed in a new book entitled CRUSADE FOR WILDLIFE by James B. Trefethen. You are not likely to discover the book (published by Stackpole Company of Harrisburg, Penn.) on the shelves of your drugstore. It is a hardback of almost 400 pages priced at $7.50.

How were the first game laws of Alaska passed? Who was behind the Lacey Act of 1900 that stopped most of the market hunters from killing off all big game? What President was the first (and so far the only one) to spend a great deal of time on preservation of wild things and places? Who collected buffalo and saved them? How were the migratory birds controlled?

ALL THESE questions are answered in the book, published for the Boone & Crocket Club, America's oldest and most respected trophy club. Back at the turn of the century, there were no organized birdwatchers, just hunters and citizen apathy.

THERE HAVE always been good hunters and bad hunters. CRUSADE FOR WILDLIFE is the story of the world's best "good hunters". Trefethen writes with a fervor that could only be found in a person who lives what he writes. It is the factually written account of why we still have all the wild and wonderful critters that are found today.

If you are one of those rare individuals who have always felt you would like to do something really nice for your world but are limited in the cash you can donate to the cause, here's a good plan of action -

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: Go to your bookstore and order a copy of CRUSADE FOR WILDLIFE. Read it well yourself, then donate it to your local library for use by the younger generation. The history and tribulations of early conservationists should be known and understood by everyone who cares.

"I don't ride the buses, but my friends sure need them."

CTC bus service will end June 30th. What will happen to the jobs of thousands of working men and women who depend on buses to get them to and from their work? And, how will others get along who depend on the services provided by bus-riders?

You can help save bus service — and extend bus lines to 30,000 jobs not served by buses now—when you vote for Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA). COTA is a board of private citizens who serve without pay. With the COTA levy, they can acquire the present system, hire operating management and assure the buses will keep rolling.

Also COTA will provide Sunday and holiday service, extend some routes, allow Senior Citizens a 25¢ fare in off-peak hours.

There will be no bus service without your support. Vote May 8 and vote FOR COTA bus service.

Summer Dressing. . .A State Of Mind

FOR THE big, beautiful woman, who wears sizes 12 to 20, a drift of free flowing abstract flowers in red and brown on white cotton...from J.S. Ltd. Summer collection.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

..A CHOICE OF SWEET OR SPICY is one of the pleasures of summer dressing and the designers have gone all-out to make this the most effortless and feminine season, ever... with each designer interpreting the trends in his own inimitable fashion.

SHANNON RODGERS, head designer for Jerry Silverman, has cooked up a delectable collection which promises to be all things to all chic women. Consider the frothiness of dotted swiss etched with rickrack...the subtlety of white on white in appliqued daisies...the ethereal softness of flowered organza...polka dots and red anemonies...red, white and blue striped cotton in a chevron pattern.

Barer necklines, wide clinging waistbands, big skirts that flirt with the kneecap are other subtleties.

VICTOR COSTA dotes on dots for Suzy Perette. Even before Victor learned that polka dots, scattered dots and blizzard dots were tops in all high-fashion collections both here and abroad, he designed a treasury of dotted cottons, voiles and foulards. Outstanding are his handmade-looking embroidered dotted organdy, girlish 'dotted swiss and guipure lace, and "Op" art dots in varying sizes mixed into borders and linings. As an about-face, Victor shows liquid black Polyester for a short late-day dress, with lots of skin showing. Together they spell summer fashion.

KIMBERLY'S SUMMER collection is a 'first' entirely of polyester, Trevira and Dacron...some of the looks so like checked gingham or printed crepe, only their travel-ease could prove that they are actually knits. Other knits have the sheen of matte jersey, plus the flattering body that keeps them from clinging. Pants and skirts are evenly divided in the Kimberly collection, since that's the way women are planning their wardrobes, these days. The indispensable little cardigan suit with belted overblouse, the sleeveless tunic and the sleeveless dress, are planned to interchange in pastels or darks. Whether realistic or abstract form, these are "action clothes"...meant to move right into other seasons!

..THE SHERATON Columbus Motor Hotel is coming on strong with entertainment. Before I proceed any further, let me tell you this, if you enjoy fine entertainment, then you must head to the Caravel Lounge and catch the Sandy Sidwell Show. By the way, if you visit the lounge between 9 p.m. and 2 a.m., you can park free in the Sheraton's indoor garage.

Now, here in the main reason you should go. Sandy Sidwell in a top notch vocalist. Besides that, she is truely a showman's showman. What an entertainer. This gal gives out with a real live wire, happy performance. This redhaired sexy beauty owns a dynamic voice.

SANDY is totally unlike most of the so-called modern female singers. Sandy sings, and I do mean sings. Sandy is an individualist. She doesn't sound like any other singer. This is true both in quality and style. Both have high priority in my book. It is certainly a pleasure to hear this gal sing. Her control and are seldom , seldom heard today.

As I said at the begining, Sandy is a showman , which means she has plenty of stage presence. She is as much at ease on stage as most people are in their bedroom. After listening to her for only a short tome, you can tell Sandy has a wealth of experience, that includes musicals, and recently a night club tour all over Canada.

While the Sandy Sidwell show is actually a lounge act, Sandy puts on a fast paced show each set, that contains the old standards right on up to the latest tunes.

Of course, Sandy is given a host of fine support by three capable musicians. Yougi Cowan plays organ, flute and also has a fine solo vocal style. Rounding out the trio is the well know Don Hales at the guitar and Ruben Young, a talented drummer.

But, it is personable Sandy that makes it all worthwhile. The Sandy Sidwell Show is exciting, happy and professional all the way. And, the way is the Caravel Lounge at the Sheraton Columbus Motor Hotel. Scintillating Sandy is a perky entertainer, who does just that. Don't miss her.

September - May, is the current group entertaining the people Tuesday through Saturday at the all new Ohio Stater Inn Motel. This is a very unique, interesting outfit, playing music in quite an unusual manner. The end result is music that is beautiful.

Comprised of two accoustial guitars that are amplified, organ and drums, you hear a differnt sound that is certainly a relief from most of the groups around. It is so exhilarating and care-free. The music they produce creates an almost carnival atmosphere.

WHILE their instrumentals are superb, this is not the important aspect of their act. Just wait until you hear the beautiful blending of Barbara and Paul Magree's voices This is something you really will love. Each has a superb solo voice, which I enjoyed very much. But, it's when the two come together, that an ethereal mood develops in the room.

Their music library leans towards a soft rock. Yet, they do a wide variety of music in a smoth, rather soft and relaxing style. Their whole approach is gentle, both instrumentaly and vocally.

As I said earlier, September - May is a totally different group. This has to be a must on your entertainment schedule.

THIS WEEK at the Ramada Inn East, is the Paul Indelicato Show. Paul is a singer, one of thoes sexy male types that makes the gals drool. As a singer, Paul is just that, a singer.

This handsome six foot two inch young man has a nice voice. It is nothing unusual. There are hundreds of male singers that compare to him. His tonal qualities, as well as his style offer nothing unique. Listening to Paul sing is like listening to a host of other in the business. As I said, he is not a bad vocalist. Don't get me wrong, it is just the fact there are many mora like him.

The Paul Indelicato Show was billed as a Las Vegas type of show. Not true. It is nothing more than good lounge act. However, Paul doesn't give this impression. He only does two or three shows a night. The rest of the sets are filled by three rather talented, capable musicians, that includes Malcolm Lukens ath the organ, Gantt Kushner playing electric guitar and drummer John Ross. All three help save the day at the Ramada Inn East.

I did appreciate his selections of tunes. With some strong material. Even with the proper material and his pleasing voice, Paul would be a much better entertainer if he could develop a stronger stage personality and more stage presence.

This is one group that you will either like or dislike. If you are expecting a show, you'll be disappointed. But, if you enjoy a rather polished contemporary group, where the leader will oblige you by getting up and performing a few times a night, then I do believe that you will satisfied.

The Paul Indelicato Show is scheduled at the Ramada Inn East only for this week. Give it a try, you may like it.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN That fabulous beauty, who is loaded with talent, Jo Kaiser is back at the Lincoln Lodge. After a couple of being on the road, it sure is nice to see Jo back at the Lodge. Mike Kapson, the host of Diamond Jim's gave me his spring - summer line up of main attractions. Chubby Checkers is signed for June 28 and 29. That's a blockbuster. This week, the popular Puzzle is playing and, is followed May 3-5 by Sam and Dave, a twelve piece show group. This outfit has sold millions of records. Will give you the rest of the line up as the weeks go by ... Another favorite personality with the night folk, Bobby Breech has opened up a place in New Rome. Called, Bobby D's the spot has become a gathering for the elan. No entertainment, just a fun place to go to meet old friends ... Bill Bragg is still holding down the fort at the Rum Keg Lounge, in Howard Johnson's East. This fellows vocals ans guitar stylings are enjoyable and relaxing ... Also , while east, don't forget Danny's Mannhole. What a fun place ,

Convention Dollar Volume Reflects Growth

RANKING high in the list of purchasing power sources and exceeding some of the area's major industries, 1972's $27,000,000 convention volume in Columbus, reflects the continuing growth of this national eight billion dollar industry.

Hosting over 900 conventions drawing over 350,000 expected visitors, Columbus is doing a good job in maintaining its reputation as a convention city pending the time that the proposed new Convention Center complex approaches reality, and this is in face of growing competition from new convention facilities in other major cities, including Cincinnati and Dayton - only minutes away by super highway.

The figures mentioned cover only those groups and associations organized along typical convention-holding lines, do not include company sales meetings, football games, etc. which could account for an estimated 20 million dollars in added buying volume.

According to Robert W. Bashor, Executive Vice President of the Columbus Convention Bureau, the average convention delegate spends three days here, spends over 85 dollars for room, meals, taxis, merchandise and services.

Columbus didn't get its reputation as a convention site by accident. It all began late in the last century when its location in the Center of Ohio, its multiple rail service, nearness to the center of National population provided the advantages for an early start in what was then a small but profitable convention industry which today is pushing 8 billion nationally in annual expenditures.

EARLY, too, was the local recognition of what convention volume can do to improve Columbus' and central Ohio's economy recognition which brought the formation of a bureau in the early 1900's to go after conventions as a source of business for local hotels, motels, restaurants, entertainment spots, and all kinds of retail and service outlets.

Bashor says his Bureau will go to any place in the Nation to help swing a large gathering to the city.

In this effort they insist that local members of a given group be on their team in pushing for Columbus as the site for the future meeting and their willingness to help with the details and plans for the gathering.

These promotions with site selection committees go far into the future - maybe even ten or more years ahead and this requires good records and minute plans by hotels, motels, Vets Auditorium, with sleeping rooms, exhibit and meeting space laid out and reserved in exacting detail.

BEYOND personal contacts the Bureau "works" files on over 4500 organizations who hold regularly scheduled conventions and follow-up may be by mail or phone with frequent assistance from the Mayor's office.

Columbus Convention Bureau is a non-profit organization whose members come from all kinds of businesses and individuals, who are vitally interested in Columbus receiving the benefits of good convention volume. Bureau operating revenue comes from member hotels, motels, restaurants, stores, service firms, good suppliers and the City Administration - those who directly or indirectly

ACT II

By BETTY DRAGONETTE

As Dion Anthony says in Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown", "you're lost in blind alleys, too". And who of us isn't? We all go about showing the mask of ourselves and hiding what's underneath. How many times do we say what we really feel? I'm not ashamed to say I've been there. And as Cybel says "Don't get hurt. Remember it's (life) all a game".

A functional set of multiple use block furniture, designed by Gordon Fox, and an energetic, efficient scenary changing crew did much to add to the all around mood of a reality-non-reality world. I had to supress my desire to applaud them after each [illegible].

Ron Fisher and Jackie Bates executed the masks that were such an integral part of the play. Each mask conveyed a different message. I particularly liked the plastic face of Margaret, played by Joyce Long. And since we are at that point, may I say she did an excellent job as the wife who could show her real self to the man she loved, but could not stand to look at him as he was, only the mask of his exterior being. But to Billy Brown, who loved her, she gave only the surface view.

As her husband, Dion Anthony, that paradox of tortured sensitive inner soul, crying to be let out and the cynical veneer of a Pan turned Mephistopheles, Rainer Haeger is a master of the quick change. He moved me to tears and gave me a feeling of desperation.

John Berg, as Billy Brown, had a role entirely foreign to his nature and made it believable. I felt sorry for this winner who was really a loser. He had money, fame and power but not the woman he loved, until Dion's death, when he put on the Mask of Dion and replaced him in Margaret's life. Since the mask was all she could see of her husband, she accepted him without question.

I was disappointed in the interpretation of Cybel, played by Karen Lorenz. I felt she could have been stronger as Mother Earth. But then, what she did with the role was well done.

This production was under the direction of Angelo Dragonette and continues April 25-28 at 8:30 at Players Club in their experimental theatre at 549 Franklin Ave. Call 224-6971 for reservations.

Quarters Set In Hospital Change

Columbus Children's Psychiatric Hospital, 800 N. Nelson Road will soon move into new quarters at St. Vincent Children's Center, 1490 E. Main St.

The formal transfer was arranged last week at the offices of the Franklin County Mental Health and Retardation Board.

The Board has served as administrative agent for CCPH since taking over the facilities from the State December 24, 1972.

There are currently 32 patients at CCPH, which accepts emotionally disturbed boys and girls, ages 6 to 12.

The program is expected to expand to include 60 youngsters, 40 under extended day care treatment (from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.) and 20 on short term residential care.

According to Mrs. Mary Pfordresher, the 648 Board's Associate Director for Programming, the 1973-74 fiscal budget for the St. Vincent operation totals $621,745, including $53,965 in federal grants and fees.

John J. Evans, superintendent at CCPH, will serve as executive director at St. Vincent's. Sister Claudia, the St. Vincent's administrator, will be the associate executive director under the new administrative structure.

EARLY this year a new organization was formed, "The Helmsmen", an aggressive group of young business executives who are enthused about Columbus and its convention industry, to operate as an arm of the Bureau.

Thus far they have carried the convention story to the Columbus and Franklin County business community with the result that 50 additional firms have joined the Bureau and are supporting its program.

Sixteen members comprise an Executive Committee which supervises operation of the Bureau and guide policy decisions of the organization.

ROY STAGE, President of Columbus Convention Bureau and long active in retail and civic circles says "Conventions to the tune of !27,000,000 is big business and to produce this kind of purchasing power would require an industry with over 2,000 workers. We have some of the best qualified businessmen in the city on our Board and run it like the big business it is."

The Convention Bureau does more than just schedule an organization into the city. Once Columbus is chosen as the convention site the service features of the Bureau come into play.

A STAFF of experienced registration personnel will assist with registration of delegates, typing badges, distributing literature, accepting registration fees, selling banquet and luncheon tickets, providing maps, brochures, etc. Even typewriters are provided for visiting groups by the Bureau.

A seven passenger limousine presented to the Bureau by an enthusiastic member is available for VIP guests requiring this service from Port Columbus - another means of impressing convention executives.

These and other service devices are used to keep Columbus in the running with other major cities bidding for convention business.

Convention Competition Keen

IN THE last five years over 40 cities have completed new convention centers and 40 more are either in the construction stage or planning new centers. This is the reason Bashor is intensely interested in the new Ohio Center to be built on the site of the old Union Depot.

Veterans Auditorium with its 50,000 feet of exhibit space and 4,000 seat auditorium with adjacent meeting rooms has done and is doing the job for which it was built but there are hundreds of organizations that are too big to consider Columbus as a meeting site as facilities here aren't adequate for their needs, according to Bashor.

Both Cincinnati and Dayton Centers can handle larger groups than Columbus, Bashor says, and hotels-motels in Columbus, with their present 5,000 plus rooms will not long be a problem as once the new Ohio Center is set to a timetable there will be movement in hotel circles to provide needed rooms.

Bashor has great respect for the expertise of present-day hotel management and relies confidently on hotel executives to provide what the Columbus market will need to compliment the additional requirements the new Center will generate.

JUST AS with any other industry, the convention dollars brought here by visitor-delegates improve the economy throughout central Ohio. Not only do the "first line" recipients benefit but the 5,500 area jobs generated by visitors receive their pay from money earned elsewhere and brought here to spend.

These dollars turn over at least seven times and are used to pay the grocer, dentist, doctor, shoe store, utilities, etc. throughout the area so the results are far reaching.

WHEN THE new Ohio Center complex is completed, a substantial increase in convention business is a certainty with greater benefits, more jobs and more input of outside money into the greater Columbus area.

SPINNING FOR BIGGER FISH

You can catch a lot of fish on nitecrawlers and dug worms, but for the bit ones why don't you try spinning tackle.

The quarter to one eighth ounce spinning lures are more tempting to larger trout and bass, because they'll strike at the lure in belief that its a small fish and a good size meal.

The bigger trout and bass seem to be more interested in lures of this kind then in wet or dry flys which imitate insect life.

Not only can spinning lures be used more effectively with less skill than fly fishing for larger fish, but most of the popular spinning lures are tested and proven before they're ever put on the market.

It is true worms will catch fish in quantity, but larger game fish will strike at the larger lures. It makes sence, bigger fish, bigger lures.

LOOK FOR FISH

Where's the best place to find fish in the spring of the year? Shallow warm water, especially where they feed.

When you fish lakes, head out for the upper end and you'll usually find a river or small stream flowing warm water into the lake. Always use a quiet approach anytime your approaching shallow water.

Remember if you can see fish feeding there, they can see you. If you do see a fish in shallow water or feeding on the surface and he doesn't spook, don't try to throw your lurein the fishes mouth or you'll scare the heck out of him, then he's off for deep water and out of reach. It's much better to easy your lure three to four feet beyond the fish.

Retrieve very slowly over the spot where you saw him. Repeat this action to both sides of the sopt and you'll probably have a hit.

THE FRIENDLY FISHERMAN

Fisherman are the friendliest people in the world. I think everyone is friendlier when they're outdoors enjoying the gifts of nature. Besides being neighborly, you can also puck up a lot of information to help you catch more fish.

Take a walk along a river bank or lake and just watch the people fishing and enjoying the serenity of the outdoors. Stop by to chat and ask. Having any luck? Iv-e seen kids hold up their stringer with a six inch fish on it, eyes sparkling and say."Look at this one mister" I-ll say "What did you catch him on?" and he will tell me. I've seen trophy size fish people have caught and not once has a person kept their bait or lure a secret.

Some of my favorite lures and fishing methods were given to me on my strolls along a river bank just talking to friendly people being neighborly, just fishing.

Exciting Mineral Display Available At Ohio Center

THE EXHIBIT comprises specimens of varied color as well as polished examples and others which are notable for their large quartz crystals.

The 38 piece mineral specimen collection was arranged by M. Lisy Boren of The Ohio Historical Society's Natural History Department at the Center.

Geodes collected mainly from the southwestern quarter of Ohio are also shown and are spectacular for their crystals which are usually quartz and calcite.

Both rock dolomite, formed from the mineral dolomite, and rock limestone, formed from the mineral calcite, are quarried and mined in Ohio.

THE OHIO Historical Center is open, without admission fee, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sundays and holidays, 1 to 5 p.m.

The tournament is open only to boys 15 years old and presently in high school.

Entries can be taken the day of the meet but must be signed by the parent or guardian.

Weigh-ins will be from 8 to 11 a.m. and entry fee is $1.50 payable in advance or at the weigh-in.

Weight classes will be 105.5, 114.5, 123, 132, 143, 154, 165, 178, 190.5 and heavyweight.

Proclaims Catholic School Week

Governor John J. Gilligan has proclaimed April 29-May 5, as "Catholic School Week" in Ohio.

"Catholic School Week" will be observed by 682 Catholic schools serving 265,000 Ohio students, and staffed by 13,000 teachers. The week will provide opportunities for all Ohio citizens to become better acquainted with the Catholic schools, their students and faculty.

Many of the Catholic schools plan to have open houses. In addition to this there will be musical and dramatic presentations, dinners and many opportunities for the staffs and teachers of both public and Catholic schools to get together.

Officials of the Catholic schools have expressed the hope that many citizens who have never viseted a Catholic school -- or those who have not visited one in recent years -- will take advantage of Catholic School Week to visit the local Catholic schools.

Catholic schools are anxious to display the use of the newest educational tools and exciting new concepts in class organizations.

Some of the Catholic schools in Ohio offer ungraded schools; others have open classrooms, modular scheduling, mini-courses and toher innovative programming. This is all offered withing the framework of spiritual guidancde -- the hallmark of Catholic schools.

Brown Predicts Light Voter Turnout May 8

Secretary of State Ted Brown has predicted a turnout of only 1,680,000 voters in the May 8 primary and special elections. He aid that little interest has been shown in the seven state Constitutional Amendments on the ballot, due in part to the lack of publicity or campaign activity either in behalf of or in opposition to any of the [illegible].

By contrast, Brown recalled that the Ohio Bond Commission issue in May, 1967, generated much interest and heated debate. Yet, even then, less than 1,630,000 voters cast ballots in that election.

An additional facorr, said Brown, is that most of the large cities in the state will not be conducting primaries at the time of the May election and many townships will have nothing to vote on.

Secretary Brown stated that there are nearly 4,573,000 registered voters in Ohio, plus approximately 665,000qualified electors in non-registration areas, for a total estimate of 5,238,000 persons eleibible to vote saiid that the turnout he predicts would amount to about 32 percent of the qualified electors.

Free Hearing Tests Scheduled During May

Free hearing screening tests will be conducted by the Hearing and Speech Center of Columbus and Central Ohio, Inc., at four shopping center malls throughout Better Speech and Hearing Month in May.

The schedule for the hearing cruiser is as follows: May 2, 3 and 4, Northland Shopping Center; May 16, 17 and 18, Westland Shopping Center; May 23, 24 and 25, Eastland Shopping Center and May 31 and June 1, Worthington Square Shopping Center. Testing hours are from noon until 9 p.m.

The testing is part of a community development program designed to bring hearing screening testing to as many residents as is possible. Last year, 1,601 persons took advantage of the free hearing screening test. Of those persons nearly 29 percent were determined to have hearing which was not within normal limits.

Persons who fail the screening test are advised that they should have a complete audiological evaluation to determine the exact extent and cause of their hearing loss and whether it can be corrected or aided.

For further information about the hearing screening program or other services offered by the Hearing and Speech Center call 294-6403.

The Hearing and Speech Center of Columbus and Central Ohio, Inc. is a member of the United Way of Franklin County, Inc.
